County Awaiting Word on 'Disaster Aid'

KINGSTON

County officials were awaiting an official declaration of a state of emergency from the governor's office today, a necessary prerequisite to receiving federal aid monies by local governments for damages incurred by the "Flood of '76."

For the individual homeowner impacted by the soggy excesses of the past few days, it appears that he must gain an insurance estimate from his agent before moving back in, according to Civil Defense Director John Adsit.

The flood gives county residents an opprotunity to use their federally sponsored National Flood Insurance—if they do not live in the Village of Saugerties, anyway.

The village submitted its final papers applying for the flood plain insurance "within the past week or two," according to clerk Georgette Hughes, giving homeowners scant time to avail themselves of the offering before the deluge. It was estimated that most of the flood damage from the Esopus was sustained upstream in town boundaries, however.

Adsit will be coordinating public and private damage assessment and claims from the Civil Defense office, said County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, today. Adsit commented that he had just begun that task, and there were numerous government agencies to deal with ("they had 18 agencies involved in Westchester recently"). He added that all town supervisors were contacted last night to spread the information that residents should contact their insurance agents before returning to damaged homes.

Flood waters have subsided everywhere in the county, according to several reports. Tom Latham of the Department of Environmental Conservation office in New Paltz, noting that his office was not officially responsible but helped out where it could yesterday, commented that interdepartmental cooperation was outstanding among state and local police and fire companies; state, county, and municipal agencies; and the general public.

The Wallkill River "was surprisingly good yesterday," said Latham, considering the flow.

John Barry of Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr.'s (R-Dist. 101) Washington office explained that state officials must determine the extent of local damages. Private homes and businesses may be eligible for Small Business Administration loans at five per cent interest. If the county is determined to be a "major disaster area," the federal Housing and Urban Development Agency will open a local office to process claims, and all public roads, bridges, and buildings will be replaced.

As he explained the shifting of responsibility, "If the city can handle it, it must; if not, the state must handle it. And if it's a major disaster area, the federal government will handle it."

The Danger Passes

By Tim Schuster

SAUGERTIES

"The thing we're afraid of is that a big chunk will break off and take that dam out," explained Frank Greco, Town of Saugerties Supervisor, as we surveyed the rain-swollen Esopus Creek breaking off sheets of ice and flinging them downstream.

But earlier today, the picture was a little brighter.

"The danger is passed," village police said today. The jam broke up again early today and the water level is subsiding.

On the rampage beginning Tuesday night, the creek gave its first warnings of serious difficulty when the people living along its banks, about one mile south on the north-flowing stream of the Cantine Mill dam, heard the rushing current encroaching on their homes.

Warm temperatures had loosened the thick layer of frozen water covering the creek, and the heavy rains washing down from the Ashokan Dam through the flood plain in Kingston had all but obliterated the Glenerie rapids, which appeared as the continuous detergent of an overwrought washing machine.

Passing on downstream toward the Saugerties Village Beach, the torrent found its progress impeded by a backup of solid ice floes behind the mill dam, in the village proper next to the 9W bridge.

"I've never seen this many people standing outside on a cold windy day like this . . . except for a football game," said one man shivering in a light jacket as he overlooked the dam falls.

The people lined vantage points for the spectacle on the newly renovated steel bridge, along the evacuated beach street where police stood guard as the tiny icebergs whirled through the rungs of the jungle gym in the playground, and overlooking the waterfall from a spot where access was gained only by climbing over a spiked iron fence, behind the old mill.

The dam, reportedly under eight to ten feet of solid rushing water, elicited the remark time after time as this Freeman reporter watched, from longtime residents, "I've never seen it like this before."

Huge floes the breadth and width of a room soared over the precipice into the surging mix below, propelling enormous jets of emulsion higher yet than the dam itself. As the afternoon wore on, it became more believable that the old dam would survive the intense punishment just because it still survived.

The police walkie-talkie crackled down at the scene of concern by the beach, where huge whirlpools raged and the ice broke loose.

But there was nothing that any policeman, politician, or volunteer fireman could do about the flood. It dwarfed the men, women, and children lining the banks of the Esopus Creek and held them in common awe of its force, unleashed at random against anything that stood in its way. The people, joined against a common threat, spoke freely to each other even though strangers, and then walked away with wonder in their minds.

Scene Worthy of World War II

By Carl Graham

TOWN OF ULSTER

The scene at the Ulster Hose Company firehouse Wednesday night was reminiscent of London during the World War II blitz.

Firemen in windbreakers and rubber boots sipped on coffee from plastic cups and compared notes on what had happened. Displaced families sat at tables more often used for Friday night bingo games, eating from box lunches. Red Cross workers conferred with each other, making plans for the families that had been forced to leave their homes.

No bombs were falling and it wasn't a major catastrophe like a blitz, but it was serious enough for the families who had been forced to leave their homes along flooded Esopus Creek.

David Bruce, who lives with his wife in a trailer at 932 Orlando Street, had been expecting a flood, but it came from an unexpected source.

"I'm a member of the Lower Esopus Creek Waterways Committee," he explained. "We were concerned because limbs from trees hit by the Dutch elm disease were falling into the creek. They were backing up the water and we figured they would cause a flood."

The flood came, all right, but it was brought on by a heavy rainstorm combined with melting snow in the unseasonable warm snap that drove ice-choked Ulster County streams over their banks.

"We were up until 4:30 a.m. (Wednesday) and we could see the water coming over the road at the trailer park. When they cut the power off we moved out," Bruce said.

He had just returned from an inspection trip and said that the water seemed to be receding slowly. Although it hadn't gotten into his trailer, he wasn't about to go back unless there was power and heat. The situation is nothing new to the Bruces —they have been forced out twice before in the 15 years they have lived there.

Like the Bruces, most of the families in the area had stayed up Tuesday night to keep an eye on the water.

"We never went to sleep," said Robert Hull of 987 Orlando Street. "We stayed until 4:30 a.m., then went to our daughter's home at the top of the hill."

Along with his wife and five children, Hull took Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Snyder of Albany, friends from the days when the Snyders were neighbors on Orlando Street.

"You picked a great time to come back for a visit," Snyder was told. "We certainly did," he replied.

"We'll stay here to help the Hulls out," Mrs. Snyder added.

Both families said they would spend Wednesday night with the Hull's daugher, Mrs. Wendy Cole, if they were unable to get back into the Hull's home.

Earl Kimble of 53 Buckley Street was another who spent the night keeping a wary eye on the rising water.

"It started coming up fast that last hour," Kimble said. "We drove up to the firehouse and had a good breakfast."

Kimble, a mechanic, took several precautions before leaving his home. He removed the motor unit from his furnace and pulled the fuses in the fuse box.

All but three of the evacuated families had made arrangements to stay with friends or relatives until they could get back into their own homes. The three families were put up at the 9W Motel by the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross. All evacuees are being fed at the firehouse on Ulster Avenue Mall.

"The water got into the basement of our home," said Barbara Fisk of 961 Orlando Street, who spent the rest of the night in Mt. Marion.

The displaced families all praised the efforts of volunteer firemen from Ulster Hose Company No. 5, who were on duty all night pumping out cellars and helping the families who were forced to leave.

Handicap Takes Back Seat

POUGHKEEPSIE

Dale Natoli of Kingston, congenitally blind since birth, has been honored as the first recipient of the "client of the year award" presented recently by the Mid-Hudson Region of the National Rehabilitation Association.

Natoli, a medical transcriber at St. Francis Hospital in Poughkeepsie, was cited for his "motivation, strength and perserverance despite his handicap." He was honored at an awards dinner held this month in Fishkill.

A former client at Gateway Industries in Kingston, Natoli was hired in June by the Medical Records Department at St. Francis Hospital. His work there consists of typing patient records dictated by physicians on cassette recordings. A specialist in medical terminology, Natoli utilizes a seven-volume braille dictionary for reference purposes.

After attending special schools as a youngster, as well as the New York Institute for the Blind, Natoli joined Volunteers of America in Binghamton, where he served as a dispatcher. The victim of budgetary cutbacks in 1974, he returned to Kingston and began his training at Gateway.

In addition to sharpening his clerical skills at Gateway, Natoli was trained to undertake such domestic tasks as cooking and cleaning. He now maintains his own apartment in Kingston, and travels alone each day by bus to and from his job in Poughkeepsie.

Natoli was specifically cited at the awards dinner for his self-sufficiency at home, his mobility and his accomplishments as an employe. After accepting the award, he acknowledged the assistance provided by Gateway and paid tribute to Mrs. Laura Rethier, his clerical instructor at Gateway.

The committee presenting the award consisted of members of the staffs of various rehabilitation agencies in Ulster, Sullivan and Orange Counties. Mrs. Marilyn Friedman of Occupations, Inc. in Newburgh, served as program chairperson.

One of four children of Joseph and Sadie Natoli of Kingston, Dale also serves as president of SEEC, a local organization for the blind sponsored by Kingston Lions Club.

State-Ordered Changes Upset Sheriff Mayone

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON

Changes in the State Correction Commission's "Minimum Standards" for the operation of county jails which are scheduled to go into effect May 1 will mean the necessity for costly alterations at the Ulster County Jail as well as additional manpower, according to Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone.

The new rules concern visits to prisoners, prisoner correspondence, access to the media and religion.

Mayone said the changes in visitation rules which are called for "will cause a serious problem" if they are implemented.

The new rules call for a visiting area to be established to allow for physical contact between prisoners and visitors as well as at least three visits a week of one hour each for every inmate, one between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on a weekday, one between 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. on a weekday, and one on a Saturday or Sunday.

They also call for constant supervision in the visiting area, do not allow the search of visitors except by metal detector, but do allow the search of prisoners prior to and following each visit.

Mayone said if the new rules go into effect, the present visiting area at the jail, which allows for visual and voice contact between inmate and visitor "will have to be torn apart." Additional men will have to be hired for the supervision in the visiting area, the increased number of visiting hours, and for the searches before and after each visit, which are not necessary under the present setup, Mayone said.

Noting that in the past, in special situations, prisoners have been allowed more than the minimum one visit a week and have been allowed contact visits (in attorney conference rooms), Mayone predicted "a fantastic problem with security in the visiting area." He cited the flow of drugs into the facility as a major potential problem.

Describing his feelings about the new rules as "unprintable," Mayone said he has spoken to other sheriffs about the new rules and described them as "very upset about it."

"I don't know of any county jail that can comply with the new rules on visitation without spending a lot of money," Mayone said.

He also took issue with the new rules concerning correspondence. Outgoing mail can not be searched or read without a search warrant. Incoming mail can be searched for contraband, but even if contraband is found, the mail can not be read without a search warrant. Additionally, the inmate must be informed that correspondence containing contraband arrived for him and he must be provided a copy of the correspondence.

Mayone said that at the present inmate mail is not read unless a tip has been received that something unusual (an escape or the smuggling of contraband) is planned. He suggested there will be additional security problems as a result of the new rules on correspondence.

Mayone said he has no idea yet how much alterations at the jail needed to comply with the new rules could cost, but said he will be meeting with other county officials to attempt to come up with an estimate.

He said he "definitely will go" to a public hearing on the new rules tentatively scheduled for early March in Albany to voice his objections.

James McSparron, counsel for the Commission of Correction, questioned concerning the new rules by the Freeman, said he does not expect the potential problems and expenses as a result of the new rules to be as great as Mayone and other jail administrators are predicting. He said there is a possibility the new rules could be changed somewhat as a result of the input from the public hearing. He held out little hope, however, for a change in the new rule regarding contact visits, explaining that the rule is a result of a court decision that mandates contact visits for pre-trial detainees.

Half-Way on 'Pot'

NEW YORK — A medical investigator of marijuana says the drug should be decriminalized but not legalized because "we don't have all the answers."

Dr. Sydney Cohen of the University of California told a three-day conference on marijuana that the mental processes of 30 pot-smoking participants in a study he conducted were not impaired whether they used the drug or not.

He said he doesn't think it right to arrest teen-agers for possession of small amounts. He opposed legalization because "We don't have all the answers."

Fidel: Lift Blockade

HAVANA, Cuba — Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro says he is not anxious to improve relations with the United States, which has objected to Cuban involvement in Angola, and called again for a lifting of the U.S. economic blockade against the island nation.

"We have no eagerness at all (to improve relations)," Castro said. "We are not interested in relations if it means they are on the basis of humility."

Beirut Almost Peaceful

BEIRUT, Lebanon — One week after a Syrian-mediated truce went into effect, the people of Lebanon have begun repairing their shattered nation. The first step was carting away the bodies left buried beneath the ruins of war.

Only scattered sniping in the suburbs and four street kidnapings in Beirut marred an otherwise peaceful day Wednesday as army units and Palestine Liberation Army troops firmly supervised the cease-fire.

Doctors Grudgingly Pay

LOS ANGELES — Waiting until the last minute, striking doctors grudgingly hastened to pay larger malpractice insurance premiums before their coverage lapsed today.

An estimated 80 per cent of Los Angeles County physicians paid the 327 per cent higher premiums which set off a doctors' strike. But they paid unwillingly, warning of higher medical bills and stepped up strike action in the 29-day old walkout.

Ford, Rabin at It Again

WASHINGTON — President Ford and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzak Rabin have scheduled another meeting because they failed to reach agreement on Middle East peace strategy in their two earlier talks, according to diplomatic sources.

The sources said the unexpected third meeting today was necessary because of failure to agree on how to proceed with new Arab-Israeli negotiations, including whether the Palestinian Liberation Organization should participate.

Two Injured In Accident

LOMONTVILLE

Two persons were hospitalized, one with a broken neck, following a two-car head-on crash Wednesday on the Hurley Mountain Road in Lomontville.

State police said a car operated by Roger Depuy, 39, of 99 Hurley Avenue, Kingston, was going north on the roadway at about 9 a.m. when a car driven by Charles Abernethy, 48, of Cottekill Road, Stone Ridge, allegedly crossed the center line and the two vehicles collided.

Taken from the scene by Doctor's Ambulance were Abernethy and Janice Depuy, 29, who reportedly sustained a broken neck. She was transferred to Albany Medical Center Hospital where she was listed in fair condition today. Abernethy was listed in fair condition at Benedictine Hospital today. Depuy was taken by private vehicle to the hospital and was treated and released.

Abernethy was ticketed for driving to the left of the pavement markings.

Police Beat

Arrest One

Kingston Police Department detectives on Wednesday arrested Richard Blume, 19, of 120 Downs Street, on six counts of second degree forgery, a felony.

Police said Blume had allegedly cashed six checks belonging to a relative who has been dead since last May by forging the relative's name to the checks.

Blume was jailed pending court action.

Assault Charged

Ulster Town Constables early today arrested David DeCicco, 20, of RD 1, Box 288½, Kingston on a warrant charging him with second degree assault in connection with an incident at a local bar Wednesday night.

Police said DeCicco allegedly cut the bartender, identified as John Bergin of Saugerties, on the right hand with a broken glass. Bergin was treated and released at an area hospital, according to police.

DeCicco was jailed in lieu of $1,500 bail following arraignment.

Ticket and Then

A young Accord man went from the frying pan into the fire early today after getting a ticket in the Village of Ellenville for disobeying a traffic control device.

Police said William M. Garland, 25, of Whitfield Road, Accord, followed officers who gave him the ticket back to police headquarters and argued with them. Advised that he could plead innocent and go to trial, police said Garland allegedly used abusive language and then got in his car and backed into a police vehicle. Garland then allegedly resisted arrest, police said, and, when searched, was found to be in possession of a quantity of alleged marijuana.

Garland was being held in the village lockup early today awaiting a court appearance after being charged with harassment, resisting arrest, unsafe backing and seventh degree criminal possession of a controlled substance—in addition to the origina l traffic ticket.

Desertion Warrant

Bruce Spelino, 18, of Ulster Park, was being held today for military authorities after being arrested Wednesday by Ulster County Sheriff's deputies on a warrant charging him with desertion from the U.S. Navy. He was picked up in Ulster Park, deputies said.

Support Urged for NYC Tax Payment Law

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON

Taxes owed Ulster County by New York City, a move to create an industrial development agency here and plans to convert the Infirmary Annex to county welfare offices, top the Feb. 5 agenda of the Ulster County Legislature.

More support for state legislation to direct tax payment by the state comptroller of taxes owed Ulster County by New York City has come from County Legislator John Dwyer (D-City).

In a resolution filed with the Ulster County Legislature, Dwyer said the failure of New York City to meet tax payments on landholdings in Ulster County, "will have a devastating effect on the tax base."

Wednesday, Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) announced that he will ask the legislature to support a bill sponsored by Assemblyman Peter M. Sullivan (R-92nd Dist.) which would require the comptroller to divert from New York City state aid in an amount equal to any taxes owed by the city .

Since then Dwyer reports that Assmblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) "has indicated intentions to introduce appropriate legislation" authorizing the direct payment plan to insure communities in Ulster County the money owed them. Dwyer asks that the local and state legislature support such a measure.

The call for a special act of the state legislture to provide for the creation of an Industrial Development Agency, embracing all of Ulster County, is being made by the county's Industrial Development and Publicity Committee, Charles Scala (R-Dist. 3) chairman. The committee feels that an agency could stimulate industry and subsequently increase employment opportunities and would also place New York State in a competitive position with other states.

The Social Service Committee, Ernest J. Gardner (R-Dist. 5) chairman, asks that the architectural firm of Albert E. Milliken conduct a feasibility and cost estimate study for converting the present infirmary annex into welfare office space.

The move is contemplated since the State Department of Health has waived deficiencies at the infirmary annex with the understanding that the county is considering construction of an 80-bed addition to the new infirmary for a health-related facility.

Other proposals to come before the board when it meets at 4 and 8 p.m. in the Ulster County legislature include:

• Supporting the Federated Sportsmens Club in opposing Environmental Conservation Commissioner Ogden Reid's demotion of former regional director of the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation Warren McKeon.

• Requesting President Gerald R. Ford to sign the local Public Works and Capital investment Act of 1975 which would enable Ulster County to provide much needed capital construction.

• Requiring all county department heads to submit zero-based budgetary requests to the Finance Committee.

• Supporting the National Nuclear Reappraisal Act which calls for a five-year moratorium on development of nuclear reactors.

• Objecting to proposed changes in minimum standards for county jails, called for by the State Department of Correction.

• Providing for appointment of a minority counsel to the legislature.

• Appointing a person to fill the vacancy on the legislature created by the resignation of Robert H. Kuhlmann (R-Dist. 1) The GOP will nominate Frank Spada ad the Democrats, former Legislator Louis Resnick, who lost his bid for re-election last November.

• Appointment of Rose LeFever of Bloomington as associate county historian and Robert Burgher of West Shokan to Ulster County Planning Board.

• Appropriating $11,460 to Ulster County Senior Citizen's Alliance and $11,000 for a nutritional program for the elderly sponsored by the Ulster County Community Action Committee.

• Continuing the rural transportation program for Ulster County senior citizens.

• Providing $746 for the People's Place Project a pilot project in downtown Kingston which is providing transportation and couseling for the elderly.

Gardner Invited to 'Butt Out'

KINGSTON

Answering charges of playing politics in appointing minority committee chairman to the Ulster County Legislature, Louis M. Klein (D-Dist.6) accused Majority Leader Ernest J. Gardner (R-Dist.5) of "sticking his Republican nose into the organization efforts of Democratic legislators."

Klein said Gardner has enough to do leading the GOP legislators. He invited Gardner "to butt out" of Democratic business.

Countering Gardner said that any time the legislature is involved, "I shall certainly stick my Republican nose into any area necessary in order to save taxpayer's money."

Gardner took exception to Klein's use of county stationary and secretarial services to publish his list of minority chairmen. "This is improper use of public money and as an attorney, Klein should know that," he said.

Klein said he never proposed that the minority chairman either be recognized or accorded any status by Gardner. He said the appointments were made to strengthen the Democratic minority, by establishing a mechanism to provide input to its membership, concerning activities of all the committees.

Gardner previously contended that Klein had no right to appoint committee chairmen. Klein agreed today saying he abides by Savago's choices. But, he said, it is unfortunate that in Ulster County it is more important to be a Republican, than it is to be qualified.

Gardner said he is pleased that Klein now understands that it is the legislature chairman who is responsible for appointing committees.

"The function of minority chairmen," Klein said, "is to keep Democratic legislators informed of the activities of all committees within the legislature, Answering Gardner's assertion that duplicating the reports of each minority chairman will be an unnecessary expense to the taxpayers, Klein pointed out that "we have not requested nor will we request any such service."

Fabbie to Step Down

KINGSTON

City Republican Leader Frank Fabbie, figuring that "if you can't do what you set out to do in three years, it's time to give somebody else a chance," has resigned, effective when a successor is named.

Fabbie, officially "vice chairman for city affairs" for the county Republican Committee, was elected city chairman (when there was a "city chairman") in 1972 at a time when Republican fortunes in Kingston were at an all-time low.

"I came in when Brian Smith (a former alderman) was the Lone Ranger," Fabbie said. Smith was the only elected Republican out of 22 elected officials at that time.

Things have improved statistically since then—the Democrats now hold only 18 of 22 seats with the election of four Republican aldermen last year—but the political effect is much the same, total domination. The Democratic mayor and alderman-at-large still carry every district of the city.

Fabbie also cited his activites with the Lions Club as another reason for his resignation. He's third vice chairman in charge of tickets for the Lions Expo, slated for May 11-15 this year. Fabbie said he will retain his post as a 10th Ward Republican committeeman.

County Chairman Albert Spada expressed his regrets over Fabbie's resignation although it obviously came as no surprise. "He told me several months ago," Spada said. Fabbie informed the city committee last week and Spada infomed the county committee last night.

Unlike past years, there appears to be no shortage of candidates to fill the post of GOP city leader. Spada mentioned such names as Peter Graham (attorney for the GOP minority in the Common Council and a First Ward committeeman), Frank Stauble and Emma Aprea, both candidates for legislator last year, James Martin and James Thompson and James DeCicco, the former two being past vice chairmen of the party, the latter the long-time leader in the Ninth Ward.

Asks for Nuclear Reappraisal

KINGSTON

Legislation asking the Ulster County Legislature to support the National Nuclear Reappraisment Act has been filed by Edward Ullmann (D-Dist. 2).

Ullmann will ask the legislature at its Feb. 5 meeting to go on record supporting the act which calls for a five-year moratorium on the development of nuclear reactors until they can be proven beyond a doubt.

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th Dist.) sponsored legislation last year titled the Nuclear Energy Reappraisal Act of 1975 in order to allow a five-year study before contracts are awarded for the nuclear plants.

Ullman, noting that the debate on the safety of nuclear plants continues, feels the citizens of Ulster County have been placed in a position of having to accept the question of serious risk to their health and safety and that of their children, in exchange for dubious economic gains without any opportunity to express themselves on the matter.

Five nuclear power plants are contemplated in the Ulster County area — four in Lloyd and one in Cementon.

Ullmann said the safety, health and economic risks associated with nuclear power in its present state of development are so serious that any decision to permit the construction of nuclear facilities in Ulster County "should clearly represent the choice of the people. The people, he said; because of the lasting and poisonous nature of atomic radiation, "must not speak just for themselves but for future generations."

Ullmann feels more time must be given in order to allow for the development of practical energy sources and energy conservation methods which can serve as a less dangerous alternative.

Hinchey Vote Move Approved

SAUGERTIES

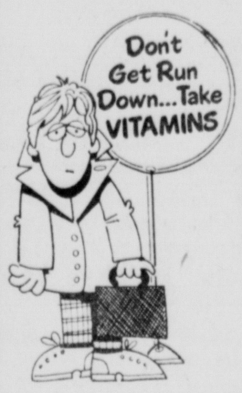

Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) announced today that a resolution which he sponsored to bring electronic voting to the Assembly and an end to so-called "empty chair" voting was overwhelmingly approved by his colleagues by a margin of 135-6.

Said Hinchey, "As of January, 1977, New York will join 40 other state legislatures and the U.S. House of Representatives in the use of an electronic voting system, incorporating the best features of other systems using the latest technologies. The system we contemplate using will be more advanced than any presently in operation, and will save an estimated total of 75 session hours. And an increase in efficiency in the legislative process translates into hard cash savings for New York taxpayers."

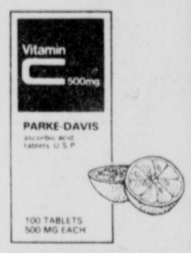

Hinchey said he had "fought hard" for this particular resolution both in Albany as well as in Ulster County during his election campaign, and that he considered his successful sponsorship "one of the chief accomplishments so far in my term of office."

"At present," Hinchey continued, "once an Assemblyman is marked present for the legislative day, his vote is automatically tallied in the affirmative unless he says otherwise. So, regardless of whether or not the legislator is in his seat, his vote is recorded in favor of the particular bill in question. The burden is clearly on those who choose to dissent.

"The electronic voting measure is only one bill in a package of rules changes made by the Assembly last year and this which will help to eliminate some of the ill-conceived legislative practices of past years."

The Hearst Jury...Closed-Door Questioning

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Four jurors were tentatively seated in Patricia Hearst's bank robbery trial Wednesday, but selection of a panel to try the heiress was bogged down by detailed closed-door questioning of each prospective jury member.

U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter's earlier prediction that a jury would be seated in two days proved to be wrong when up to an hour was needed to interrogate prospective jurors individually about any biases or opinions which could prevent them from judging the case impartially.

Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said it was possible the 12 jurors and four alternates could be chosen by Friday, "but if we do, Thursday will be a busy day."

After barring the press from the proceedings at the request of the defense, Carter asked questions of seven members of the panel of 36 chosen by lot as the first prospective jurors. Among the 22 women and 14 men were a dozen housewives, a number of retired men, a dental assistant, a carpenter, a woman employe of the YWCA, a machinist, a San Francisco city employe, several divorcees, a bank employe and a retired Navy man.

Of the seven, four were tentatively seated and three were excused.

Those excused were dismissed "for cause" — that is, it was established there was something in their background, their predisposition in the case or other reasons why they should not serve.

It was expected that once Carter finished interrogating the 36, he would return to open court. At that time the prosecution and defense would be able to use their "peremptory challenges" — dismissal of a juror just because they don't like his looks or have a hunch he might already have formed an opinion about whether Miss Hearst is guilty or innocent.

The auburn-haired defendant is charged with the armed robbery of a San Francisco bank branch along with four members of the Symbionese Liberation Army which kidnaped her nearly two years ago. If found guilty, she could be sentenced to 35 years in prison.

Carter's questions came from a list of 152 proposed by the prosecution and defense, and while he was not obligated to ask all of them, the lengthy questioning indicated he was asking many.

One of the excused witnesses, Mrs. Wilma F. Brookhauser, said the question of whether the 21-year-old granddaughter of legendary newspaper owner William Randolph Hearst had participated in her own kidnaping had come up. She said she told the judge she had suspicions Miss Hearst either helped plan it or had advance knowledge of it.

She also said she felt she had been prejudiced by seeing photographs of Miss Hearst standing with a gun in the bank she is accused of robbing.

"Reflecting about it, I thought what a shame — such a pretty girl and such an opportunity she had," Mrs. Brookhauser said.

Ford Economy Drive Derailed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's election-year economy drive has sustained a major setback with congressional passage of a $45 billion measure funding two government agencies and a variety of social programs over his veto.

The measure also contains the strongest antibusing language passed by Congress so far to prohibit the Department of Health, Education and Welfare — but not the courts — from busing students beyond neighborhood schools.

The Senate voted 70-24 — seven more than the required two-thirds — to override the Ford veto Wednesday. The measure automatically became law since the House voted 310-113 to override on Tuesday.

The bill provides money for HEW and the Labor Department during the 15 months ending Sept. 30. It was about $1 billion more than Ford asked, although within congressional spending targets for the current fiscal year.

Seventeen Senate Republicans joined 53 Democrats in overriding the veto.

Ford, in his veto message, called the bill "a classic example of unchecked spending" and said it was "inconsistent with fiscal discipline and with effective restraint on the growth of government."

But congressional backers said the President's proposals would cut spending below last year's levels and not even allow for inflation. Another factor was the popularity of social programs carried in the legislation — especially in an election year.

"It seems that everytime that Congress works its will on domestic programs, people programs ... we hear a resounding 'no' from the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue," said floor manager Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., in reference to previous Ford vetoes.

Ford has vetoed 23 bills, including six pocket vetoes, during this Congress. The Labor-HEW measure is only the fourth veto to be overturned and the first this year.

Sen. Milton Young, R-N.D., the only senator to speak in favor of sustaining the veto, said, "These greater expenditures will increase the debt and the deficit which are already too high."

Other Senators, however, said funding for social programs carried in the legislation has been delayed too long. These programs include child and maternal health, mental health funding, nutrition programs, rural housing programs and money for cancer, diabetes and heart disease research.

The antibusing language in the bill prohibits HEW from ordering school districts to bus students beyond the school nearest their homes for integration purposes. Neither court-ordered busing nor busing initiated under threat of court order — which constitute the vast majority of cases — would be affected.

Even OPEC Has Money Problems

PARIS (UPI) — The oil cartel nations have trimmed their $1 billion aid program for underdeveloped nations to $800 million, complaining of financial problems of their own.

Two of the 13 member nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said they could not contribute to the fund.

According to official sources, OPEC cut back its billion-dollar pledge Wednesday when Indonesia and Ecuador said they were unable to participate. Other countries offered smaller contributions than anticipated, they said.

In addition, the OPEC finance ministers made no commitment to extend the fund beyond this year.

Conference officials said several delegations complained the oil nations already have contributed heavily to development aid through other programs — in fact donating more than the industrialized Western countries.

OPEC nations, according to a Jan. 19 U.S. Treasury estimate, will take in more than $100 billion in oil revenue this year.

The OPEC decision was a disappointment to Iran and Venezuela, who cosponsored the concept of the special fund as a means of strengthening the developing nations' solidarity, sources said. Venezuela and Iran had sought a five-year aid program.

In a brief communique, the OPEC conference said the decision on the aid program was unanimous. The statement said the aid will be in the form of interest-free, long-term loans, but gave no details.

Staley: Return Art Film

HIGHLAND

District Attorney Francis J. Vogt has been ordered by Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley to retrun films, projectors and other equipment his office seized last fall from the Highland Art Cinema.

Armed with search warrants, the DA's office and police confiscated X-rated films and arrested the projectionist, Steve Cardinal of Newburgh, on obscenity charges under 235 of the penal code last October.

Justice Staley ruled that police acted in an unconstitutional manner. Citing article 410 of the penal law, he ruled the issuance of a seizure warrant was a pre-determination of obscenity. Under article 235, he said a jury must decide if material is obscene. He suggested that Vogt was seeking to have the court synthesize 235 with 410 so as to amend the definition of pornography.

Vogt said he will appeal the case to the highest court.

The plaintiff, Plaza Development Corp. which owns Highland Art Cinema in Highland, was accused Oct. 16 of commiting the crime of obscenity. The raid on the movie house was the result of a month of investigation which came about as a result of public outcry in the Highland area over the theatre and the showing of alleged poronographic films.

Plaza Development claimed it is financially unable to replace the projectors and was forced to close its doors. If the seizures were to be continued, it said, it would be forced to close permanently.

Plaza charged that the seizures are a "politically motivated pattern of harrassment" to force the movie house out of business. It claimed further that 410 of the penal law is unconstitutional and deprives persons of the rights and liberties afforded under the first, fourth and 14th amendments.

At the time of the seizure, the police seized two films, "SOS" and "Sweet Agony" as well as two projectors. Lloyd Town Justice Gary Palmer issued the warrant after personally reviewing the films and concluding that they violated obscenity law.

On Oct. 20, another projector and three reels were seized on a warrant issued by Saugerties Town Justice Robert Schirmer.

Arrested in the first raid were Cardinal and Gordon DePew, of Highland, cashier.

The Showboat . . .

One of Kingston's well-known sights, the Driftwood Floating Theater showboat, became a victim of winter over the weekend.

Ice gnawing at the ancient wooden hull sent the showboat to the bottom of the Rondout Creek. Pumping efforts by the Kingston Fire Dept. were in vain.

We are hopeful that Captain Edward C. Furbush, owner of the showboat, will be successful in his efforts to bring the barge back to the surface, restore it and continue giving area residents an integral part of Americana—entertainment.

. . . And The Clearwater

Despite the fact it is less than seven years old, the Hudson River sloop Clearwater is on the verge of literally sinking.

A minimum of $55,000 is needed by mid-April to pay for the ship's overhaul.

Unless the monies are raised, the good ship Clearwater will be in dry dock this year for our country's Bicentennial celebration.

A massive fund-raising effort is being conducted to raise enough money for the Clearwater to take part in the gala celebration.

We wish those behind this venture luck and hope to see the sloop that Pete Seeger made famous again sail along the majestic Hudson River and remind Hudson Valley residents of our rich historical heritage.

An Obvious Answer

Dear Editor:

In answer to the gentlemen who thinks he is getting ripped-off because he has to pay for the gas that is left in the hose after the nozzle is shut off:

The answer is so obvious, yet reflects a part of human nature.

It is easy to see that we are paying for the gas left in the hose, but not so easy to realize as soon as the man starts pumping the gas into the tank, we are getting the gas left in the hose for free, which incidentaly, someone else paid for. It all comes out even in the end.

A Disturbed Reader

Dear Editor:

I was very disturbed when I read your letter of explanation to Mr. Singer that appeared in the "Freeman's" Readers Write column on Wednesday, January 21, 1976.

In the letter, you stated, "I withheld it from publication because I didn't agree with you" as the reason for initially not publishing Mr. Singer's letter about the comments he made at the City of Kingston Budget Hearing.

I was disturbed because I was not aware that an Editor's agreement was a prerequisite for publication of a letter to the Editor. I suggest, if it were, a Readers Write Letter that takes issue with the way the "Freeman" reported a particular incident would always appear as an advertisement.

In Mr. Singer's letter, only one out of six paragraphs was devoted to criticizing the "Freeman's" reporting. The others were devoted to issues that concern a lot of taxpayers. The letter clearly warranted publication when first received.

As you finally realized, the "Freeman's" "...obligation to see that concerned citizens are heard..." should always receive higher priority than personal agreement. That priority is even more acute considering the "Freeman" is the only publication serving this area.

Sincerely,
George C. Mills III,
Hurley

Shoveling The Sidewalks

Dear Editor:

I read M. H. Wards letter about the sidewalks and I agree with her. However, in all justice to people who do not shovel sidewalks I suppose they reason that there ane many places in kingston who do not even have sidewalks. People have to walk in the road in those neighborhoods also.

Everyone today is afraid to shovel snow because there is so much talk about heart attacks.

I am retired and exercise daily to keep in shape. In the summer I play golf and in the winter I bowl. In between times I have a garden, and this time of year I enjoy shoveling snow. I walk around the city streets from a mile to two miles a day. I must admit that Mrs. Ward has a point as far as some side walks are concerned.

People with beautiful homes do not bother to shovel their sidewalks. Perhaps they do not have the energy or time to shovel themselves, but they could hire a boy or an unemployed man. It might give someone a break who needs money.

I prefer to shovel my own driveway just for the exercise. Nevertheless occasionally a boy comes along and wants to help. If he makes me a resonable price I let him help just to give him a break.

If some of these people with nice big homes would keep the boy busy, I would not have to hire him.

Pride, Not Schools

Dear Editor:

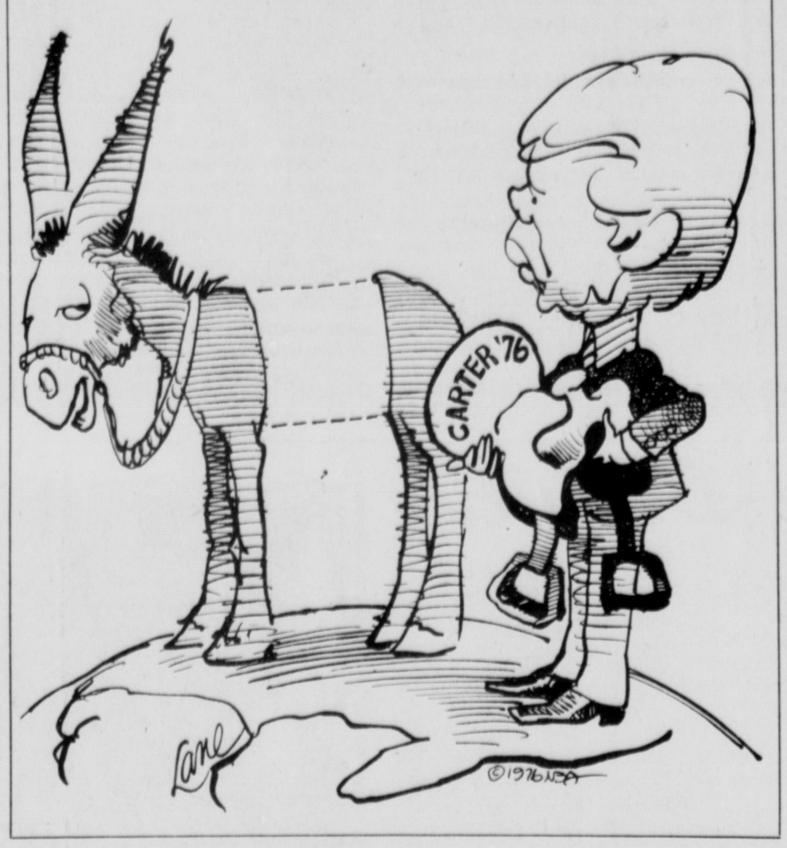

In reply to the plea for the burdened taxpayers to support the construction of a new high school, let us look at the other side of the coin. First the idea of a new school was vetoed by the voters, next with people having a hard time feeding their families, keeping a roof over their heads, they are not going to want to pay for anything let alone a new school. We have had schools right in Kingston closed—then sold (if kept, they could have been utilized). Buildings should not be equated with learning.

It was pointed out that the schools have so many expanded programs that it was a main cause for overcrowding. Well, I state now as I've stated in the past—if the schools went back to basic teaching and out of social programs, the children would benefit and so would the taxpayers. As it stands now we have kids graduating from high school who can't read, write, spell or do anything except tell everyone what's wrong with the United States and sneer at everyone who works for a living.

New schools are not what's needed—a return to pride in learning is far more important.

'That's The Uncommitted Part'

The Great Manhunt

DAVIS, CALIF. — One must suppose that, like so many other vague psychological maladies plaguing the land, the general skepticism on the question of who killed JFK is really in the nature of a cognate question: who really ordered Watergate? Who really was guilty of aggression at the Tonkin Gulf? Who really started the Cold War? What were the motives of the Founding Fathers? Who-in-the-hell (that is the idiomatic way of putting it) is God, and what-in-the-hell is He up to?

Going the rounds of the colleges, one comes upon a general skepticism, the particular formulations of which reflect, really, a generic bewilderment at least, cynicism at worst. Perhaps more than any other single concrete question, the question arises: Weren't we all bamboozled by the Warren Commission's Report on the killing of JFK? The most popular current assault on the Warren Commission is a paperback by Robert Sam Anson, a detailed examination of which was recently published in National Review by Mr. David Belin, who served as Counsel with the Warren Commission and wrote a book reaffirming the findings of the Commission a season ago.

Consider Anson's handling of the circumstances surrounding the murder of Officer Tippit, the other human being murdered in Dallas on November 22, 1963. Both Anson and the Warren Commission agree that the murder of Tippit was crucial. If Oswald did it, Oswald also killed Kennedy unless an inventive alternative surpassing the reach of current imagination comes through with an explanation that provides a surrealistic alternative.

Mr. Belin interviewed Johnny Calvin Brewer, the manager of a shoe store in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas. Brewer, under oath, testified that he was listening to the radio while working in his store and heard the news flash that a police officer had been shot about eight blocks away. He then heard a police siren. At that moment a stranger walked into the lobby outside the shoe store, paused a moment, turned around walked down the street, and entered the Texas Theatre, a few doors down. Brewer, suspicious, followed him, walked into the dark movie theatre, then back to the cashier, asking her to call the police. The cashier complied, and, the police arriving, the houselights inside the theatre were turned on. "I looked out from the curtains and saw the man," Brewer testified; i.e., the man who had dodged into the lobby outside his store after Tippet's killing.

"Then what happened?" Belin asked him.

He described the police rushing in. Several of them surrounded Brewer, and asked whether he could identify the suspect. Yes, he said, pointing to the man he could now recognize, the lights having been turned on.

"Then what did you see?"

Brewer: "Well, I saw this policeman approach Oswald (by this time of course the stranger's name was known) and Oswald stood up and I heard some hollering . . . (and) Oswald hit Patrolman McDonald . . ."

Patrolman McDonald knocked Oswald back to his seat; Oswald pulled out a gun; was overwhelmed, and taken to the Dallas Police Station and booked for the murder of Officer Tippit.

Here is Anson's account, in his best-selling book — the kind of thing the students get their neuroses from:

"McDonald couldn't be sure who he was supposed to be looking for. As McDonald scanned the theatre, a man sitting near the front spoke up quietly. The man the police were looking for, he said, was sitting on the ground floor, in the center, about three rows from the back . . . The police had their man. As they led him away the man in the front row who had fingered him rose from his seat, walked outside, and quietly disappeared."

In pursuit of conspiracy, the author Anson does his best to conceal from the reader the graphic line that led from Brewer's identification of Oswald at the shoe store, on through to his identification of him to the police, including the aggressive conduct of Oswald on being questioned. Given this kind of license in writing a book, one would not have much trouble in casting doubt on whether Neil Armstrong set foot on the moon, or whether it was really JFK who delivered the Inaugural Address that nowadays makes Hubert Humphrey and other candidates for the presidency blush with amnesia.

Why? There is a horrible free-enterprise explanation for it. It's what the people want — the students, for instance. On CBS's "60 Minutes," a former executive of CIA reveals that a lecture agent told him he could make $10,000 a year defending the CIA, and ten times that denouncing it. It's hard, in the American tradition, to get mad at con-men. But easier to get mad at con-men who present themselves, as Anson and his sposnors do, as devotees of the truth.

Ford: Caretaker Of the Daring?

WASHINGTON — The most politically revealing fact about Treasury Secretary William Simon's audacious tax reform proposal is that it evinced a private telephone call of congratulations from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy but none from President Ford.

There was no such call from the Oval Office because encouraging Simon's scheme — eliminating all personal income tax deductions in return for dramatically lowered rates — is today the last thing Mr. Ford wants. Instead of mentioning it in his State of the Union message, the President urged that still more tax preferences (for laudable social purposes, to be sure) be jammed into the chaotic Internal Revenue code. So far, the White House won't even flash a green light for Treasury studies on Simon's ideas.

By flashing a red light instead, Mr. Ford balks at attempting a risky but titillating political coup. As an exercise in laissez faire capitalism, Simon's plan is immune from theoretical conservative attack. But it also wins applause from Teddy Kennedy by simultaneous closing thousands of tax loopholes. Gerald R. Ford could be transformed into the election-year champion of the common man against the special interests.

To embrace Simon's plan, however, would confront the President with mighty interests dependent on tax deductions — housing, the church, charities. Rather than face that confrontation, Mr. Ford delivered an especially soporific State of the Union address which, while avoiding high-risk ventures such as Ronald Reagan's $90 billion fund transfer, did not escape humdrum Main Street Republicanism.

Thus, behind Mr. Ford's flinching from the Simon plan is not ideology but reflective caution instilled during 25 years in congressional politics.

Ex-financier Bill Simon is certainly no closet liberal. Privately called a "primitive" by administration economists, he is the cabinet's resident troglodyte and unreconstructed champion of the private enterprise system. But as a blooded veteran of Wall Street, Simon believes risk-taking may be needed to save that system.

Without White House approval, he suggested such a risk by unveiling his non-deduction system — long a dream of tax reformers — to the national tax foundation Dec. 3. To Simon, the dead hand of the federal government would be removed from business and personal decision making in this country.

The congratulatory call from Kennedy was one of many from liberals. Rep. Abner Mikva of Illinois, a liberal Democratic tax reformer and critic of Simon on the Ways and Means Committee, wrote Simon in approval ("The only thing I'm sorry about is that it's called the Simon tax reform plan," Mikva later told us).

Simon's best friends on Capitol Hill were considerably less elated. Support from the likes of Kennedy and Mikva, they warned Simon, meant liberal designs to use his reform for yet higher proportionate taxation on upper brackets and business and further redistribution of income.

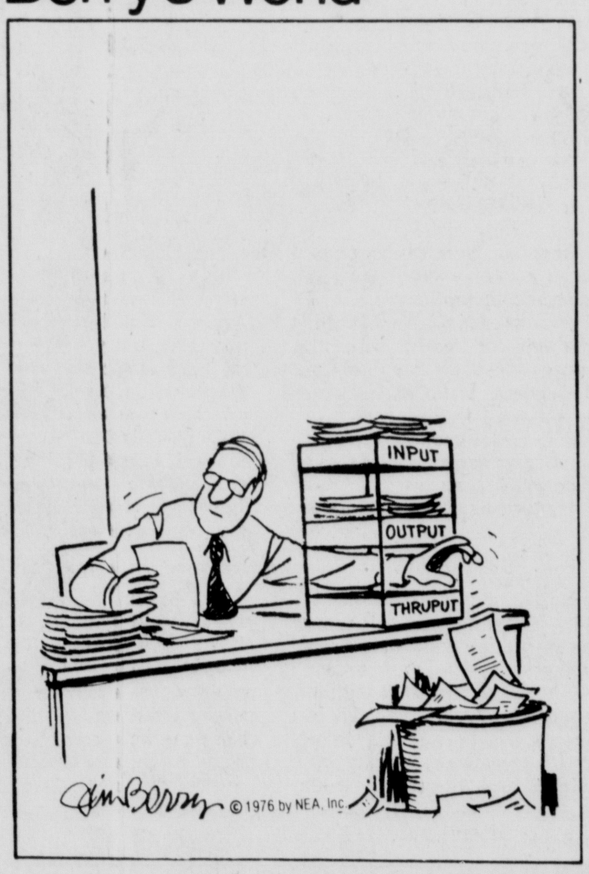

Rep. Barber Conable of New York, a top Republican tax strategist and normally a close Simon ally, vigorously opposed the plan. So did Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, now the key tax writer in Congress as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Both predicted ferocious opposition from interest groups.

What's more, enthusiasm for the plan among cautious presidential advisers matched the January weather outside. But Simon was not deterred. On Saturday afternoon, Jan. 17, he again asked the President to mention the idea in his State of the Union message two nights later. Mr. Ford put him off by saying he would rather bring it up separately, if at all.

Taking this conventional course, President Ford avoided stirring up either hornets' nests or listeners' interest the night of Jan. 19. One senior Republican Congressman, a devoted loyalist of the President, told us the end result was just what Mr. Ford wanted most to avoid: the image of a caretaker President.

Thanks to Simon's inability to take no for an answer, the President will be pressed again and again on the tax plan in months to come. If he embraces it, he can count on outrage from interests, irritation from congressional leaders and quite possibly defeat. But the adjective describing his presidency might well change from "caretaker" to "daring."

'Let's Make A New Treaty'

WASHINGTON—The United States has just signed a new military treaty with Spain. In exchange we will, of course, supply the Spanish with armaments so we can keep our bases there.

It seems that we can't make a deal with any country without giving them arms in exchange for friendship. There is a suspicion that the State Department has been influenced by all the TV game shows and it seems to me that since the American people pay for most of the military aid, we should at least be permitted to watch the U.S. hand out the stuff on television in a game show format.

This is just a suggestion. Every week the State Department would produce a TV program called "Let's Make a Treaty."

Henry Kissinger would be the master of ceremonies and the audience would be made up of ambassadors from all the countries of the "free world."

He would call out a number and the ambassador from that nation would jump up on the stage.

Henry would say, "Where are you from, sir?"

"Zambia," the ambassador would reply says, "do you want to keep the $100 excitedly. (Applause)

"All right. I'm going to ask you a question. If you can answer it correctly I will give you $100 million. Are you ready?"

The ambassador, jumping up and down, says "Yes, yes."

"The question is: 'Who is the President of the United States?' "

The ambassador hesitates. "Gerry Ford?"

"That is correct!" Henry shouts, and he counts out $100 million. The ambassador hugs and kisses Mr. Kissinger as the audience goes wild.

"Now don't go away," says Henry. "You can keep the $100 million or give it back to me in exchange for what is behind one of the three curtains over there. Joan Braden, will you tell us some of the prizes that are behind the curtains?"

"Henry, we have the new version of the Hawk missile, a 1976 Super Sherman tank, a year's supply of cruise missiles, a complete nuclear energy plant which will be installed absolutely free, and a squadron of F-15 fighter planes."

"All right, Mr. Ambassador," Henry million or do you want to go for the prizes behind the curtains?"

The ambassador clutching the money looks out at the audience. "Keep the money," some ambassadors scream. Others yell, "Go for the curtain."

The ambassador says to Henry, "Can I consult with my government?"

"I'm sorry, we don't have time. What's it going to be?"

The ambassador hands back the $100 million. "I'll go for what's behind the curtain."

The audience applauds loudly.

"All right," Henry says. "He's going for what's behind the curtain. We have curtain number one, curtain number two and curtain number three. Which one will you choose?"

The ambassador hesitates as the audience shouts out, "TWO!" "ONE!" "THREE!"

Finally, he says, "Curtain number three."

The curtain opens and there is a pile of rotten wheat.

The audience groans.

"Well, Mr. Ambassador, it looks like you made a mistake. But since you've been such a good sport we've got a consolation prize for you. Joan, what's the consolation prize?"

Ms. Braden pushes away the pile of rotten wheat and behind it is a brand-new nuclear submarine.

Henry, grinning says, "You gave up $100 million in cash, but you have won a new nuclear submarine which is worth $450 million! Here are the keys to it."

The audience goes crazy as the ambassador jumps up and down and rushes over to the nuclear submarine and climbs up on the conning tower.

Henry, beaming, says to the audience, "Well, that's it for tonight, folks. If you are an accredited member of any freedom-loving country in the world and you would like to be on 'Let's Make a Treaty,' write to me at the State Department for tickets. All the prizes given away on this program were donated through the courtesy of the American taxpayer in the interests of world peace. Thank you, God bless you, and we'll see you all next week."

Gallup Poll

Big Race Near a Tie

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, the current Democratic frontrunner, has moved into a virtual tie with President Gerald Ford in the latest nationwide test election.

Ford currently receives the vote of 48 per cent of registered voters to 46 per cent for Humphrey, with 6 per cent undecided. The percentages are so close that, statistically, neither man can be said to have the advantage.

Humphrey has narrowed the margin since the previous test election conducted in early December, when the President led 51 to 39 per cent.

WALLACE HD BELOW

When Gov. George Wallace is included in the latest test election as a possible third-party candidate, Ford and Humphrey remain in close contention — Ford receiving 36 per cent of the vote of registered voters to 37 per cent for Humphrey. Wallace himself receives 23 per cent.

Although Wallace draws support from both major party candidates, the cumulative evidence, based on three test elections over the past six months, suggests that he hurts Ford more than he does Humphrey.

Following is the question asked to determine preferences between Ford and Humphrey:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held today. If President Gerald Ford were the Republican candidate and Sen. Hubert Humphrey were the Democratic candidate, which would you like to see win?" (If the respondent is undecided, this question is also asked: "As of today, do you lean more to Ford, the Republican, or to Humphrey, the Democrat?"

To measure Wallace's appeal and impact on the two major party candidates, this question was asked:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held today. If President Gerald Ford were the Republican candidate and Sen. Hubert Humphrey were the Democratic candidate and Gov. George Wallace were the candidate of a third party, which would you like to see win?"

Following are the results of the latest trial heats and trends:

Unemployment in Britain

LONDON (UPI) — The jobless queues in jbritain are growing ominously.

They are already looming as a serious political hazard for Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his Labor government.

The mid-January jobless total was 1,430,369 — an increase of nearly 228,000 over December and highest since World War II.

That means 6.1 per cent of the nation's work force now is unemployed, a grim reminder to older Britons of the "hunger days" of the 1930s depression when the country had more than two million unemployed.

The government admits gloomily the situation is likely to get even worse and that 1.5 million jobless are likely this spring.

Britain now has the highest unemployment rate of any Common Market country except Ireland and Belgium and is approaching the rate of more than 7 per cent in the United States.

How Much Should We Know?

William Colby

Rep. Otis Pike

How Much Secrecy Does the CIA Need?

Intelligence needs some secrecy, not total secrecy as it was in the past, but it does need some. President Ford once said he would be delighted to share our secrets with 214 million Americans provided they didn't go outside of that group. But that is not a practical way of doing business. I think we can arrive at a necessary compromise between those secrets that are necessary to provide intelligence as a means to protect America and those secrets that aren't necessary.

There is no question in my mind that some secrecy is essential to a healthy and a strong America. But I believe very, very strongly that this country has gone way overboard on the issue of secrecy. We perform acts that the American people would rise up against if they were aware of them. There has to be a moral content in the conduct of our foreign affairs. If we are going to conduct our society with the kind of secrecy with which the Russians conduct theirs, haven't they really, in a very large sense, already won?

Did the CIA, in the past, overstep its bounds?

Some years ago, intelligence was one of those unpleasant necessities that was to be carried on over in a corner. Its supervision was poor. It was given very fuzzy guidelines and told to go out and do the job. It did the job but there were mistakes made. There were even misdeeds. The work that is under way today is the process of bringing intelligence within our constitut onal framework. It will be done by better guidelines, by better supervision.

As a result of our inquiry, my personal evaluation of the CIA has improved. The CIA was not a rogue elephant going off by itself and doing things. It was carrying out orders which were given to it. I tend much more to question those that gave the orders than those who carried them out. I think less highly, perhaps, of the FBI than I did before I started the investigation.

Are covert operations necessary and should they be separated from intelligence gathering?

"I believe covert actions are a response to the world in which we live. During the colder days of the Cold War, there was cause for a great deal of effort in this field. In recent years, we have done much less. In the future, there will be occasions in which a little quiet help to some friends can ensure their control of a country and its military weapons. During the 1920s, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson closed up a code breaking unit because he said that gentlemen don't read each other's mail. Twenty years later, Stimson (by then Secretary of War) was reading as much German and Japanese mail as he could. We had an experiment one time 25 years ago in which the covert action operations were separated from intelligence gathering. They spent half their time trying to find each other. This was really not very productive.

I am not opposed to all covert actions. I think some are meaningful, useful and proper. There are covert actions that come very close to being pure intelligence. To set up a new bureaucracy for the purpose of conducting covert actions separate from intelligence gathering would be rather meaningless. What I hope is that good oversight legislation is passed. If you could have a new joint committee on intelligence with a revolving membership, you could get reasonable oversight. You would also make it possible for the CIA not to have to brief six separate committees. The difficulties are largely political. Hell hath no fury like the committee chairman whose jurisdiction is threatened and you can't establish the kind of committee I would like to see without removing the jurisdiction of those six committees.

Should the CIA's budget be published?

No. We would repeat the experience of the Atomic Energy Commission which started out in 1947 with a single line figure and last year's budget was 15 pages of detailed data on our weapons expenditures. I think the same thing would happen to our intelligence structure and we would be providing details which would be of great assistance to our adversaries.

I am wholly in favor of publishing at least the total figure for the CIA budget. I will say that the figures given to us, even in the most secret of documents, don't represent the total spent. We have to do more than just publish the figures they give us. We have to analyze them.

Has recent publicity hurt the CIA?

There has been some effect on our intelligence gathering as a result of publicity — not just from investigating committees but from other leaks that have occurred. Individuals have decided that they no longer can risk working with us. But I think the products of our intelligence are still of the highest quality.

I think that we would all like crime to disappear from the streets of America but I don't think we accomplish anything in that regard by ignoring it. If America is so weak that it cannot stand the truth about itself then I think it is far weaker than either Mr. Colby or I believe it to be.

Rocky a Lame Duck Who Still Has Wings

Author's Note: Though in near isolation as a lame duck vice president, Nelson Rockefeller is still keeping his power base, just in case Ford withdraws or the GOP convention is deadlocked.

WASHINGTON D.C. KFS) — Vice President Nelson Rockefeller's withdrawal from the presidential picture has been the most successful act of his brief tenure — he not only removed himself as an issue, he has practically vanished from sight.

Rockefeller's low profile is a result of both his own efforts to avoid controversial issues and a decline of press interest in him now that he is a lame duck.

President Ford is no longer very interested in Rockefeller, either. Ford's relief when Rockefeller announced he would not seek to remain on the ticket was painfully apparent. He has not asked Rockefeller to help in his re-election campaign either with speeches or private political advice, although he has asked all of his Cabinet officers to make campaign talks for him.

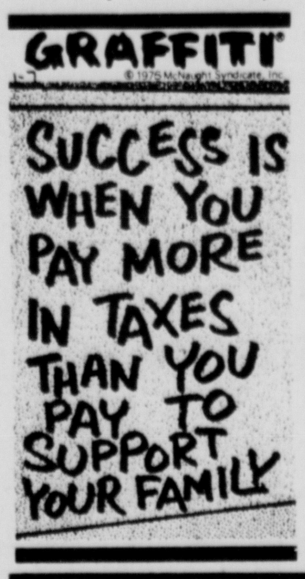

Effectively Isolated

Ford has effectively isolated Rockefeller to New York. The only Rockefeller campaign effort for Ford currently scheduled is the organizing of a $1,000-a-person fund-raiser in Manhattan to be held Jan. 28.

The affair, to take place in Rockefeller's elegant apartment, will be the first major fund-raising project for the President in that state. "It was impossible to do before this," a Rockefeller adviser observed wryly.

Ford was highly unpopular in the state last year for opposing a federal bailout of New York City to prevent a default and for a series of blunt remarks criticizing the city. Emotions ran so high that the state party leadership decided to form an uncommitted delegation to the convention, in order to prevent a rebellion that might hand the delegation to Ronald Reagan.

The antagonism subsided somewhat, however, when the President finally compromised and signed into law in December a $2.3 billion seasonal loan bill which prevented the city's default. And the quickening pace of the presidential campaign has forced moderate Republicans to face up to the fact they would be more comfortable with Ford the next four years than they would be with the more conservative Reagan.

The truth is that Rockefeller is still an asset to Ford in liberal New York, where Rockefeller controls the state party, but nowhere else.

Just In Case

Rockefeller will spend much of his time in the coming months consolidating his hold on the New York party, with speeches before a variety of affairs to raise money for local GOP organizations and GOP legislative candidates. He wants to retain a firm power base, just in case the convention is deadlocked or Reagan forces Ford out of the contest early enough for another GOP candidate to enter the field.

Sources close to Rockefeller indicate he has not lost his ambition for the presidency and in the right circumstances might make another try for it.

Rockefeller therefore plans to remain politically active within the party, even though detached from the Ford campaign. He is willing to speak at Republican fund-raising affairs for local candidates across the country, wherever he is asked. He has already been asked to speak before GOP organizations identified with the liberal wing of the party in Michigan, Kentucky, North Carolina and Georgia.

Currently, Rockefeller is being so low-key one can barely hear the tune. But if Ford should get into trouble, Rockefeller will be prepared to turn up the amplifier.

UCCC Offers New Home Courses

STONE RIDGE

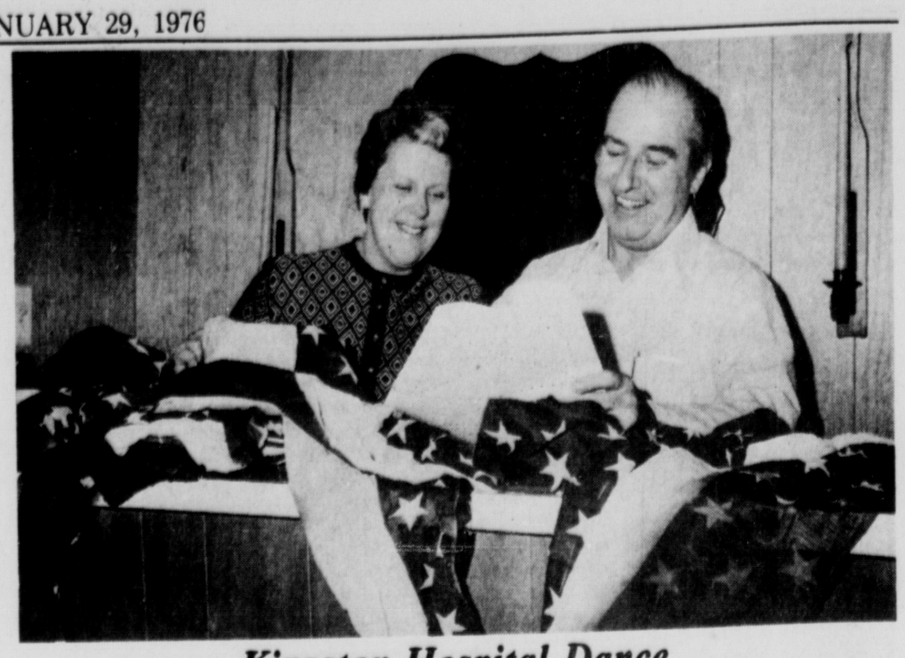

Credit-free courses, in individual homes and in wide selection, are now being offered by Ulster County Community College under its Continuing Education program.

Under the program, the mother of school-aged children could host a credit-free course during school hours for herself, her friends and neighbors. Anyone with adequate space can assemble 10 or 12 people in their home who are interested in learning a particular subject, and the college will deliver the course at a cost to each person comparable to a credit-free course at the college or a Life-Long Learning Center. Presently, UCCC offers a wide variety of credit-free courses at its Stone Ridge campus and learning centers in Kingston, Saugerties and Boiceville.

Under the in-home program, UCCC can deliver, as one example, a Gourmet Cooking instructor to an individual kitchen, even if it can accommodate only six people.

Further information can be had by calling the Office for Continuing Education at Ulster County Community College.

It is also possible for the school to arrange a training program for inspectors in local manufacturing plants; teach bread baking techniques to homemakers; provide exercise (for mind or body) to business office groups during lunch hours.

Kingston Hospital Dance

Tickets and reservations for the Kingston hospital Dance are going very quickly, according to the chairman, Mrs. Thomas Buckley. The dance, which is usually a complete sellout, will he beld Saturday, Feb. 7, 9 p.m. at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The theme this year will be "America the Beautiful" with decoration again under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seegar (above).

A highlight of the evening will be the awarding of a trip to either Philadelphia or Boston, courtesy of the Kingston Travel Agency. A tour of either of these histroic cities can be the outstanding event of this Bicentenniel year. For further information contact Mrs. George Washbourne, chairman of awards.

Charlie Lee will provide the music for dancing. For reservations or additional tickets contact either Mrs. Leroy Stoothoff of Woodstock or Mrs. Lawrence Brown.

Life

The Man Who Enacts a Legend

DALLAS (UPI) — Hal Holbrook's portrayal of Mark Twain places a weight on the actor far heavier than the responsibility to entertain. The show has made Holbrook the custodian of perhaps America's best-loved literary legend.

Holbrook's stage presentations of "Mark Twain Tonight" provide for many their last encounter with Twain's thoughts and personality since perhaps a childhood reading of "Huckleberry Finn."

"When I first started doing this show, I remember it was intimidating to think of the weight," Holbrook said. "When I began, I was in it in such a small way that nobody was making any waves about me.

"I was playing in such small places all over that I never felt that I was doing a hell of a lot to carry any legend anywhere.

"When the thing got to be very successful, I was aware of what was taking place. All I could do was to do him the way I think he would like.

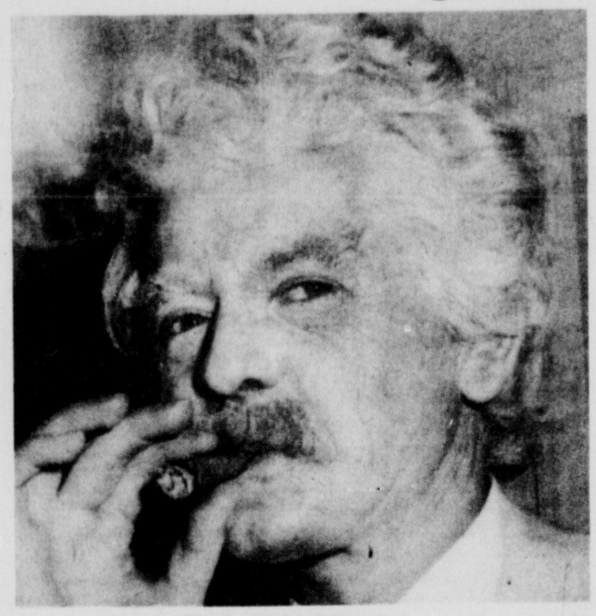

"I have to interpret Twain with my head and my heart. Just as you would read him and get your own ideas," Holbrook said. "I have to leave it up to the intelligence and imagination of people to determine whether it's acceptable or not."

The show has surely been acceptable. Holbrook has made a living doing Twain since 1948 when he was part of a two-person show in which he portrayed Twain and five other characters.

"I didn't know anything about Twain. I had to read just to find out the most superficial things, and in reading about him I became very interested," Holbrook said.

To do the show alone, Holbrook knew "I had to develop an entire evening of Twain. The only way I knew to do it was to read everything he wrote. It was just a long job of sifting.

"There has been a rather enormous editing job done on the material to bring it into present focus. I select — and I have to take the responsibility for that," he said.

HAL HOLBROOK

In the early years, said Holbrook, "I was trying to squeeze into this person, creating physical things, a walk, a voice, arm movements, everything. It was mechanical.

"Then there comes a time when you hit up against a wall. It's a click, a relaxing, when you release your own energies, your own personality, your thoughts, your feelings. That is when the character takes on life.

"Oddly enough, that was when I opened in a little theater in New York and became very successful with it. Now when I'm out there on the stage, I don't think any more about being Mark Twain than I do about being Hal Holbrook. The two have merged for me now."

Yet, Holbrook said that regardless of his research and effort he believes Twain would be appalled with "Mark Twain Tonight."

"I don't think he would be pleased with anybody doing him," Holbrook said. "I think he would say, 'What does that jerk think he is doing? Good Lord, I was no more like that than the man in and the moon' and Twain would resent the money I'm making.

"I think the thing that would probably please Twain is that he is still a new author to some people. That he is regarded as something to discover. That he said things that, in a sense, could have been said about today.

"He is fresh, you see. That would please him.

"And the fact that the estate was still making royalties would please him most of all."

Acupuncture, Ancient Chinese Science

"The superior doctor prevents illness; the mediocre doctor cures imminent illness; the inferior doctor treats actual illness."

Chinese Proverb

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON

An Ulster County physician and three dentists are among 81 individuals in New York State who have successfully completed the requirements for certification in the 4,000-year-old practice of acupuncture, according to announcement by the New York State Education Department.

Newly certified are: Psychiatrist Dr. Streamson Chua, Lake Katrine, whose Chinese father and grandfather practiced acupuncture; Dr. Morris Fletcher, DDS and Dr. Walter Meyer, DDS, both of Kingston; and Dr. Jerome Jacob Miller, DDS, of Woodstock.

Certified physicians and dentists were required to complete 100 hours of instruction in programs of acupuncture in New York City.

Does acupuncture really work? In China, Japan, Europe, South America and the Soviet Union, many patients and doctors are convinced that it does even though they are not sure HOW it works.

What western medicine cannot do for such things as sweating and tennis elbow— or relief of cancer pain, acupuncture reportedly can. It does not cure but it does serve as an anesthesia and as a means of "temporarily" relieving pain. Although it is rapidly gaining popularity here, it can't work miracles and will probably take a long time to gain the acceptance that it enjoys abroad.

Success has been noted in the treatment of arthritis, bursitis, gout and nueraliga. Persons who have been driven to suicide to escape the immense pain of trigeminal nueralgia have received relief through acupuncture. So have migraine sufferers and those with hay fever, sinitus, asthma and allergies.

It does not help cure cancer or heal fractures.

It does help in cases of insommnia, anxiety, hysteria and even schizophrenia.

Cancer patients can however be saved a great deal of pain, be kept ambulatory, avoid drug addiction and keep their dignity. Because there is a strong emotional element in long standing illnesses such as migraine headaches, a combination of acupuncture and psychiatry is often to the advantage of the patient.

Acupuncturists always take a full and thorough medical history of a patient first, to rule out diseases such as cancer. A strong diagnostic workup is recommended and acupuncture is rarely the first choice of treatment and reportedly shouldn't be. In some cases however, acupuncture is tried before surgery because "acupuncture is harmless." When surgery is definetly indicated, acupuncture is "definitely not first choice," according to physicians.

If Americans are apprehensive, they may be interested to know that in China, it is so popular that junior high and high school students practice on each other. Needles are carried around in a fountain pen-like container which is carried in the pocket.

Precautions include not penetrating an inflamed or infectious area. Although complications are rare, problems can arise such as hepatitis if needles are not clean; if there is breakage of needles (they are strong and seldom break) or if a patient moves suddenly and a needle curves.

There are about 1,000 points at which needles can be inserted with 120 to 150 considered the most usable. Recently one needle was used for open heart surgery in China, one for a lung resection and another for brain surgery. Although not as effective as general anesthesia in some cases, it has its advantages in that a patient may remain fully awake, suffer no side effects and become ambulatory immediately. In geriatric cases it is especially helpful in avoiding such things as pulmonary embolism and aspiration pneumonia.

The points for inserting the needles lay along lines called meridians which are named for the various organs in the body. Putting a needle in the "stomach meridian" in the leg can help temporarily relieve stomach pain.

There are 200 points in the ear alone. And it is here that acupuncture has met with success in coping with problems such as obesity, smoking and drug addiction. It is helpful to drug addicts in that there are reportedly no withdrawal ymptoms but if a person breaks out into perspiration and experiences nausea and bone pains, then the patient is also treated through acupuncture for the nausea, perspiration and bone pains. Obesity is treated by inserting needles in two points in the ear, one aimed at the stomach, the other at hungar pains.

The needles for ear acupuncture differ from others. They are like miniature hollow topped thumbtacks as opposed to the half-inch to three-inch straight stainless steel needles used elsewhere. Very fine, they are of different guages and are inserted at angles varying from 30 to 90 degrees.

Whether a person feels pain on penetration depends where they are inserted. The hand is tender as opposed to the neck but generally there is little pain.

Dentists may be able to use acupuncture for peridontal problems arising from smoking as well as for sinus problems. At present its usage is still in the research stage. New York State dentists are awaiting word on their legal rights, meanwhile remaining restricted pending submission of research protocols.

As for HOW acupuncture works, researchers seem to indicate that it is a combination of meridian and humerol (blood system) and involves the nervous system.

"At the Peking Hospital of Chinese Medicine in 1966, physicians gathered 151 paraplegics who had been pronounced incurable by western doctors. All had lost the power of movement from the waist down. The doctors began prodding their patients with long steel needles. Soon, some were able to wiggle their toes and feet, then bend their knees, and finally move their entire legs. They exercised for hours each day, rebuilding wasted muscles and gaining back the confidence lost in years of paralysis.

Thirty-six months after the acupuncture treatments started, 124 of the 151 patients were able to walk without the aid of another person. China's doctors had accomplished the impossible, using a 5,000-year-old medical technique."

from 'Acupuncture' by Marc Duke

The Day I Got the Needle . . .

It really wasn't too painful, as pains go. It shot from my shoulder blade to the dimple in my left shoulder. Hot compresses and a few days would have seen the end of it. But ski conditions were excellent . . . it was a totally free weekend, and a friend told me acupuncture could do wonders!

I went to the practitioner's home. A smiling birdlike lady let me in, bowing, nodding, and twinkling. The Chinese accent was still so strong, conversation was difficult. But converse we did for three quarters of an hour while the doctor was busy with another patient.

I entered his office with trepidation. By now, the whole family had joined in the fun. A quiet son stood watching as I removed my shirt. The doctor gently probed, asked several questions, then issued an order to number two son in Chinese. I surmise the order was to sterilize the needles, for that's what the lad did, post-haste.

As the needles cooked, the little mag-pie lady sat chattering. "You scare?", she asked. I smiled or at least thought I had. She slapped her trim thighs and rocked in her chair.

"He scare!" she giggled. Then, shaking her head, she must have proceeded to tell e why I shouldn't worry. Her husband sat smiling and watching.

When Mrs. T. finished reassuring me, I asked the doctor some questions. He said he didn't really know how or why it worked. It deals with fields of energy, he explained. Needles are inserted at 'aura' points, and somehow, the energy 'heals.'

The needles finally cooked, my mystic medico approached my back. He held the first needle poised above my center back meridian. Mrs. T jumped up, crying, "No, No .. ." followed by a stream of Chinese. They conferred for a full minute, discussing just where the needles were to go. Dr. T finally silenced her and proceeded to place four needles, each about six inches in length, between my shoulder blades to a depth of about half an inch, I would guess.

The needles had to remain in place for twenty minutes. During this time the collective T's told me what I was feeling. A tingling, yes? A warm glow that traveled from needle to needle, right? They asked me to slowly move my arms up over my head, to the side, rotating.

When the treatment was over, I felt better. I was able to straighten up, which had been impossible earlier. The next day found the pain almost gone.

The skiing was great that weekend. The fifty dollars the doctor charged seemed a fair price for all the time he spent with me. I'll always wonder whether it would have cleared up all by itself. And I'll always be glad Mrs. T was there to supervise.

Treasure Quest

I am very much interested in contacting Beverly Hageman regarding syrup pitchers. Would you be kind enough to put me in touch with her? — C.M.P., Earlysville, Va.

Your letter will be forwarded to Ms. Hageman and hopefully you will hear from her within the next few weeks. We do not print the addresses of collectors featured in ths column. We deeply appreciate their willingness to share their treasures and experiences with other collectors and try to protect them with a degree of anonymity. Readers wishing to contact a collector may send their letters to TODAY'S TREASURES in care of this newspaper. Letters will be forwarded to us and we will send it to the collector.

I have a small, very old china cup with two handles and a pouring spout. It also has a lid. What was it used for? — D.G., Cedar Park, Tex.

It sounds as if you are describing an English posset pot. These were made during the 17th and 18th centuries.

Posset was a mixture of warm ale or wine and hot curdled milk, sugar and spice with bits of bread in it. The liquid was sucked out through the spout on the side.

What is pinchbeck? Is it collectable? — E.Y., Winfield, Kan.

Pinchbeck is an alloy of metals consisting of four parts copper and three parts zinc. It was named after its inventor, Christopher Pinchbeck, an English clock and watchmaker (1670-1732). The alloy takes on the color of old brass. If highly polished it becomes a warm golden color that is sometimes mistaken for gold. Pinchbeck jewelry is quite scarce and very desirable.

I have an old steamer trunk that was my grandmother's. I was wondering how you remodel them. — E.F., Manchester, Md.

Yours was just one of many, many letters from readers interested in restoring old trunks. Within the next few weeks there will be a column series with illustrations on restoring and refurbishing old trunks. We will try to make the columns as detailed as possible to help you with your project.

One of our New Year's resolutions is to be of greater assistance to you, our readers. We pledge to acknowledge personally and as promptly as possible all correspondence received from you in the coming months. We do appreciate your letters.

Eat and Grow Younger

Heavy Sugar & Starch Diet Can Clog Up Digestive Tract

By Lelord Kordel
Number Four of a Series

Let me turn clairvoyant for a moment, and "project" thoughts with you through an average day's eating.

Your breakfast consisted of a fruit — perhaps a canned juice (sweetened with refined sugar), or half a grapefruit liberally sprinkled with sugar.

Your cereal bowl was filled with a dry, wholly-artificial pile of something whose resemblance to a grain long since ceased to exist. And, of course, you reached again for the sugar bowl to flavor this already too-starchy cereal.

Toast? Of course, and more likely made with white bread; or perhaps a sweet roll or two, well coated with sugar frosting, eaten with your generously sugared coffee.

"Please pass the jelly." More sweet. Some morning you do get around to eating an egg, but usually you're too full after downing your starchy cereal and toast to want anything more.

So off you go to work. You feel quite a bit less than up to par; but by now you're probably belching as all the breakfast starches, plus those left undigested from previous meals, begin fermenting in your digestive system.

By mid-morning you're feeling pretty pepless. So what do you do? If you're at work, you take time out for a candy bar, or a soft drink, or maybe more coffee and another sweet roll.

Then comes lunch. You're hungry — and yet you're not. How about a sandwich, a cup of coffee and a piece of pie?

CAN'T THINK STRAIGHT

"That holds you until about 3:30, when you begin to feel so worn out and dispirited that you realize you'd better get something to eat if you want to keep going until dinnertime. More pie, or maybe a piece of cake, a candy bar, or a soft drink.

By the time you drag yourself home and get through a dinner that is a repetition of all your day's dietary sins (white bread, sugared coffee, perhaps a dish with rice or spaghetti or macaroni, and a starchy heavy dessert) you are more convinced than ever you're getting old.

You can't think straight any more; your job seems to take more and more out of you every day; there's no energy left in you for leisure hour activities; and you are sleeping poorly.

I could go on being "clairvoyant" and trace your footsteps to the kitchen before bedtime for that piece of pie which was left, or for a sandwich — but you're entitled to some privacy in your dietary indiscretions, so I'll leave you for the day, with your intestinal tract full of fermenting, half digested starches.

If you are the average person, of sedentary habits or occupation, the chances are that you eat about 75 percent more devitalized carbohydrate foods than are compatible with your good health and your desire to feel and look younger.

"But we must have carbohydrates for energy" you say.

CONSIDER THE ESKIMO

You are only half correct. While it's true that the sole function of carbohydrates is to provide heat and energy, what about the Eskimos who eat nothing except meat and fish — protein foods?

The Eskimo, far from being a slothful fellow who huddles into his skins with his teeth chattering like castanets, is robust, energetic and warm-blooded. In fact, it's only where "white" civilization has brought in its so-called refinements that the Eskimo ever falls victim to our respiratory and intestinal diseases. Colds and constipation are among the many "benefits" of civilization we bestowed upon the poor Eskimo.

How then, if the Eskimos in remote areas never eat anything except protein foods, can their bodies receive the fuel and energy which carbohydrates provide?

Every human body has been given the power to convert food protein into either body protein or energy sugars. Actually, the type of carbohydrate produced in the body from food protein yields more heat and energy than any of the carbohydrate foods you eat.

When you get enough proteins you need never worry about getting enough carbohydrates. Your big worry should be not to eat too much carbohydrates.

PROTEIN COMPLETE FOOD

Not only do high-starch meals overload the stomach and place an unnecessary strain on the heart, they are also predisposing factors in many ailments and serious diseases that appear in later years.

There is good scientific cause for believing that too much starch in the diet helps build up those unwanted deposits of cholesterol in the arteries, causing them to harden and become brittle to the point where a rupture brings on a fatal heart attack or a brain hemorrhage.

Heavy starch-eaters are also more susceptible to sinus and respiratory infections than are those who limit their carbohydrate intake to the sugars and starches found in natural foods (fruits, vegetables, low-fat milk, whole grains) and build their meals around high proteins.

Constipation, a common symptom of digestive disorders, is another universal ailment that can be traced directly to high-starch food habits. The same holds true for gas in the intestines and belching, which are uncomfortable manifestations of undigested starches fermenting in the digestive tract.

Coping

Give Kids a Feeling of Importance

"This year I'm going to make my child feel important." That's a great New Year's resolution for a parent to make but how can it be carried out?

One way to start making a child feel O.K. is to follow the suggestions in "T.A. for Tots" by Alvin Freed. The hand-lettered, illustrated paperback which sells for $5.95 explains the basic principles of transactional analysis in very simple language and humorous drawings. The aim of the book as expressed by Ph.D. psychologist Freed is to help little boys and girls find out that they are not frogs but princes and princesses.

Underlying the easy sentences and child-oriented pictures are instructions for parents which are not always easy to execute.

1. Give your children — and encourage them to ask for — strokes which feel good — "warm fuzzies." Try to avoid or at least cut down on strokes which feel bad — "cold pricklies" such as spankings, scoldings, sarcastic remarks. (Some of the terms used were originally coined by psychologist Claude Steiner who should have received a warm fuzzy from Dr. Freed.)

2. Don't insist that your children always display happy feelings and never express anger, disappointment, fear or distress. We tend to want to see our children, in fact all children, smiling. Particularly when we adults are trying to cope with our problems, we want the reassurance and hope that radiates from a child's happy face. But kids have to express the whole range of emotions they experience, otherwise those feelings may be turned inward in self-destructive ways.

It would be a terrible disservice for a parent to encourage a child to tell about his or her feelings and then display shock and disappointment when the child doesn't feel what the parent wants him to feel. "You mean you felt you hated Mommy — that's a terrible thing to feel. I never heard of a child hating its mother!" An honest but supportive reaction to a child's anger might be, "It makes me feel sad to think you hated Mommy even for a short while, but I remember feeling angry when my Mom or Dad did something I didn't like."

3. Turn frogs into princes by helping your kids let out feelings of low self-esteem. A combination of varied physical activities — skating, swimming, jumping, running, climbing — and quiet times when intimate feelings can be shared help relieve anxieties about being an ugly outsider which any child can have. This may require special scheduling for parents with more than one child, but it's worth the effort.

4. Send straight messages. Freed lets us know how a child feels when his mother and father give conflicting instructions, when they send double messages such as 'don't tell lies' and then they, themselves, tell lies. Can we admit to our children that we sometimes say things we don't mean, that we can't always live up to the standards we want them to obey, that we, as parents, can disagree about punishments, bedtimes, treats?

If the advice Freed gives to tots causes trouble for you, the parent, then it might be wise to do what Freed tells the troubled, frightened or angry child to do. Find someone who cares about you and tell them how you feel or find someone who practices listening to and understanding people's feelings. Parents need to feel like princes before they can bring up little princes.

Dear Abby

Anyone Have a Want Ad Partner?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14. Almost 15. My parents won't let me smoke. My brother got to smoke when he was 15, but when I ask my parents if I can smoke, they say, "No, it's not feminine."

Abby, I milk cows, bale hay and even clean cow gutters, and you sure can't say THAT'S feminine.

All my girl friends get to smoke in front of their parents, so why don't they let me run my own life?

MYSELF

DEAR MYSELF: Because they don't want you to run it in a way that may be damaging to your health. I'm with them. The best advice I can give to nonsmokers is—DON'T START!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to a dinner party at the home of a very high-class, prominent society leader who has a reputation for entertaining beautifully.

My husband's widowed sister came to town unexpectedly, so I phoned my hostess and asked if we could bring our houseguest.

She asked, "Is your houseguest a male or female?"

I said, "She's my husband's sister."

And would you believe this so-called high-class society lady replied, "That's too bad. We already have three extra women. If you could bring a man, I'd be delighted, but we don't need any more women."

Have you ever heard of anything to top this?

SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: No. And I thought I'd heard everything.

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't help but smile when I read your comment about people who run ads in the classified section to meet a partner. Agreed, they must be desperately lonely, and they do run the risk of meeting some creepy characters that way, but did you know that this practice is entirely accepted in Europe, specifically in Germany?

Believe me, I have run into creepy characters in the U.S.A. and Canada in distinguished public places where a lady would think she is safe from creeps. I also know that many Europeans have found decent companions by placing ads in newspapers or going through a marriage agency.

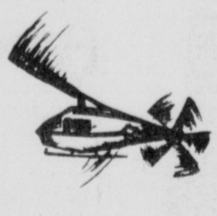

The adage "different countries, different customs" still holds true, so please don't condemn that custom altogether. For some, it works.

T.L.K.

DEAR T.L.K.: Many wrote to defend the practice of advertising in a newspaper for companionship, and even marriage. But those who wrote were invariably winners. I'd like to hear from some losers.

Kingston's Own Leonard Garr Cuts New Disc

KINGSTON

Talented pianist, Leonard Garr of San Francisco, Calif., formerly of Kingston, has just cut an album for Claremont Records. The album, "Easy to Love," is available now at Abrams Music Store, Wall Street, Kingston.

The son of Mrs. Celia Lipgar of 177 Fair Street, Kingston, Garr was born to a musical family. His father was a violinist who studied with Mischa Elman; his brother was a piano student. Leonard began studying violin at the age of five. By the time he was 10 he could read, play and compose music, a skill he a acquired by eavesdropping while his brother took the lessons.

His flair for showmanship surfaced in grammar school when he conducted magic shows for the youngsters in the neighborhood. A graduate of Kingston High School at age 16, he was salutatorian of his class and played one of his own compositions at graduation. That fall, he entered Columbia University, leaving after three months to join the cast of a Broadway operetta, "Rosalinda." In the same play, in other minor roles, were Gene Barry and Shelley Winters.

Garr joined the Air Force at age 18 and was trained as a motion picture cameraman. He played USO Clubs and appeared on a BBC sShow in London. After his stint in the service, he returned to graduate from Columbia, playing night club dates in the evenings. He has performed at numerous places across the country before moving permanently to San Francisco in 1957.

In his Weekly Voice column, The Lamplighter, Bob Tuttle had this to say about Leonard Garr: "During our many years on the restaurant-nighclub beat, we've seen and heard many piano players. But if we were asked to name the best we've ever heard, anytime or anyplace, then we would not have to hesitate a second before replying: Leonard Garr. This pianist par excellence has to rate with some of the all-time greats, including Oscar Peterson."

Included in the current album are 'Lover', 'There's a Small Hotel', 'Love Is a Many Splendored Thing', 'Why Do I Love You', and others.

Nastase Plans To Default

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Ilie Nastase says he plans to default today's scheduled match with Eddie Dibbs in the $115,000 U.S. Indoor Pro Tennis Championships.

Nastase made the announcement Wednesday night at an impromptu news conference after defeating Billy Martin, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3, in a thriller marked by disputed line calls by both players.

"I have the flu and I am defaulting this next match," Nastase said.

But officialdom disagreed.

"It is not a default until he doesn't show for his match tomorrow," said George Pharr, public relations director of the World Championship of Tennis. "He has not told the referee he is defaulting."

Nastase lectured Martin, who turned pro last summer after winning the NCAA title as a UCLA freshman, for arguing with a linesman.

"When you win Forest Hills and Wimbledon like me, then you can act like me," the temperamental star said.

Nastase argued vehemently over line calls in the match with Martin.

"I didn't think he was that sick," Martin said. "He was probably irritated with the crowd. I was sick two weeks ago but still played. He came out tonight and was prepared to play."

In earlier action, top-seeded Jimmy Connors defeated Dennis Ralston, the former U.S. Davis Cup captain, 6-4, 6-0.

Ralston extended Connors for 34 minutes in the opening set before losing it in the 10th game with a cross-court drive that was wide. Connors struck with great power in the second set and finished off Ralston easily.

Third-seeded Arthur Ashe defeated Charles Pasarell, former winner of the tournament, 7-6, 6-2. Ashe won the first set with a 7-3 tie-breaker. Australian Alan Stone defeated defending champion Marty Riessen, 6-1, 6-4 and Dick Stockton eliminated Cliff Drysdale, 6-4, 6-1.

Mark Cox of Great Britain advanced to the third round by defeating 11th-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis, 3-6, 6-3, 7-6. Gerulaitis, runnerup for the title last year to Reissen, lost his advantage in the third set after winning the first three games.

Dibbs also battled uphill to victory against Australian Dick Crealy, 2-6, 7-6, 6-3. Jan Kodes, the No. 15th contender from Czechoslovakia, eliminated Onny Parun, the New Zealand champion, 6-3, 6-3.

Brian Gottfried, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., won from Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia, 6-1, 7-5. Tom Okker, the eighthseed from the Netherlands, rebounded from a 4-1 deficit in the third set to defeat Jiri Hrebec of Czechslovakia 6-3, 6-7, 6-4.

Bob Lutz ousted ninth-seeded Tony Roche, 6-3, 6-3 and Stan Smith, a former winner of the title but seeded only No. 16 this time, overcame India's Vijay Amritraj, 6-4, 6-3.

Montreal Site Will Be Ready, But...

MONTREAL (UPI) — Organizers for the 1976 Summer Olympics flew to Europe today to report that while the main Olympic Stadium will not be fully complete, Montreal can open the Games as scheduled July 17.

Quebec Municipal Affairs Minister Victor Goldbloom, head of the Olympic Installations Board, said Wednesday he will give a positive report this weekend to the International Olympic Committee.

Goldbloom and the chairman of the Olympic Organizing Committee, (COJO) Roger Rousseau, will detail a progress report for the IOC executive this Saturday in Innsbruck, Austria. They will go before the full IOC committee for approval of their plans Monday.

Goldbloom told reporters prior to his departure Wednesday: "I am able to state that as long as we have the continuing cooperation of all concerned — and this is a vital point — we will be able to provide a stadium and swimming pools that will be ready for the Games.

"I have said that the Stadium will be ready, I have not indicated that it will be complete.

"For in these last 10 weeks it has been clear that it would not be completed. But it shall be sufficiently ready for the holding of the Games. We shall complete it afterwards."

Goldbloom said he was confident the IOC would give Montreal the go-ahead for the Games. "I am optimistic about the meeting with the IOC, because I am optimistic the Stadium and other facilities will be ready by the July 17 opening date."

He would not specify what parts of the facilities would not be completed, apart from seating. There were reports plans called for portable restrooms and dressing facilities for athletes at the Stadium.

"In what respect the Stadium will not be completed — this is exactly the kind of detail that I am obliged to keep for the IOC," the Quebec cabinet minister said.

SPORTS TODAY

"There will be facilities that will be adequate for athletes, for the team officials and for the public.

"These are the things that we will have to give to the IOC for its approval. Certain temporary elements will have to be used, but they will be sufficient to allow the proper holding of the games."

He conceded one of these "temporary elements" was the seating, although he said even the initial plans for the Stadium foresaw a need for some temporary seats.

Goldbloom said the minimum seating capacity required for the Stadium was between 50,000 and 70,000. He said permanent capacity was now expected to be between 50,000 and 55,000.

"It was forecast from the beginning that there would be 15,000 to 20,000 temporary seats," he said. "There now may be somewhat more than that when the Stadium opens for the Olympics."

The minister also said he could give no up-to-date cost figure for the games beyond the $1 billion-plus price tag already known.

Despite the many problems, Goldbloom rejected a suggestion the Summer Olympics could be a "half-baked" event.

"The Olympics are a sports event," he said, "and as a sports event we expect they will be successful."

Goldbloom noted also he has been in weekly contact with IOC president Lord Killanin since the Olympic Installations Board was set up 10 weeks ago and he has been fully briefed on the progress.

While the minister repeatedly said the games can open as planned July 17 providing there is "cooperation of all concerned," he said he did not expect any further labor strife at the Olympics site.

Goldbloom said OIB members have had daily contact with labor representatives on the site and "we have nothing but full compliments for them."

Labor strife, soaring construction costs, inflation and technical problems have plagued the Olympics since 1970 when Montreal was awarded the right to host the 16-day sports spectacular.

e Quebec government stepped in and set up the OIB last fall when it became obvious Montreal city officials could not cope with the mounting financial and construction problems.

The OIB was charged with reviewing contracts awarded by the administration of Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau, to aid contractors running out of city funds and to cut all "frills" from facilities.

Strong Ranger Showing Only Worth a Tie

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Rangers played their best game in a long time Wednesday night but still had to be satisfied with a 3-3 tie with the Buffalo Sabres.

John Ferguson, the Rangers' new general manager-coach said, "I feel better. We played much better but I'm never satisfied if you don't win."

Both sides were high in the praise of Dunc Wilson, the Ranger goalie who stopped 36 shots and thwarted Rick Martin from close in three straight times. Wilson recovered from a freak goal by Craig Ramsey at 9:07 of the first period which bounced straight out of Wilson and hit Ramsey on the head before going behind the Ranger goalie for a goal.

Ramsey's head shot tied the score, offsetting an opening goal by Billy Collins, who scored from a scramble in front of Gerry Desjardins at 1:17. Collins was returning from 20 games on the injured list with a bad knee.

Rod Gilbert put New York ahead at 10:16 of the first period when he knocked a Phil Esposito rebound home on a power play. Gil Perreault tied it again at 14:03 with a rising 25-footer.

Esposito converted another power play when he took Gilbert's point shot and put it home at 16:45. In the second period, Rene Robert tied the count at 3-3 when he beat the harrassed Wilson on a second rebound after Ramsey and Don Luce had been stopped twice by the Ranger goalie.

Martin, who had three close in chances at Wilson, said, "he had a magnet. The puck was hitting him. One time I had him down and tried to flip it over him and it hit his leg."

"The Rangers really worked tonight," said Floyd Smith, the Sabres' coach. "Walter Tkaczuk was hitting people. I haven't seen him play that well. As for us, we had enough chances to win but couldn't put it past Wilson."

Ferguson thought the Rangers were better as far as physical condition, saying, "We didn't tire in the third period and we had to skate with a team like Buffalo. I believe our conditioning is paying off."

Pierre Jarry has something to prove—to himself, to the Minnesota North Stars, to the Detroit Red Wings, to the Toronto Maple Leafs and to the New York Rangers.

And he isn't wasting any time.

Jarry, a talented wingman who has played for seven different teams in his seven-year pro career, scored three goals Wednesday night to lead Minnesota to a 9-3 rout of the Kansas City Scouts and pull the North Stars to within six points of St. Louis in the race for the third and final playoff spot of the Smythe Division.

"People are counting us out for the playoffs," said Jarry, "but believe me we're going to be there April 4."

Hawks Soar to 105-48 Win

NEW PALTZ

It's feast or famine for New Paltz State's basketball team these days and Wednesday night there was such a feast that the Hawks were probably looking for some Alka-Seltzer to offset all the excitement.

Coach Joe Donaovan's Birds returned to their Elting Gym roost after the intersession layoff and greeted Mt. St. Mary's College with open arms . . . and loads of baskets. The Hawks won, 105-48.

The victory, one of the most one-sided (in New Paltz' favor) in Hawk cage history, was accomplished without both Ron Domanski and Bob Irish. The two high-scoring NP cagers both were bedded down with the flu.

"I only had eight players and I was shuttling them in and out," said Hawk coach Joe Donovan, no doubt happy with the pleasant evening. "We just couldn't do anything wrong and they didn't have very much."

In winning their fourth game in 10 starts the Hawks raced to a 53-19 halftime advantage. The second half count was 52-29.

Five Hawks reached double figures with new men Felix Del Valle and Pete Yizar leading the way with 19 points apiece. Ron Monroe scored 18, Tommy Booker 16, and Clay Sizemore 13.

Gerry Coleman scored 17 points for the losers.

New Paltz has a pair of home games on tap for this weekend. The Hawks host Postdam State Friday and Castleton State Saturday.

Tar Heels Thrive on Pressure

By United Press International

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith feels his team thrives on pressure, and after a second overtime victory in as many games, who could argue with him?

"You have to hand it to our team—to keep its plays under those conditions and still come out with a win," Smith observed after the fourth-ranked Tar Heels pulled out an 88-85 overtime victory Wednesday night against 20th-ranked Wake Forest at Winston-Salem, N.C.

"I thought Wake Forest was very well prepared. They surprised us with their press early in the game," added Smith, who got his 301st career win. Sunday the Tar Heels went into overtime to beat Maryland.

The score was knotted at 77-77 in the final 3:56 of regulation and center Mitch Kupchak came up with three overtime points to lead the way for the Tar Heels. He finished with 26 and played the overtime and the final 17 minutes with four fouls. Wake Forest was led by Rod Griffin's 22 points.

In another key Atlantic Coast Conference game involving nationally-ranked teams, seventh-rated Maryland trounced 12th-ranked North Carolina State 102-84.

All-America guard John Lucas tied his career high of 34 points as Maryland improved to 2-3 in the ACC and 14-3 overall. North Carolina State, slipping to 3-2 in the league and 13-3 overall, got 20 points from Glenn Sudhop.

After back-to-back losses to North Carolina and Clemson, Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell termed the Terp performance "good."

"Talk to (Lawrence) Boston and some of the other guys," said Lucas, who hit 17-of 26-shots. "I just happened to be in the right place at the right time."

Elsewhere, No. 11 Notre Dame downed DePaul 89-68 and 14th-rated Missouri beat Oklahoma 72-58.

All America Adrian Dantley sank 12-of-17 shots and scored 31 points to lead the Irish over DePaul. Dantley also pulled down 15 rebounds as Notre Dame dominated the boards by a 48-38 margin.

"We came in ready to play," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps. "It was a 'must' win for us. We couldn't look ahead to Maryland this Saturday and couldn't look back to the win over UCLA last Saturday."

Notre Dame soph center Dave Batton scored added 16 points and 10 rebounds while also helping to hold DePaul's 6-11 center Dave Corzine to just 10 points and three rebounds.

"Batton played one of his best games," said Phelps. "He gained confidence."

Islanders 3, Maple Leafs 2

Black Hawks 7, Flames 3

Grant Mulvey scored two goals and five of his teammates added single tallies to boost Chicago's first-place margin in the Conn Smythe Division to 14 points. It was the 10th win with five ties and only one loss in the last 16 games for Chicago.

Capitals 4, Golden Seals 2

Gerry Meehan, Hartland Monahan and Harvey Bennett scored goals within three minutes of each other in the final period to give Washington just its fifth victory in 51 games this season and the Caps' third road triumph. The loss snapped a California club record four-game victory streak.

Reserve Decision Due Next Week

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — attorneys for major league baseball's owners say the Players Association's desire to exclude the reserve system from the 1970 and 1973 working agreements was instrumental in the owners allowing a grievance procedure in the contracts.

"The grievance procedure was a difficult problem for us," said Louis Hoynes, attorney for the National League. "One of the aspects that made it possible for us to come to accordance on the grievance proposal of the association was that we hadfkpproved an article which took the reserve system outside the basic agreement."

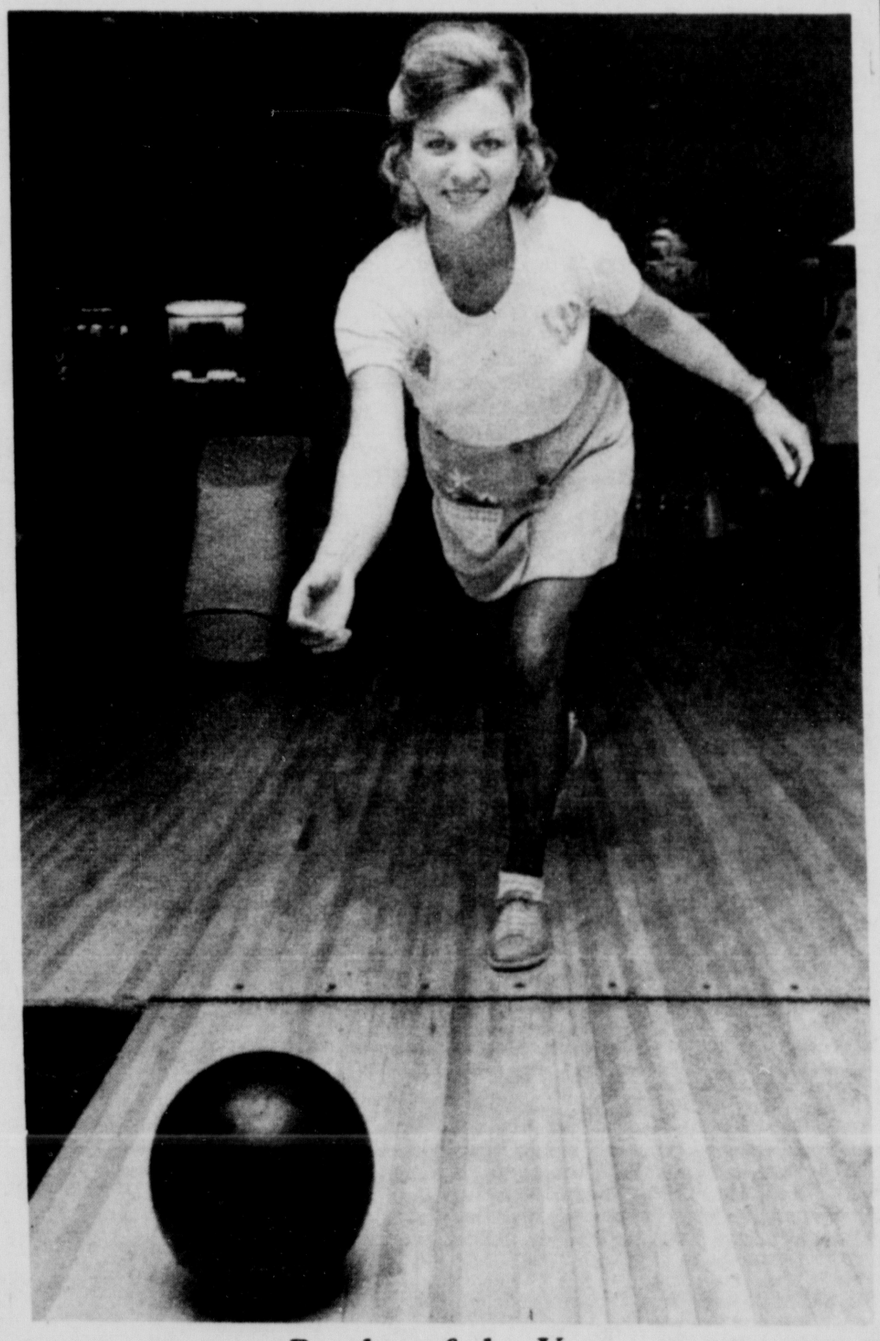

Hoynes was the final witness in a hearing on the owners' suit challenging the authority of arbitrator Peter Seitz to declare pitchers Andy Messersmith of Los Angeles and Dave McNally of Montreal free agents. Final arguments were made Wednesday and U.S. District Judge John W. Oliver said a decision would be handed down early next week.

Hoynes said during negotiating sessions leading to the 1970 working agreement, Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, agreed to deal with the reserve system under "house rules" if it was excluded from the main contract.

"He went on further to say no grievances would be brought over the reserve system," said Hoynes. "Thus the concerns we had expressed about enforcing the reserve rules under the exclusion were put to rest."

Messersmith and McNally have attacked what the owners term "the guts" of the reserve system. They argued, and Seitz upheld, that they played last year without signing a contract, thus playing out their option and becoming free agents. The owners argue they have perpetual control over contracts.

Harry Thomson, who presented the case for the owners, said in closing arguments the reserve system was excluded from the grievance procedures, which include the use of an arbitrator.

Bowler of the Year

Judy Soutar, 31, a seasoned veteran of the pro women's bowling tour, has been named Woman Bowler of the Year for the second time in three years by the Bowling Writers Association of America. Mrs. Soutar, who has been bowling in big tournaments since she was 14, was also accorded the honor in 1973 by the tenpin writers. The Grandview, Mo., bowler has two children and is married to Dave Soutar, a veteran on the men's Professional Bowler's Association tour. (UPI)

The Man In the Cowboy Hat

MIAMI (UPI) — Pretty blonde Laura Baugh has had plenty of men follow her around on golf courses making up the LPGA tour, but she was unnerved by a mysterious man in a cowboy hat who appeared at her last 10 tournaments last year.

When the short, bearded man popped up again Tuesday while Miss Baugh was preparing for this weekend's Burdines Invitational tournament, she complained to LPGA officials and they asked the stranger to leave for good.

"I told him I really didn't know what was going on, but that we didn't want him around anymore," said LPGA tournament director Bill Hall. "He said fine and left. I realy don't think we'll have any more problems with him."

"The guy's a kook," LPGA publicity director Bob Basche said. "When I was with the tennis tour, we had Chris Evert freaks. Well, this guy is a Laura Baugh freak. The only difference is in tennis, you're more removed from the situation."

The golf association said they had a tentative identification of the man but thought he might be using an assumed name.

Miss Baugh declined comment on the matter, but others said they were sure it was hurting her game.

"Laura has never come out and said this guy has affected her play, but I'm sure it has," Basche said. "He bothered her enough that she just doesn't want him hanging around."

Jets Willing to Make Deal for Namath

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Namath may be trying to talk himself away from the the New York Jets.

Namath has another year to go on a two-year contract calling for some $450,000 annually but he has indicated recently that he would welcome a deal sending him to the Los Angeles Rams.

Phil Iselin, the Jets' president, said Wednesday the club would like to keep Namath next season but not if he's unhappy, Iselin indicated something might be worked out with the Rams.

"We'd like to have him stay, naturally, but if he keeps insisting he wants to go somewhere else, we might accommodate him," said Iselin. "He has said nothing to us about wanting to leave. He still has another year with us under his contract but all I keep hearing is how he wants to go somewhere else.

"Well, as I said, we'd like to have him but if he keeps talking about going to another team, we don't want anybody with us who'll be unhappy."

Iselin, president and chairman of Monmouth Race Track, made his remarks at the Thoroughbred Racing Association's Eclipse Awards luncheon honoring John A. Morris as the TRA Man of the Year, Braulio Baeza as the Jockey of the Year and 19-year-old Jimmy Edwards as the Apprentice Jockey of the Year.

The 32-year-old Namath had the worst season of his 11-year career in 1975. He was intercepted 28 times and sacked 27 times and his completion percentage of 48.2 was below average as he threw for 2,286 yards and 15 touchdowns. The Jets finished 3-11.

The Rams had quarterback problems at the end of the season. James Harris, their starter all year, led them to the NFC West title but was injured in the playoffs. He started the championship game but was replaced early by Ron Jaworski when the Dallas Cowboys roared out to a commanding lead and went on to win easily.

Namath, originally paid $400,000 by Sonny Werblin to join the Jets after starring at the University of Alabama, is the highest paid player in the National Football League.

UCAL Wrestling Race Tightens As Ellenville, Liberty Lose

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Athletic League wrestling picture experienced a couple of new twists Wednesday. A pair of schools, Red Hook and Wallkill , flipped favored opponents to tighten up the race for first place.

Red Hook knocked off previously unbeaten Ellenville, 33-15, and Wallkill upset Liberty, 31-27. In other matches, undefeated Onteora rolled past Fallsburgh, 49-10, and New Paltz turned back Pine Bush, 33-18.

Bruce Rhodes, unbeaten thus far in nine bouts, and Maurice Hryshko, a 169 pounder with a 7-2 mark, scored key victories to help the Raiders improve to 4-1 in league competition. Rhodes nailed Ken Stalter in the third period of the 140 battle, and Hryshko pinned his opponent in 42 seconds.

The Ellies were strong in the light weights, but the Raiders lost no class by worse than a decision.

Larry Domenech in 114 and Tim North in 128 continued their outstanding seasons in leading the Panthers to their third win against a loss and a tie. Domenech stopped Steve Goodstein with a decision, and North pinned Jon Sutherland as both of the victors upped their personal marks to 11-1.

Bob Nolan kept Liberty alive with a fall in 157, but Mark Pruess and Jim Heddy captured the next two classes to put the match out of the Redskins' reach.

Fallsburgh gave away six weights to the Indians with forfeits so the competition didn't get much beyond the individual level. OCS moved alone into first place with a 3-0 record.

The match came out three apiece otherwise. Ralph Vanacore, Fran Castaldo and Duane Degraff scored for Onteora, and Tony Diers, Steve Moss and Alex Bell won for the Comets.

Doug Dillon, Tim Rock and Bob Kopsick gave New Paltz pins in three of the last four classes to comfortably put the Bushmen away. Dillon stopped Russ Miller in 2:33, Rock pinned Mark Joseph in 1:50 and Kopsick took John Volack in 36 36 seconds.

Ali Clowns, Trains

SAN JUAN, P. R. (UPI) — World heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali trained for his title bout playing a boogie woogie on the piano, pretending he was Wyatt Earp and dancing about the ring with a Puerto Rican junior lightweight champ.

The fact that he went a bruising 10 rounds of sparring practice against former world champion Jimmy Ellis and heavyweight fighter Rodney Bobick was incidental to Thursday's performance.

It was an elaborate show, given daily at a ring set up at the El San Juan hotel and about 300 fans pay five dollars a head every day, just to watch the champion practice and hear his war cry," I am the greatest". Ali fights Belgian challenger Jean-Pierre Coopman in San Juan, Feb. 20.

Ali arrived in San Juan last week tired, overweight, and depressed, but he is already back to his old self in putting on a show.

He saved his punch line for the last two rounds of sparring against Ellis.

"I am the greatest'" he yelled as he danced around the ring. " I am the greatest."

Ellis landed a right jab.

"Oh, Lord," Ali groaned, "Oh, Lord."

It wasn't boxing, but the fans laughed and cheered every minute.

Pine Bush Girls Top Onteora Quintet, 39-32

BOICEVILLE

Pine Bush High's girls basketball team clinched second place in the American Division of the Ulter County Athletic League Wednesday by defeating Onteora, 39-32.

"We pressed them in the first period and held them pretty well," said OCS coach Carol Okoren, "but they had a big second quarter."

Onteora led 9-4 at the first step, but Pine Bush rallied to take a 20-17 halftime lead. During the second period, PB was led by Eileen Carroll, who scored all seven of her points.

Doreen Hyde had a game-high 10 points for Pine Bush. The winners had the same number of field goals as did Onteora, but put in seven more foul shots.

Onteora got nine points, 12 rebounds, and five assists from Colleen Duffy. Debbie Cease had 11 rebounds and seven steals.

Pine Bush is 10-4 on the season with one game remaining. Onteora concluded the campaign at 9-6.

Crenshaw Heads Field

HONOLULU (UPI) — Most of golf's best players, led by Crosby winner Ben Crenshaw and Lee Trevino, teed off today at Waialae seeking a share of the $230,000 purse in the Hawaiian Open, fourth stop of the new year on the PGA Tour.

Unlike last year, there were no fire engines standing by today as a warm, tropical sun and 15-knot trade winds offered near-perfect playing weather for the 147 starters.

Last year, much to the embarrassment of the local chamber of commerce, monsoon rains flooded the greens and play was delayed until the Honolulu Fire Department was able to pump out the newly-formed lakes and ponds that suddenly dotted the Waialae course. As it was, the tournament was delayed a day because of the rain.

The 11th annual Hawaiian Open offers $46,000 to the winner, making it the richest event of the year thus far, and Crosby winner Crenshaw and Trevino, a sentimental favorite around the islands, are picked as the ones to beat this week.

Crenshaw, the 24-year-old Texan, put it all together last week at Pebble Beach for his first victory in two and one-half years. Trevino deliberately passed up the Crosby Clambake so he could come to Hawaii a week early and get a better feel of the Waialae course.

Australia also has a top contender this year in Bruce Crampton, who won the tournament in 1969 and finished fourth last year. Crampton has played some of his best golf here.

Sports Briefs

Freedom of the Press Cited

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A U.S. District Court judge cited freedom of the press Wednesday in his dismissal of a civil suit by a Pittsburgh Steeler fan who said he was depicted as a "crazy drunken slob" in a Sports Illustrated photograph.

The picture appeared in an August 1974 issue of Sports Illustrated and, according to the editors: "Represented the typical Steeler fan: a rowdy, strong rooter muchbehind his team and having a good time at the game."

John W. Neff said the picture, which clearly showed the front zipper of his trousers completely open, had been taken without his knowledge or permission. He claimed it was an invasion of his privacy.

Redmond Off to Mayo Clinic

DETROIT (UPI) — Mickey Redmond is off to Rochester, Minn., and the Mayo Clinic to see if there is a physical reason he has only scored 11 goals this season.

Redmond's attorney and agent, Alan Eagleson, also refuted statements the right wing for the Detroit Red Wings wants to be traded or retire.

"Mickey certainly is not thinking of retirement," Eagleson said from Toronto, where Redmond has been while Detroit has played its last four games. He will also miss the Red Wings' game in Los Angeles on Thursday. "But he knows he isn't playing well and wants to know why. He's been depressed."

Jordan Pleads Guilty

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — New England Patriots lineman Shelby Jordan Wednesday pleaded guilty to one count of selling cocaine to a federal agent.

U.S. District Court Chief Judge Raymond J. Pettine said he would impose a sentence within a few weeks.

Jordan's plea came just before the jury trial was to open. Pettine dropped two other counts, involving sale and conspiracy.

Jordan, 23, an offensive tackle with the National Football League team, was charged last August with two counts of selling cocaine to federal agents and conpiracy with another man to receive and distribute cocaine.

Says Seattle Was Threatened

EVERETT, Wash. (UPI) — The American League and the Baseball Commissioner's office each threatened a year ago never to put a team back in Seattle if the lawsuit against the league ever came to trial, according to King County Executive John Spellman.

The threats, said Spellman from the witness stand, came in a Dec. 4, 1974 meeting in New Orleans between the plaintiffs and defendants in the case.

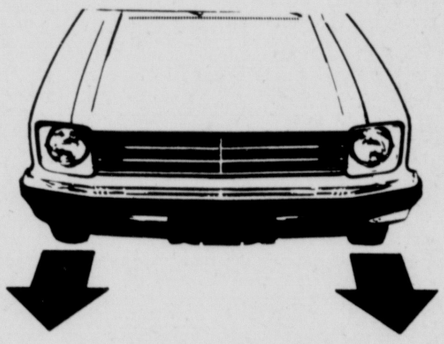

The multi-million dollar suit has been brought by the state of Washington, King County and the city of Seattle over the moving of the Seattle Pilots club to Milwaukee in 1970.

Only two weeks ago, with the suit about to come to trial, American League owners voted to put an expansion franchise in Seattle in 1977.

The attorney representing the American League at the trial objected to Spellman recollecting the threat in front of the jury so it was not done.

Havlicek Points for Longevity Record

By UPI

He has played in 1,078 games, scored 23,146 points and is now the second most durable player in National Basketball Association history. But what John Havlicek did Wednesday night was strictly habit.

The 14-year veteran from Ohio State played 33 minutes, wound up with 17 points and led the Boston fast break in the second half that brought the Celtics back to a 110-99 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

Thus Havlicek now has 23,146 career points and needs just four more to move past Elgin Baylor into fourth on the all-time list. He also needs to play in just 45 more games to take the iron-man award from former Philadelphia star Hal Greer, who appeared in 1,122 games.

Havlicek doesn't expect to catch career-scoring leader Wilt Chamberlain, who poured in 31,419 points in 14 seasons, although he has an outside shot at passing Jerry West and Oscar Robertson.

"But I would like to play-sone more year'', said Havlicek. "If I'm healthy, and I should be, there's no reason I shouldn't. come back next year. To become the leader in number of games played is my one goal. That's the only mark I'm striving to attain."

"It's nice to be placed in a select group of players that have done so much for basketball and the NBA. When you're up there with the Chamberlains, Wests, Baylors and Greers, you feel like you've made quite a contribution in the game."

Charlie Scott also had 17 points for Boston Jo Jo White had 15 and second-year guard Kevin Stacom had a career-high 15. Dave Cowens added 14 points and 18 rebounds while Silas had 11 points and 16 rebounds. Tom Van Arsdale led the Hawks with 24 points and Lou Hudson added 18.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Houston topped Cleveland 108-93, Buffalo bested New Orleans 126-112, Chicago shaded Detroit 87-84, Portland drubbed Seattle 124-104 and Los Angeles edged out Phoenix 121-118. There were no ABA games.

Rockets 108, Cavaliers 93

Houston's Ed Ratleff, held to three points in the first half, ignited a second half surge with 11-points as Cleveland's five-game winning streak was snapped. Kevin Kunnert led the Rockets' domination of the boards with 15 rebounds.

Bulls 87, Pistons 84

Jack Marin hit four of his last six shots and scored 11 of his 16 points in the final period as Chicago spoiled new Detroit Coach Herb Brown's home debut. It was the fourth straight loss for Detroit. Mick ey Johnson led Chicago with 17 points and Bob Love added 15.

Braves 126, Jazz 112

Randy Smith reeled off 16 consecutive points to open the third period and wound up with 34 in leading Buffalo to its second win over New Orleans in as many games. Bob McAdoo added 31 points for the Braves.

Lakers 121, Suns 118

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 28 points, 10 in the fourth period, and Los Angeles withstood a late Phoenix rally to down the Suns. Abdul-Jabbar hit on all seven of his shots in the second half. Paul Westphal who scored 20 of his 30 points in the fourth period, led the Suns' late rally.

Trail Blazers 124, Sonics 104

Geoff Petrie's 26 points plus a combined 40 points from forwards Sidney Wicks and rookie Bob Gross propelled Portland over sagging Seattle, the Blazers' fourth straight win. Wicks scored 20 points and hauled down 15 rebounds as Portland moved out of the Pacific Division cellar past Phoenix. The Sonics have now lost six in a row and eight of their last nine.

Dan Heppner paced Scrimmage with 23 points. Andy Murphy added 18, Ron Thomas 14 and Ray Lindhorst 13 with 15 rebounds. Joyous Lake led 42-37 at halftime.

Fishermen trailed 11-18 at the quarter, led 34-32 at halftime and outscored Sass 35-27 in the second half.

MH-C Grapplers Warm Up

MIDDLETOWN

Four Mid-Hudson Conference wrestling teams will begin the search for the MH-C Championship next week with three head-to-head matches.

Defending champion Rockland County Community College opens against Ulster County Community College on Feb. 2 at Stone Ridge. A year ago Rockland defeated UCCC in their match and that was the basis for awarding them the seasonal championship after teams tied in the conference standings.

Orange County opens its campaign on Feb. 4 against Westchester in a match at Valhalla. The Colts failed to win the conference title in 1975 for the first since the Mid-Hudson Conference was formed.

Rockland and Westchester will close out the first week's schedule with a dual meet Friday in Valhalla.

Altheiser Pares Squad

KINGSTON

Three Kingston players have survived the first cut of Moose All Star basketball candidates, Coach Art Altheiser announced. The trio includes George Uhl, Jonn Albany and Brian Timbrouck.

Three Marlboro players were named — Peter Potentes, Tom Morehead and Richard McKnight. Saugerties is also represented by three players — John Barker, Jim Speirs and Peter Fabiano.

"The team lacks size but had outstanding shooters and speed," said Coach Altheiser in previewing prospects for the locals in the New York State Moose Championships in Auburn, April 2-3-4.

In seven years as Moose coach, Altheiser has produced one second place team and a pair of third-place finishes in the state tournament. Altheiser, now in his 17th year as a coach, has compiled a career record of 363 wins and 231 losses.

Competing in the state championships this season will be defending champion Owego Baldwinsville, Syracuse, Waverly, Auburn, Niagara Falls, Cortland, Hudson, Elmira, Ithaca and Oswego.

Altheiser is being assisted by coaches and scouts Richard McKnight, Bob Morehead and George Uhl. Len Throneburg is the sports chariman and Frank Stauble basketball director for Kingston Moose.

Millrose Games to Revive 5,000-Meter Race

NEW YORK (UPI) — A revival of the 5,000-meters, a revamping of the indoor's circuit's most criticized track, and a field including Dwight Stones, Marty Liquori, Tony Waldrop, Rick Wohlhuter and Dan Ripley mark the 69th renewal of the Wanamaker Millrose Games Friday night.

After an interval of 51 years, Millrose meet director Howard Schmertz has elected to bring back the 5,000 meters to New York indoor track and has lined up nine outstanding competitors. Included in the 5,000-meter field, last run here in the 1925 K. of C meet when world record holder Paavo Nurmi was forced to retire with an upset stomach, are former Penn State ace Greg Fredericks and balding Dick Buerkle plus Canada's Grant McLaren and Great Britain's Nick Rose.

Schmertz is hopeful the 5,000-meter field — and all the other races other than sprints and hurdles — will be benefited from a major overhaul of the oft-cricticised Madison Square Garden 11-lap track. Although the surface remains the same, the Garden has revamped the bankings, making the approaches more gradual and thus more accessible to the runners.

One conspicuous absence from the 5,000-meter field will be Liquori, the former Villanova mile star and longtime Garden favorite who is expected to make his last bid for an Olympic gold medal in the Montreal 5,000 meters. Ordinarily, Liquori would probably be running his newfound specialty, but at the coaxing of Millrose officials, he'll go up against Waldrop and, most probably, the current Villanova prodigy, Eamon Coughlan.

The field events figure to be dominated by Stones, the outspoken but nearly always outstanding high jumper and Ripley, the man they're touting the "believe it or not" pole vaulter.

Stones, who last indoor season established four indoor "bests" including a 7-foot-5¾ leap at New York's Olympic Invitational meet, will again have the high jump pit to his liking — the runway, that is, being set up for "floppers" rather than straddlers.

"Why not?" said one Millrose official, "There's no point in belaboring this issue anymore. The floppers are what's happening in high jumping today. They're the ones setting records and exciting crowds."

Ripley, Stones' Pacific Coast Club teammate, pole vaulted to a world indoor best 18-feet, 1¼ inches two weeks ago at College Park, Md. but has nonetheless got track buffs wondering if he's to be believed.

After leaping 18 feet early last indoor season, he was hampered by injury the remainder of the year and last week he was upset on fewer misses by the Soviet Union's Yuriy Isakov after both leaped just 17-6.

Millrose officials are also hopeful of landing high school sensation Houston McTear, co-holder of the the world 100 yard dash (9.0) record to their sprint. McTear, unbeaten indoors this year, may jetained at home in Florida however due to his father's illness.

Petraglia Leads

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Johnny Petraglia of Staten Island, N.Y., averaged 230 for 12 games to hold the lead through the first two rounds of the $70,000 King Louie Open Bowling Tournament Wednesday.

Petraglia produced a total of 2,770 pins to give him a 76-pin edge over Earl Anthony, Tacoma, Wash., who was at 2,694. Rounding out the top five were Teata Semiz, River Edge, N.J., 2,692; Gary Mage, Bellevue, Wash., 2,665, and Steve Jones, Kansas City, Mo., 2,597.

Petraglia fell off his first round pace of a 242 average but still was able to increase his lead. Ahead of Anthony by only 12 points entering the last game, he fired a 279 while Anthony closed with 215.

Defending champion Mark Roth, also of Staten Island, moved up from a tie for 26th to 11th at 2,560.

New York Jobless Total Inches Up Once Again

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Unemployment rose to 10.3 per cent in New York State last month, one-tenth of a point higher than the November rate, the State Labor Department reported Wednesday.

The monthly report said the loss of 26,700 jobs in December reflected a continued decline in the number of jobs, as total employment dipped to the lowest point in five years.

A decline of 100 in the total out of work — to 780,500 persons — was offset by shrinkage in the total employment to 6,820,600 as compared with 6,847,300 in November, the department said.

In December 1974, total employment was 7,038,300 and unemployment was 585,500 for a 7.7 per cent jobless rate.

December unemployment figures for the state's major industrial areas:

Albany-Schenectady-Troy — 25,300 or 7.3 per cent compared with 25,500 or 7.3 per cent in November and 21,400 or 6.1 per cent in December 1974.

Binghamton — 9,700 or 7.7 per cent compared with 10,100 or 8.0 per cent in November and 8,000 or 6.3 per cent in December 1974.

Buffalo — 68,300 or 12.8 per cent compared with 68,600 or 12.8 per cent in November and 55,400 or 10.3 per cent in December 1974.

Elmira — 3,800 or 9.1 per cent compared with 4,000 or 9.5 per cent in November and 3,700 or 8.5 per cent in December 1974.

Poughkeepsie — 5,900 or 6.0 per cent compared with 5,900 or 6.0 per cent in November and 4,200 or 4.3 per cent in December 1974.

Rochester — 36,300 or 7.9 per cent compared with 36,000 or 7.8 per cent in November and 22,800 or 5.0 per cent in December 1974.

Syracuse — 27,000 or 9.6 per cent compared with 26,700 or 9.4 per cent in November and 19,300 or 6.7 per cent in December 1974.

Utica — 14,100 or 11.1 per cent compared with 13,500 or 10.6 per cent in November and 10,700 or 8.4 per cent in December 1974.

New York City combined area — 496,100 or 10.5 per cent compared with 501,90 0 or 10.6 per cent in November and 363,100 or 7.7 per cent in December 1974.

Steingut Endorses Casino Gambling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut said today that legalized casino gambling would hit organized crime "in the pocketbook" and bring the state millions of dollars in new tax revenues.

Steingut's endorsement of expanded legalized gambling came in remarks prepared for hearings by two Assembly committees on a proposed constitutional amendment to permit the state to operate gambling casinos or take bets on jai alai or dog racing.

Steingut said the proposals under study would be based on "strict government control on the state and local level to preclude infiltration by underworld elements."

Casino gambling, he said, "would create tens of thousands of new jobs for New Yorkers, brighten the state's cloudy tourist climate, bring in millions in new taxes and, as a bonus, give organized crime a nasty blow where it will hurt the most — in the pocketbook."

"It's about time we faced the fact that people gamble and that they are doing their gambling in other cities and countries where it is legal or in gangster-operated establishments," Steingut said.

According to Stanley Fink, D-Brooklyn, chairman of the Assembly Codes Committee, the proposed amendments are being offered "primarily as study bills" to test public sentiment on what has always been a sensitive issue.

State: CSEA Time Bomb

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A strike threat by the union representing 147,000 state workers and contract demands that would cost $460 million represent "a time bomb" on the bargaining table, according to the director of the state's Office of Employee Relations.

OER director Donald H. Wollett said contract demands by the Civil Service Employees Association would cost out at about 20 per cent of the total state payroll and could "destroy the Taylor Law" regulating collective bargaining by public workers.

Wollett told a meeting of the International Personnel Management Association Wednesday night that the state had offered "an extensive package of management proposals" that would save the state $28.5 million.

The state's offer includes reductions in certain fringe benefits, including vacations and personal leave time. Wollett noted, "I regret to say, CSEA has refused even to discuss these proposals."

Referring to what he termed "the harsh economic realities" of "impaired growth of state revenues," Wollett said, "even if these demands are only 'asking' proposals ... they reflect unrealistic attitudes and an unwillingness or inability to adjust to the present environment."

Union leaders met last fall in Niagara Falls and voted to call a strike if a contract had not been signed by March 31, the expiration date of the present agreement with the state.

"CSEA has placed a time bomb on the bargaining table," Wollett said. "If that bomb goes off on March 31, it will destroy the Taylor Law" regulating collective bargaining by public employes.

Wollett said "some CSEA representatives" had indicated they would be willing to go to mediation with 200 issues unresolved in negotiations now underway. The Taylor Law provides for mediation, factfinding and, finally, a legislative hearing to resolve contract disputes.

"The theory the CSEA seems to be operating on is that in an election year they will do better in a completely political forum than they will with us," Wollett said.

NOW.

The State Court of Appeals in a ruling handed down in December, prohibits savings banks from continuing to offer NOW (payment order) accounts, which are similar in nature to checking accounts.

Also, the Court decision allows savings banks to continue servicing their present NOW accounts only through March 31, 1976.

The Court's verdict was announced after months of hearings which resulted from an action filed by competitive financial institutions in July, 1974. Less than two months prior to that date, the New York State Superintendent of Banks issued regulations allowing savings banks to provide NOW or Payment Order accounts.

The legal action against savings banks NOW accounts indicated that they, "constitute unfair competition," and are in "violation of banking laws."

While rendering its decision, the Court, at the same time did say, "That savings banks ought to be permitted to offer checking account services, for which there is considerable local and national support, should be addressed to the Legislature and not to the courts . . ."

Heritage Savings Bank is in total agreement with this invitation to the Legislature to act. Heritage should be able to offer checking accounts.

Savings Banks depositors in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Jersey, among others, enjoy NOW or checking accounts.

Why not New York State savings banks depositors?

Since their introduction in 1974, the response to NOW Accounts at Heritage Savings Bank has been excellent. This indicates that you, our customers, like, need, want and deserve this service. Therefore, we don't feel it should be taken away.

We don't feel you should be discriminated against.

We're going to fight the Court's decision all the way. We feel we owe that much to the people who have helped support Heritage Savings Bank over the years.

You can help. And, we hope you will.

Let Albany know how you stand. Take a few minutes to write to your local legislator. Tell your representative you want action. And, you want it fast. That as a taxpayer and consumer you are entitled to have NOW or checking accounts at your savings bank.

You can also remind the men and women who represent you in Albany that the national trend is clearly broadened powers for savings banks. This includes checking accounts. And a bill containing that provision recently passed the United States Senate.

This is an election year — so you can be sure all legislators will be especially sensitive to all suggestions from voting constituents.

Below is a list of the people who represent you at the State Capitol.

Let Albany know how you stand.

Spy Agency Reforms Under Consideration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Intelligence Committee considered proposed spy-agency reforms today while marshaling support to prevent censorship of its controversial final report by President Ford.

The committee, headed by Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., met to work on recommendations to improve the congressional oversight of the CIA and other intelligence agencies and to revamp their structures.

On the other side of the capitol, Sen. Frank Church, DIdaho, chairman of the Senate intelligence committee, was scheduled to appear before the full Senate to present that panel's reform recommendations. The Church committee is still working on its final report expected before the panel's mandate runs out today.

The House Rules Committee late Wednesday passed by a vote of 9 to 7 a resolution that the 338-page report, major parts of which have already leaked to the press, could only be issued now to authorized officials.

Public release would have to wait, the resolution stated, "until the report has been certified by the President as not containing information which would adversely affect" CIA or other intelligence activities abroad.

Pike reportedly planned a parliamentary maneuver to allow amendments in the House before the vote on the Rules Committee resolution.

Congressional sources predicted the vote would be close, with emotions running high on both sides: dislike of conceding to the President the power to control a House committee report, as opposed to fears that the document as it now stands could damage U.S. intelligence and endanger national security.

Pike acknowledged to the Rules Committee Wednesday that the report contains classified material.

"It's a matter of opinion over what should or not be made public," he said, adding that his committee last Friday voted 9 to 4 to go ahead with publication.

The White House and the CIA have already protested that the Pike committee broke an agreement not to make public without prior consultation secret and classified information it was supplied.

Pike countered that the stricture did not specifically cover the final report.

"We did address every single objection by the CIA," he said. "We did not agree to take out what they wanted. We agreed there was no way to allow the CIA or FBI to tell this committee what it would report back."

Morocco Accused In Desert Deaths

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — Algeria has accused Morocco of civilian massacres, bombing raids on refugee camps and germ warfare in fighting for control of the former Spanish Sahara. Morocco denied the charges as "incredible fabrications."

There were conflicting reports on whether Algerian-backed guerrillas and Moroccan troops clashed Wednesday at the desert oasis of Amgala, 100 miles from the Algerian border.

Algerian officials said the fighting flared up at sunrise in the area of Amgala, a stronghold of Algerian-backed Polisario Front guerrillas who seek independence for the desert territory.

But in the Moroccan capital of Rabat, Minister of Information Taibi Benhima said there were no reports Wednesday of a resumption of fighting in Amgala between Algerians and Moroccans, or of any Moroccan land or air military actions.

The Algerian governmentcontrolled news service APS said Wednesday Moroccan warplanes bombed three Saharan refugee camps near the coastal town of Dahkla, 600 miles from the Algerian border, killing women and children.

Benhima denied the charges as "incredible fabrications" and revised to 29 the number of Algerian soldiers he said were captured after a "vicious desert fire-fight" Tuesday in Amgala.

"The presense of regular Algerian soldiers fighting at the side of a band of rebels brings an ominous air to the Sahara," Benhima said.

Algerian President Houari Boumedienne met Wednesday with two Syrian officials said to be carrying a special message from Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Boumedienne said later, "The Moroccan troops invading the Sahara, like any colonial army, have used summary executions, massacres, germ warfare and napalm on the Saharan civilians."

A flurry of activity swept through Arab capitals anxious to avoid a new fraticidal conflict on the heels of the Lebanese civil war.

Diplomatic sources said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Iraqi President Ahmed Hassan El Bakr, Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba, and Syrian President Hafedh El Assad all personally telephoned both Algerian President Boumedienne and Moroccan King Hassan II to try to stop any further slide toward war.

Andretta Court Moves

DETROIT (UPI) — Stephen Andretta, appearing before the grand jury that is trying to unravel the Jimmy Hoffa mystery, spent more time outside the jury room conferring with his lawyer Wednesday than inside answering questions.

In his third appearance within a week, Andretta, the brother of a New Jersey Teamster, left the session 117 times to seek his lawyer's advice. Federal authorities would not say whether Andretta answered even one question.

The reluctant witness, who has interrupted the grand jury session to seek counsel 212 times since last Thursday, was called for more questions today.

As each question was put to him Wednesday in the jury room where reporters are not allowed, Andretta walked out to a hall to talk to his attorney, William E. Bufalino Sr.

In his performance Tuesday before the panel studying the disappearance of the former Teamsters president July 30, Andretta left the jury room 68 times for conferences with attorneys. Last Thursday, in his first appearance, Andretta left the jury room 27 times.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be wise. Steer clear of those who are looking for a good time today. They'll depend on you to foot the bill.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An eruption on the home front today could challenge your leadership. Don't overreact. You'll gain respect after things calm down.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be prepared to roll up your sleeves today and tackle some old-fashioned labor. Elbow grease could resolve an old problem.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The younger generation may cause you to dip into your pocketbook today. Salvage something. Lay down some new rules at the same time!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll have an unexpected crisis on the domestic scene today. You can solve it if you're willing to compromise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may find yourself to be all thumbs early in the day. Shun things requiring manual dexterity till later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your head's in the clouds today. You could want to buy an offbeat, useless item. It'll cost a bit, too.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The best approach today is to give in at home, but you'll find it hard to extricate yourself from the rigid position you've assumed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your normally glib tongue will not get you out of trouble today. In fact, it will only serve to put you in deeper.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Strive not to feel you're being taken in a material sense. If isn't so. If you curb your imagination, you'll learn a lesson.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you feel unreasonably apprehensive about the motives of a friend or associate, subdue it. Renewed faith in others brings rewards.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't take undue chances today. Listen closely to what that little voice is saying — "Be sensible and cautious."

After a possible erratic beginning this coming year, things will smooth out considerably. Don't despair. You'll emerge with a new, stronger personality.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

OLD, YOUNG: (Q.) My mom told Michael off on the phone the other night and I had a fight with her. She hit me. Do you think age matters? I am in love with Michael and he is in love with me. But I am 14 and he is 11 and my mom says he is too young and if he calls me again I will get hit again, or worse.

I went to a party with this guy who is 22 and my mom didn't say anything. But I don't love him, I love Michael. I don't think age matters. Do you? — Warned in Rhode Island

(A.) If you were 20 or older, your going with a male three years younger or eight years older wouldn't disturb me. But I do feel that at 14 you are too old for an 11-year-old boy and much too young for a 22-year-old man. Aren't there any boys in your classes at school? They are your age, the right age for you. Your mother should not hit you.

DANCE: (Q.) I met Oliver during the summer. He lives in another town. He visited near me during the holidays and I was supposed to go out with him while he was here but didn't.

Now I am sorry. I know I really like him, and would like to try it again by asking him to my school's annual dance. Do you think I should ask him? — Interested in Indiana

(A.) If Oliver does not live too far away and if his coming to the dance would not be too complicated or expensive for him, yes, ask him. He apparently asked you for a date and you said no. Your invitation will tell him it was not a permanent "no."

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Opening lead — Q ♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Forty years ago most bridge players believed that if a hand was worth an opening bid they had to overcall with it. They would stick in a two-diamond overcall with their four quick tricks. West would double and when the smoke had cleared away our hero would have taken his two ace-kings and the defense the other nine tricks.

South would say, "I had a good opening bid." Everyone would sympathize with him, particularly East and West.

No one would point out that if he had kept his mouth shut East and West might well have landed at four spades-down one.

Today most players realize that it is unwise to overcall with a four-card suit at any time and that you really need a six carder for a two-level overcall.

If a modern player did want to bid with that 4-3-3-3 South hand he would make a takeout double. North would respond two clubs and probably would not be doubled. If doubled he would not go down more than two and might get out for one.

The boss told our salesmen he's having a fire sale — either sell something or get fired.

Add to your dictionary of collective nouns: a closing of gas stations.

The easiest thing to mind is your neighbor's business.

Conversations with Koenig

Broadway East, Hall, U.S. Funding

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON

Every other year about this time people start wondering when Kingston's all-time plurality winner is going to make his move for higher office.

This won't be the year. "I am not a candidate," said Mayor Francis R. Koenig. "I have no intention of running for any state office."

Koenig prefers to stay with the job he was elected to for a record-tying fourth straight term and indications are there is lots of work to be done.

The Broadway East situation again appears to be up in the air. Last year Koenig thought he had a developer in Thomas Sentar of Port Ewen. Sentar still hasn't been able to sign a food market for the proposed City Hall Plaza. Koenig revealed, during his weekly interview at the Freeman, that he's talking to another developer. Sentar has not been available for comment.

Koenig still isn't changing his plan for Broadway East despite five years of failure to redevelop the five-acre parcel just below City Hall. "There's a need for a supermarket down there," he says, although not ruling out altogether the splitting up of the parcel as he did uptown. "I'm open to any ideas," he said.

OLD CITY HALL — Koenig revealed that he's written to Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) for an extension of state funding for the restoration of the old City Hall at 408 Broadway. The state had committed up to $500,000 in matching funds but the money runs out on March 31. Koenig feels that in light of the city's application for up to $300,000 in federal funds through the Community Development Program, the state may prove receptive to an extension. Hinchey has pledged his support.

FEDERAL FUNDING — Koenig also revealed that he's been in contact with Congressman Matthew F. McHugh (D-27th Dist.) and Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th Dist.) concerning a recently approved (but yet to be signed by President Ford) program that would supply federal funds for public improvements, such as a new garage for the department of public works, a new firehouse, the old City Hall, etc. The city applied for over a million dollars worth of projects under a similiar federal program last year but was turned down.

REASSESSMENT — A continuing topic of conversation and public interest. Little has been done on city-wide reassessment beyond a meeting with county officials.

The mayor estimates that it will take 50 to 60 "data gatherers" to compile information on the city's almost 7,000 residential parcels in order to reassess the city and tax at 100 per cent of value rather than the existing 26.2 per cent. He did not detail how the data gatherers would be selected, how they would be trained or the degree of supervision. He did say there is no money in this year's budget for such a project, indicating that either the money will have to be borrowed or that it will not take place until next year.

Koenig also revealed that the city was forced to fire Mrs. Mary Ann Bahruth, a CETA (Concentrated Employment Training Act) employe in the assessor's office ufter a federal protest over "nepotism." Mrs. Bahruth is the daughter of Recreation Superintendent Andrew J. Murphy III. Federal regulations forbid the hiring of relatives of any city superintendent. Mrs. Bahruth was rehired as a regular city employe on a "temporary basis" on Monday.

ODDS AND ENDS — Koenig said he's talked to United Way officials about the possibility of renting the old City Hall for a dollar a year if it's renovated. United Way has been looking at the Children's Home on East Chester Street as a site for an agency office building.

The swimming pool at Dietz Stadium (Andretta Park) will be open this summer, Koenig said. Money has been budgeted for its operation.

Koenig said the Common Council will have to make a decision on an architect for the renovation of the municipal auditorium under the city's Community Development Program. Bids have been received from three Kingston architects — George Hutton, John McCullough and Albert Milliken — with Hutton reportedly the lowest.

The mayor appears optimistic that Martin Aaron and his associates can soon finalize financing for 100 units of senior citizen housing at St. Anne's at Broadway and Orchard Street and for another 80 units of senior housing at the Governor Clinton Hotel. "I understand that he's secured financing," the mayor said. That financing was not secured locally, with several upstate banks putting up the almost $2.5 million necessary for both projects.

Treasurer's Aide Quits For 'A Better Job'

KINGSTON

The number two man in the city treasurer's office, Charles Hafemann, a certified public accountant, has resigned his $15,782 a year post for what was termed "a better job" as comptroller with the town of Poughkeepsie.

Hafemann, a former loan officer with the city's now defunct Code Enforcement Program, was appointed principal account clerk in the treasurer's office by Mayor Francis R. Koenig in August of 1973. After passing a Civil Service test with a mark of 85 the following May, Hafemann was granted permanent appointment in July of 1974.

There was no formal announcement of Hafemann's resignation — "he got a better job, I guess," was the mayor's only comment.

"That man was one of the most dedicated employes I've ever had," said City Treasurer Francis H. Law. Hafemann was reportedly disgruntled with the mayor's salary freeze this year and accepted the position in Poughkeepsie which pays a higher wage. He left last Friday.

Koenig said he is checking with the city's civil service commission on filling the vacancy in the treasurer's office.

Reportedly, there is an established list from May of 1974 when the civil service test for principal account clerk was last administered. Hafemann finished second on that test with his 85. Jose Sanchez was first with a mark of 99. Others passing the test included Mrs. Margaret Johnson with a mark of 83.5 and John H. Houghtaling, former principal account clerk, with a mark of 76 per cent.

Mrs. Johnson is currently employed as secretary to the superintendent of public works. Sanchez works as a CSEA organizer.

Aid Squad Dinner

KERHONKSON

The Kerhonkson-Accord First Aid Squad, Inc., held its 10th annual installation dinner at Rubin's Hotel in Kerhonkson recently.

The dinner was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Dave Rubin, proprietors of the hotel.

The evening's business meeting included the annual report by squad President Amy Krom. She reported that the squad responded to 428 first aid calls in 1975, worked 2,752 man hours, traveled 14,645 miles and used 1,663 gallons of gasoline. The gasoline was donated by Nick's Time Square in Kerhonkson and T.H.E. Honda in Accord.

The meeting also included installation of officers for 1976 and installation of Explorer Post 122, which assists the first aid squad.

County Awaiting Word on 'Disaster Aid'

KINGSTON

County officials were awaiting an official declaration of a state of emergency from the governor's office today, a necessary prerequisite to receiving federal aid monies by local governments for damages incurred by the "Flood of '76."

For the individual homeowner impacted by the soggy excesses of the past few days, it appears that he must gain an insurance estimate from his agent before moving back in, according to Civil Defense Director John Adsit.

The flood gives county residents an opprotunity to use their federally sponsored National Flood Insurance—if they do not live in the Village of Saugerties, anyway.

The village submitted its final papers applying for the flood plain insurance "within the past week or two," according to clerk Georgette Hughes, giving homeowners scant time to avail themselves of the offering before the deluge. It was estimated that most of the flood damage from the Esopus was sustained upstream in town boundaries, however.

Adsit will be coordinating public and private damage assessment and claims from the Civil Defense office, said County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, today. Adsit commented that he had just begun that task, and there were numerous government agencies to deal with ("they had 18 agencies involved in Westchester recently"). He added that all town supervisors were contacted last night to spread the information that residents should contact their insurance agents before returning to damaged homes.

Flood waters have subsided everywhere in the county, according to several reports. Tom Latham of the Department of Environmental Conservation office in New Paltz, noting that his office was not officially responsible but helped out where it could yesterday, commented that interdepartmental cooperation was outstanding among state and local police and fire companies; state, county, and municipal agencies; and the general public.

The Wallkill River "was surprisingly good yesterday," said Latham, considering the flow.

John Barry of Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr.'s (R-Dist. 101) Washington office explained that state officials must determine the extent of local damages. Private homes and businesses may be eligible for Small Business Administration loans at five per cent interest. If the county is determined to be a "major disaster area," the federal Housing and Urban Development Agency will open a local office to process claims, and all public roads, bridges, and buildings will be replaced.

As he explained the shifting of responsibility, "If the city can handle it, it must; if not, the state must handle it. And if it's a major disaster area, the federal government will handle it."

The Danger Passes

By Tim Schuster

SAUGERTIES

"The thing we're afraid of is that a big chunk will break off and take that dam out," explained Frank Greco, Town of Saugerties Supervisor, as we surveyed the rain-swolleh Esopus Creek breaking off sheets of ice and flinging them downstream.

But earlier today, the picture was a little brighter.

"The danger is passed," village police said today. The jam broke up again early today and the water level is subsiding.

On the rampage beginning Tuesday night, the creek gave its first warnings of serious difficulty when the people living along its banks, about one mile south on the north-flowing stream of the Cantine Mill dam, heard the rushing current encroaching on their homes.

Warm temperatures had loosened the thick layer of frozen water covering the creek, and the heavy rains washing down from the Ashokan Dam through the flood plain in Kingston had all but obliterated the Glenerie rapids, which appeared as the continuous detergent of an overwrought washing machine.

Passing on downstream toward the Saugerties Village Beach, the torrent found its progress impeded by a backup of solid ice floes behind the mill dam, in the village proper next to the 9W bridge.

"I've never seen this many people standing outside on a cold windy day like this . . . except for a football game," said one man shivering in a light jacket as he overlooked the dam falls.

The people lined vantage points for the spectacle on the newly renovated steel bridge, along the evacuated beach street where police stood guard as the tiny icebergs whirled through the rungs of the jungle gym in the playground, and overlooking the waterfall from a spot where access was gained only by climbing over a spiked iron fence, behind the old mill.

The dam, reportedly under eight to ten feet of solid rushing water, elicited the remark time after time as this Freeman reporter watched, from longtime residents, "I've never seen it like this before."

Huge floes the breadth and width of a room soared over the precipice into the surging mix below, propelling enormous jets of emulsion higher yet than the dam itself. As the afternoon wore on, it became more believable that the old dam would survive the intense punishment just because it still survived.

The police walkie-talkie crackled down at the scene of concern by the beach, where huge whirlpools raged and the ice broke loose.

But there was nothing that any policeman, politician, or volunteer fireman could do about the flood. It dwarfed the men, women, and children lining the banks of the Esopus Creek and held them in common awe of its force, unleashed at random against anything that stood in its way. The people, joined against a common threat, spoke freely to each other even though strangers, and then walked away with wonder in their minds.

Scene Worthy of World War II

By Carl Graham

TOWN OF ULSTER

The scene at the Ulster Hose Company firehouse Wednesday night was reminiscent of London during the World War II blitz.

Firemen in windbreakers and rubber boots sipped on coffee from plastic cups and compared notes on what had happened. Displaced families sat at tables more often used for Friday night bingo games, eating from box lunches. Red Cross workers conferred with each other, making plans for the families that had been forced to leave their homes.

No bombs were falling and it wasn't a major catastrophe like a blitz, but it was serious enough for the families who had been forced to leave their homes along flooded Esopus Creek.

David Bruce, who lives with his wife in a trailer at 932 Orlando Street, had been expecting a flood, but it came from an unexpected source.

"I'm a member of the Lower Esopus Creek Waterways Committee," he explained. "We were concerned because limbs from trees hit by the Dutch elm disease were falling into the creek. They were backing up the water and we figured they would cause a flood."

The flood came, all right, but it was brought on by a heavy rainstorm combined with melting snow in the unseasonable warm snap that drove ice-choked Ulster County streams over their banks.

"We were up until 4:30 a.m. (Wednesday) and we could see the water coming over the road at the trailer park. When they cut the power off we moved out," Bruce said.

He had just returned from an inspection trip and said that the water seemed to be receding slowly. Although it hadn't gotten into his trailer, he wasn't about to go back unless there was power and heat. The situation is nothing new to the Bruces —they have been forced out twice before in the 15 years they have lived there.

Like the Bruces, most of the families in the area had stayed up Tuesday night to keep an eye on the water.

"We never went to sleep," said Robert Hull of 987 Orlando Street. "We stayed until 4:30 a.m., then went to our daughter's home at the top of the hill."

Along with his wife and five children, Hull took Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Snyder of Albany, friends from the days when the Snyders were neighbors on Orlando Street.

"You picked a great time to come back for a visit," Snyder was told. "We certainly did," he replied.

"We'll stay here to help the Hulls out," Mrs. Snyder added.

Both families said they would spend Wednesday night with the Hull's daugher, Mrs. Wendy Cole, if they were unable to get back into the Hull's home.

Earl Kimble of 53 Buckley Street was another who spent the night keeping a wary eye on the rising water.

"It started coming up fast that last hour," Kimble said "We drove up to the firehouse and had a good breakfast."

Kimble, a mechanic, took several precautions before leaving his home. He removed the motor unit from his furnace and pulled the fuses in the fuse box.

All but three of the evacuated families had made arrangements to stay with friends or relatives until they could get back into their own homes. The three families were put up at the 9W Motel by the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross. All evacuees are being fed at the firehouse on Ulster Avenue Mall

"The water got into the basement of our home,' said Barbara Fisk of 961 Orlando Street, who spent the rest of the night in Mt Marion

The displaced families all praised the efforts of volunteer firemen from Ulster Hose Company No 5, who were on duty all night pumping out cellars and helping the families who were forced to leave

Half-Way on 'Pot'

NEW YORK — A medical investigator of marijuana says the drug should be decriminalized but not legalized because "we don't have all the answers."

Dr. Sydney Cohen of the University of California told a three-day conference on marijuana that the mental processes of 30 pot-smoking participants in a study he conducted were not impaired whether they used the drug or not

He said he doesn't think it right to arrest teen agers for possession of small amounts. He opposed legalization because "We don't have all the answers."

Fidel: Lift Blockade

HAVANA, Cuba — Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro says he is not anxious to improve relations with the United States, which has objected to Cuban involvement in Angola, and called again for a lifting of the U.S. economic blockade against the island nation.

"We have no eagerness at all (to improve relations)," Castro said. "We are not interested in relations if it means they are on the basis of humility."

Beirut Almost Peaceful

BEIRUT, Lebanon — One week after a Syrian-mediated truce went into effect, the people of Lebanon have begun repairing their shattered nation. The first step was carting away the bodies left buried beneath the ruins of war.

Only scattered sniping in the suburbs and four street kidnapings in Beirut marred an otherwise peaceful day Wednesday as army units and Palestine Liberation Army troops firmly supervised the cease-fire

Doctors Grudgingly Pay

LOS ANGELES — Waiting until the last minute, striking doctors grudgingly hastened to pay larger malpractice insurance premiums before their coverage lapsed today.

An estimated 80 per cent of Los Angeles County physicians paid the 327 per cent higher premiums which set off a doctors' strike. But they paid unwillingly, warning of higher medical bills and stepped up strike action in the 29-day old walkout.

Ford, Rabin at It Again

WASHINGTON — President Ford and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzak Rabin have scheduled another meeting because they failed to reach agreement on Middle East peace strategy in their two earlier talks, according to diplomatic sources.

The sources said the unexpected third meeting today was necessary because of failure to agree on how to proceed with new Arab-Israeli negotiations, including whether the Palestinian Liberation Organization should participate.

Handicap Takes Back Seat

POUGHKEEPSIE

Dale Natoli of Kingston, congenitally blind since birth, has been honored as the first recipient of the "client of the year award" presented recently by the Mid-Hudson Region of the National Rehabilitation Association.

Natoli, a medical transcriber at St. Francis Hospital in Poughkeepsie, was cited for his "motivation, strength and perserverance despite his handicap." He was honored at an awards dinner held this month in Fishkill.

A former client at Gateway Industries in Kingston, Natoli was hired in June by the Medical Records Department at St. Francis Hospital. His work there consists of typing patient records dictated by physicians on cassette recordings. A specialist in medical terminology, Natoli utilizes a seven-volume braille dictionary for reference purposes.

After attending special schools as a youngster, as well as the New York Institute for the Blind, Natoli joined Volunteers of America in Binghamton, where he served as a dispatcher. The victim of budgetary cutbacks in 1974, he returned to Kingston and began his training at Gateway.

In addition to sharpening his clerical skills at Gateway, Natoli was trained to undertake such domestic tasks as cooking and cleaning. He now maintains his own apartment in Kingston, and travels alone each day by bus to and from his job in Poughkeepsie.

Natoli was specifically cited at the awards dinner for his self-sufficiency at home, his mobility and his accomplishments as an employe. After accepting the award, he acknowledged the assistance provided by Gateway and paid tribute to Mrs Laura Rethier, his clerical instructor at Gateway.

The committee presenting the award consisted of members of the staffs of various rehabilitation agencies in Ulster, Sullivan and Orange Counties. Mrs. Marilyn Friedman of Occupations, Inc. in Newburgh, served as program chairperson.

One of four children of Joseph and Sadie Natoli of Kingston, Dale also serves as president of SEEC, a local organization for the blind sponsored by Kingston Lions Club.

State-Ordered Changes Upset Sheriff Mayone

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON

Changes in the State Correction Commission's "Minimum Standards" for the operation of county jails which are scheduled to go into effect May 1 will mean the necessity for costly alterations at the Ulster County Jail as well as additional manpower, according to Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone.

The new rules concern visits to prisoners, prisoner correspondence, access to the media and religion.

Mayone said the changes in visitation rules which are called for "will cause a serious problem" if they are implemented.

The new rules call for a visiting area to be established to allow for physical contact between prisoners and visitors as well as at least three visits a week of one hour each for every inmate, one between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on a weekday, one between 5 p.m. and 9 p.m on a weekday, and one on a Saturday or Sunday

They also call for constant supervision in the visiting area, do not allow the search of visitors except by metal detector, but do allow the search of prisoners prior to and following each visit.

Mayone said if the new rules go into effect, the present visiting area at the jail, which allows for visual and voice contact between inmate and visitor "will have to be torn apart." Additional men will have to be hired for the supervision in the visiting area, the increased number of visiting hours, and for the searches before and after each visit, which are not necessary under the present setup, Mayone said.

Noting that in the past, in special situations, prisoners have been allowed more than the minimum one visit a week and have been allowed contact visits (in attorney conference rooms), Mayone predicted "a fantastic problem with security in the visiting area." He cited the flow of drugs into the facility as a major potential problem.

Describing his feelings about the new rules as "unprintable," Mayone said he has spoken to other sheriffs about the new rules and described them as "very upset about it."

"I don't know of any county jail that can comply with the new rules on visitation without spending a lot of money," Mayone said

He also took issue with the new rules concerning correspondence. Outgoing mail can not be searched or read without a search warrant. Incoming mail can be searched for contraband, but even if contraband is found, the mail can not be read without a search warrant Additionally, the inmate must be informed that correspondence containing contraband arrived for him and he must be provided a copy of the correspondence.

Mayone said that at the present inmate mail is not read unless a tip has been received that something unusual (an escape or the smuggling of contraband) is planned He suggested there will be additional security problems as a result of the new rules on correspondence.

Mayone said he has no idea yet how much alterations at the jail needed to comply with the new rules could cost, but said he will be meeting with other county officials to attempt to come up with an estimate.

He said he "definitely will go" to a public hearing on the new rules tentatively scheduled for early March in Albany to voice his objections.

James McSparron, counsel for the Commission of Correction, questioned concerning the new rules by the Freeman, said he does not expect the potential problems and expenses as a result of the new rules to be as great as Mayone and other jail administrators are predicting. He said there is a possibility the new rules could be changed somewhat as a result of the input from the public hearing He held out little hope, however, for a change in the new rule regarding contact visits, explaining that the rule is a result of a court decision that mandates contact visits for pre-trial detainees.

Two Injured In Accident

LOMONTVILLE

Two persons were hospitalized, one with a broken neck, following a two-car head-on crash Wednesday on the Hurley Mountain Road in Lomontville.

State police said a car operated by Roger Depuy, 39, of 99 Hurley Avenue, Kingston, was going north on the roadway at about 9 a.m. when a car driven by Charles Abernethy, 48, of Cottekill Road, Stone Ridge, allegedly crossed the center line and the two vehicles collided.

Taken from the scene by Doctor's Ambulance were Abernethy and Janice Depuy, 29, who reportedly sustained a broken neck. She was transferred to Albany Medical Center Hospital where she was listed in fair condition today. Abernethy was listed in fair condition at Benedictine Hospital today. Depuy was taken by private vehicle to the hospital and was treated and released.

Abernethy was ticketed for driving to the left of the pavement markings.

Police Beat

Arrest One

Kingston Police Department detectives on Wednesday arrested Richard Blume, 19, of 120 Downs Street, on six counts of second degree forgery, a felony.

Police said Blume had allegedly cashed six checks belonging to a relative who has been dead since last May by forging the relative's name to the checks.

Blume was jailed pending court action.

Assault Charged

Ulster Town Constables early today arrested David DeCicco, 20, of RD 1, Box 288½, Kingston on a warrant charging him with second degree assault in connection with an incident at a local bar Wednesday night.

Police said DeCicco allegedly cut the bartender, identified as John Bergin of Saugerties, on the right hand with a broken glass. Bergin was treated and released at an area hospital, according to police.

DeCicco was jailed in lieu of $1,500 bail following arraignment.

Ticket and Then

A young Accord man went from the frying pan into the fire early today after getting a ticket in the Village of Ellenville for disobeying a traffic control device.

Police said William M. Garland, 25, of Whitfield Road, Accord, followed officers who gave him the ticket back to police headquarters and argued with them. Advised that he could plead innocent and go to trial, police said Garland allegedly used abusive language and then got in his car and backed into a police vehicle. Garland then allegedly resisted arrest, police said, and, when searched, was found to be in possession of a quantity of alleged marijuana.

Garland was being held in the village lockup early today awaiting a court appearance after being charged with harassment, resisting arrest, unsafe backing and seventh degree criminal possession of a controlled substance—in addition to the origina l traffic ticket.

Desertion Warrant

Bruce Spelino, 18, of Ulster Park, was being held today for military authorities after being arrested Wednesday by Ulster County Sheriff's deputies on a warrant charging him with desertion from the U.S. Navy. He was picked up in Ulster Park, deputies said.

Dog Survives 'Death House'

Found in a New York City midtown tenement apartment where the badly decomposed bodies of three women and a young girl were discovered Wednesday, a dog, alive but apparently very weak, is placed in an ASPC vehicle for removal to a shelter. Officials did not immediately identify the dead and were unable to state the cause of their deaths pending autopsies. Another dog was found dead in the apartment. (UPI)

Support Urged for NYC Tax Payment Law

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON

Taxes owed Ulster County by New York City, a move to create an industrial development agency here and plans to convert the Infirmary Annex to county welfare offices, top the Feb. 5 agenda of the Ulster County Legislature.

More support for state legislation to direct tax payment by the state comptroller of taxes owed Ulster County by New York City has come from County Legislator John Dwyer (D-City).

In a resolution filed with the Ulster County Legislature, Dwyer said the failure of New York City to meet tax payments on landholdings in Ulster County, "will have a devastating effect on the tax base."

Wednesday, Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) announced that he will ask the legislature to support a bill sponsored by Assemblyman Peter M. Sullivan (R-92nd Dist.) which would require the comptroller to divert from New York City state aid in an amount equal to any taxes owed by the city .

Since then Dwyer reports that Assmblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) "has indicated intentions to introduce appropriate legislation" authorizing the direct payment plan to insure communities in Ulster County the money owed them. Dwyer asks that the local and state legislature support such a measure.

The call for a special act of the state legislture to provide for the creation of an Industrial Development Agency, embracing all of Ulster County, is being made by the county's Industrial Development and Publicity Committee, Charles Scala (R-Dist. 3) chairman. The committee feels that an agency could stimulate industry and subsequently increase employment opportunities and would also place New York State in a competitive position with other states.

The Social Service Committee, Ernest J. Gardner (R-Dist. 5) chairman, asks that the architectural firm of Albert E. Milliken conduct a feasibility and cost estimate study for converting the present infirmary annex into welfare office space.

The move is contemplated since the State Department of Health has waived deficiencies at the infirmary annex with the understanding that the county is considering construction of an 80-bed addition to the new infirmary for a health-related facility.

Other proposals to come before the board when it meets at 4 and 8 p.m. in the Ulster County legislature include:

• Supporting the Federated Sportsmens Club in opposing Environmental Conservation Commissioner Ogden Reid's demotion of former regional director of the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation Warren McKeon.

• Requesting President Gerald R. Ford to sign the local Public Works and Capital investment Act of 1975 which would enable Ulster County to provide much needed capital construction.

• Requiring all county department heads to submit zero-based budgetary requests to the Finance Committee.

• Supporting the National Nuclear Reappraisal Act which calls for a five-year moratorium on development of nuclear reactors.

• Objecting to proposed changes in minimum standards for county jails, called for by the State Department of Correction.

• Providing for appointment of a minority counsel to the legislature.

• Appointing a person to fill the vacancy on the legislature created by the resignation of Robert H. Kuhlmann (R-Dist. 1) The GOP will nominate Frank Spada ad the Democrats, former Legislator Louis Resnick, who lost his bid for re-election last November.

• Appointment of Rose LeFever of Bloomington as associate county historian and Robert Burgher of West Shokan to Ulster County Planning Board.

• Appropriating $11,460 to Ulster County Senior Citizen's Alliance and $11,000 for a nutritional program for the elderly sponsored by the Ulster County Community Action Committee.

• Continuing the rural transportation program for Ulster County senior citizens.

• Providing $746 for the People's Place Project a pilot project in downtown Kingston which is providing transportation and couseling for the elderly.

Gardner Invited to 'Butt Out'

KINGSTON

Answering charges of playing politics in appointing minority committee chairman to the Ulster County Legislature, Louis M. Klein (D-Dist.6) accused Majority Leader Ernest J. Gardner (R-Dist.5) of "sticking his Republican nose into the organization efforts of Democratic legislators."

Klein said Gardner has enough to do leading the GOP legislators. He invited Gardner "to butt out" of Democratic business.

Countering Gardner said that any time the legislature is involved, "I shall certainly stick my Republican nose into any area necessary in order to save taxpayer's money."

Gardner took exception to Klein's use of county stationary and secretarial services to publish his list of minority chairmen. "This is improper use of public money and as an attorney, Klein should know that," he said.

Klein said he never proposed that the minority chairman either be recognized or accorded any status by Gardner. He said the appointments were made to strengthen the Democratic minority, by establishing a mechanism to provide input to its membership, concerning activities of all the committees.

Gardner previously contended that Klein had no right to appoint committee chairmen. Klein agreed today saying he abides by Savago's choices. But, he said, it is unfortunate that in Ulster County it is more important to be a Republican, than it is to be qualified.

Gardner said he is pleased that Klein now understands that it is the legislature chairman who is responsible for appointing committees.

"The function of minority chairmen," Klein said, "is to keep Democratic legislators informed of the activities of all committees within the legislature, Answering Gardner's assertion that duplicating the reports of each minority chairman will be an unnecessary expense to the taxpayers, Klein pointed out that "we have not requested nor will we request any such service."

Fabbie to Step Down

KINGSTON

City Republican Leader Frank Fabbie, figuring that "if you can't do what you set out to do in three years, it's time to give somebody else a chance," has resigned, effective when a successor is named.

Fabbie, officially "vice chairman for city affairs" for the county Republican Committee, was elected city chairman (when there was a "city chairman") in 1972 at a time when Republican fortunes in Kingston were at an all-time low.

"I came in when Brian Smith (a former alderman) was the Lone Ranger," Fabbie said. Smith was the only elected Republican out of 22 elected officials at that time.

Things have improved statistically since then—the Democrats now hold only 18 of 22 seats with the election of four Republican aldermen last year—but the political effect is much the same, total domination. The Democratic mayor and alderman-at-large still carry every district of the city.

Fabbie also cited his activites with the Lions Club as another reason for his resignation. He's third vice chairman in charge of tickets for the Lions Expo, slated for May 11-15 this year. Fabbie said he will retain his post as a 10th Ward Republican committeeman.

County Chairman Albert Spada expressed his regrets over Fabbie's resignation although it obviously came as no surprise. "He told me several months ago," Spada said. Fabbie informed the city committee last week and Spada infomed the county committee last night.

Unlike past years, there appears to be no shortage of candidates to fill the post of GOP city leader. Spada mentioned such names as Peter Graham (attorney for the GOP minority in the Common Council and a First Ward committeeman), Frank Stauble and Emma Aprea, both candidates for legislator last year, James Martin and James Thompson and James DeCicco, the former two being past vice chairmen of the party, the latter the long-time leader in the Ninth Ward.

Asks for Nuclear Reappraisal

KINGSTON

Legislation asking the Ulster County Legislature to support the National Nuclear Reappraisment Act has been filed by Edward Ullmann (D-Dist. 2).

Ullmann will ask the legislature at its Feb. 5 meeting to go on record supporting the act which calls for a five-year moratorium on the development of nuclear reactors until they can be proven beyond a doubt.

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th Dist.) sponsored legislation last year titled the Nuclear Energy Reappraisal Act of 1975 in order to allow a five-year study before contracts are awarded for the nuclear plants.

Ullman, noting that the debate on the safety of nuclear plants continues, feels the citizens of Ulster County have been placed in a position of having to accept the question of serious risk to their health and safety and that of their children, in exchange for dubious economic gains without any opportunity to express themselves on the matter.

Five nuclear power plants are contemplated in the Ulster County area — four in Lloyd and one in Cementon.

Ullmann said the safety, health and economic risks associated with nuclear power in its present state of development are so serious that any decision to permit the construction of nuclear facilities in Ulster County "should clearly represent the choice of the people. The people, he said; because of the lasting and poisonous nature of atomic radiation, "must not speak just for themselves but for future generations."

Ullmann feels more time must be given in order to allow for the development of practical energy sources and energy conservation methods which can serve as a less dangerous alternative.

Hinchey Vote Move Approved

SAUGERTIES

Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) announced today that a resolution which he sponsored to bring electronic voting to the Assembly and an end to so-called "empty chair" voting was overwhelmingly approved by his colleagues by a margin of 135-6.

Said Hinchey, "As of January, 1977, New York will join 40 other state legislatures and the U.S. House of Representatives in the use of an electronic voting system, incorporating the best features of other systems using the latest technologies. The system we contemplate using will be more advanced than any presently in operation, and will save an estimated total of 75 session hours. And an increase in efficiency in the legislative process translates into hard cash savings for New York taxpayers."

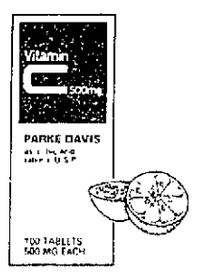

Hinchey said he had "fought hard" for this particular resolution both in Albany as well as in Ulster County during his election campaign, and that he considered his successful sponsorship "one of the chief accomplishments so far in my term of office."

"At present," Hinchey continued, "once an Assemblyman is marked present for the legislative day, his vote is automatically tallied in the affirmative unless he says otherwise. So, regardless of whether or not the legislator is in his seat, his vote is recorded in favor of the particular bill in question. The burden is clearly on those who choose to dissent.

"The electronic voting measure is only one bill in a package of rules changes made by the Assembly last year and this which will help to eliminate some of the ill-conceived legislative practices of past years."

The Hearst Jury...Closed-Door Questioning

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Four jurors were tentatively seated in Patricia Hearst's bank robbery trial Wednesday, but selection of a panel to try the heiress was bogged down by detailed closed-door questioning of each prospective jury member.

U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter's earlier prediction that a jury would be seated in two days proved to be wrong when up to an hour was needed to interrogate prospective jurors individually about any biases or opinions which could prevent them from judging the case impartially.

Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said it was possible the 12 jurors and four alternates could be chosen by Friday, "but if we do, Thursday will be a busy day."

After barring the press from the proceedings at the request of the defense, Carter asked questions of seven members of the panel of 36 chosen by lot as the first prospective jurors. Among the 22 women and 14 men were a dozen housewives, a number of retired men, a dental assistant, a carpenter, a woman employe of the YWCA, a machinist, a San Francisco city employe, several divorcees, a bank employe and a retired Navy man.

Of the seven, four were tentatively seated and three were excused.

Those excused were dismissed "for cause" — that is, it was established there was something in their background, their predisposition in the case or other reasons why they should not serve.

It was expected that once Carter finished interrogating the 36, he would return to open court. At that time the prosecution and defense would be able to use their "peremptory challenges" — dismissal of a juror just because they don't like his looks or have a hunch he might already have formed an opinion about whether Miss Hearst is guilty or innocent.

The auburn-haired defendant is charged with the armed robbery of a San Francisco bank branch along with four members of the Symbionese Liberation Army which kidnaped her nearly two years ago. If found guilty, she could be sentenced to 35 years in prison.

Carter's questions came from a list of 152 proposed by the prosecution and defense, and while he was not obligated to ask all of them, the lengthy questioning indicated he was asking many.

One of the excused witnesses, Mrs. Wilma F. Brookhauser, said the question of whether the 21-year-old granddaughter of legendary newspaper owner William Randolph Hearst had participated in her own kidnaping had come up. She said she told the judge she had suspicions Miss Hearst either helped plan it or had advance knowledge of it.

She also said she felt she had been prejudiced by seeing photographs of Miss Hearst standing with a gun in the bank she is accused of robbing.

"Reflecting about it, I thought what a shame — such a pretty girl and such an opportunity she had," Mrs. Brookhauser said.

Ford Economy Drive Derailed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's election-year economy drive has sustained a major setback with congressional passage of a $45 billion measure funding two government agencies and a variety of social programs over his veto.

The measure also contains the strongest antibusing language passed by Congress so far to prohibit the Department of Health, Education and Welfare — but not the courts — from busing students beyond neighborhood schools.

The Senate voted 70-24 — seven more than the required two-thirds — to override the Ford veto Wednesday. The measure automatically became law since the House voted 310-113 to override on Tuesday.

The bill provides money for HEW and the Labor Department during the 15 months ending Sept. 30. It was about $1 billion more than Ford asked, although within congressional spending targets for the current fiscal year.

Seventeen Senate Republicans joined 53 Democrats in overriding the veto.

Ford, in his veto message, called the bill "a classic example of unchecked spending" and said it was "inconsistent with fiscal discipline and with effective restraint on the growth of government."

But congressional backers said the President's proposals would cut spending below last year's levels and not even allow for inflation. Another factor was the popularity of social programs carried in the legislation — especially in an election year.

"It seems that everytime that Congress works its will on domestic programs, people programs ... we hear a resounding 'no' from the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue," said floor manager Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., in reference to previous Ford vetoes.

Ford has vetoed 23 bills, including six pocket vetoes, during this Congress. The Labor-HEW measure is only the fourth veto to be overturned and the first this year.

Sen. Milton Young, R-N.D., the only senator to speak in favor of sustaining the veto, said, "These greater expenditures will increase the debt and the deficit which are already too high."

Other Senators, however, said funding for social programs carried in the legislation has been delayed too long. These programs include child and maternal health, mental health funding, nutrition programs, rural housing programs and money for cancer, diabetes and heart disease research.

The antibusing language in the bill prohibits HEW from ordering school districts to bus students beyond the school nearest their homes for integration purposes. Neither court-ordered busing nor busing initiated under threat of court order — which constitute the vast majority of cases — would be affected.

Even OPEC Has Money Problems

PARIS (UPI) — The oil cartel nations have trimmed their $1 billion aid program for underdeveloped nations to $800 million, complaining of financial problems of their own.

Two of the 13 member nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said they could not contribute to the fund.

According to official sources, OPEC cut back its billion-dollar pledge Wednesday when Indonesia and Ecuador said they were unable to participate. Other countries offered smaller contributions than anticipated, they said.

In addition, the OPEC finance ministers made no commitment to extend the fund beyond this year.

Conference officials said several delegations complained the oil nations already have contributed heavily to development aid through other programs — in fact donating more than the industrialized Western countries.

OPEC nations, according to a Jan. 19 U.S. Treasury estimate, will take in more than $100 billion in oil revenue this year.

The OPEC decision was a disappointment to Iran and Venezuela, who cosponsored the concept of the special fund as a means of strengthening the developing nations' solidarity, sources said. Venezuela and Iran had sought a five-year aid program.

In a brief communique, the OPEC conference said the decision on the aid program was unanimous. The statement said the aid will be in the form of interest-free, long-term loans, but gave no details.

Staley: Return Art Film

HIGHLAND — District Attorney Francis J. Vogt has been ordered by Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley to retrun films, projectors and other equipment his office seized last fall from the Highland Art Cinema.

Armed with search warrants, the DA's office and police confiscated X-rated films and arrested the projectionist, Steve Cardinal of Newburgh, on obscenity charges under 235 of the penal code last October.

Justice Staley ruled that police acted in an unconstitutional manner. Citing article 410 of the penal law, he ruled the issuance of a seizure warrant was a pre-determination of obscenity. Under article 235, he said a jury must decide if material is obscene. He suggested that Vogt was seeking to have the court synthesize 235 with 410 so as to amend the definition of pornography.

Vogt said he will appeal the case to the highest court.

The plaintiff, Plaza Development Corp. which owns Highland Art Cinema in Highland, was accused Oct. 16 of commiting the crime of obscenity. The raid on the movie house was the result of a month of investigation which came about as a result of public outcry in the Highland area over the theatre and the showing of alleged poronographic films.

Plaza Development claimed it is financially unable to replace the projectors and was forced to close its doors. If the seizures were to be continued, it said, it would be forced to close permanently.

Plaza charged that the seizures are a "politically motivated pattern of harrassment" to force the movie house out of business. It claimed further that 410 of the penal law is unconstitutional and deprives persons of the rights and liberties afforded under the first, fourth and 14th amendments.

At the time of the seizure, the police seized two films, "SOS" and "Sweet Agony" as well as two projectors. Lloyd Town Justice Gary Palmer issued the warrant after personally reviewing the films and concluding that they violated obscenity law.

On Oct. 20, another projector and three reels were seized on a warrant issued by Saugerties Town Justice Robert Schirmer.

Arrested in the first raid were Cardinal and Gordon DePew, of Highland, cashier.

The Showboat . . .

One of Kingston's well-known sights, the Driftwood Floating Theater showboat, became a victim of winter over the weekend.

Ice gnawing at the ancient wooden hull sent the showboat to the bottom of the Rondout Creek. Pumping efforts by the Kingston Fire Dept. were in vain.

We are hopeful that Captain Edward C. Furbush, owner of the showboat, will be successful in his efforts to bring the barge back to the surface, restore it and continue giving area residents an integral part of Americana—entertainment.

. . . And The Clearwater

Despite the fact it is less than seven years old, the Hudson River sloop Clearwater is on the verge of literally sinking.

A minimum of $55,000 is needed by mid-April to pay for the ship's overhaul.

Unless the monies are raised, the good ship Clearwater will be in dry dock this year for our country's Bicentennial celebration.

A massive fund-raising effort is being conducted to raise enough money for the Clearwater to take part in the gala celebration.

We wish those behind this venture luck and hope to see the sloop that Pete Seeger made famous again sail along the majestic Hudson River and remind Hudson Valley residents of our rich historical heritage.

An Obvious Answer

Dear Editor:

In answer to the gentlemen who thinks he is getting ripped-off because he has to pay for the gas that is left in the hose after the nozzle is shut off:

The answer is so obvious, yet reflects a part of human nature.

It is easy to see that we are paying for the gas left in the hose, but not so easy to realize as soon as the man starts pumping the gas into the tank, we are getting the gas left in the hose for free, which incidentaly, someone else paid for. It all comes out even in the end.

Respectfully,

A Disturbed Reader

Dear Editor:

I was very disturbed when I read your letter of explanation to Mr. Singer that appeared in the "Freeman's" Readers Write column on Wednesday, January 21, 1976.

In the letter, you stated, "I withheld it from publication because I didn't agree with you" as the reason for initially not publishing Mr. Singer's letter about the comments he made at the City of Kingston Budget Hearing.

I was disturbed because I was not aware that an Editor's agreement was a prerequisite for publication of a letter to the Editor. I suggest, if it were, a Readers Write Letter that takes issue with the way the "Freeman" reported a particular incident would always appear as an advertisement.

In Mr. Singer's letter, only one out of six paragraphs was devoted to criticizing the "Freeman's" reporting. The others were devoted to issues that concern a lot of taxpayers. The letter clearly warranted publication when first received.

As you finally realized, the "Freeman's" "...obligation to see that concerned citizens are heard..." should always receive higher priority than personal agreement. That priority is even more acute considering the "Freeman" is the only publication serving this area.

Sincerely,
George C. Mills III,
Hurley

Shoveling The Sidewalks

Dear Editor:

I read M. H. Wards letter about the sidewalks and I agree with her. However, in all justice to people who do not shovel sidewalks I suppose they reason that there ane many places in kingston who do not even have sidewalks. People have to walk in the road in those neighborhoods also.

Everyone today is afraid to shovel snow because there is so much talk about heart attacks.

I am retired and exercise daily to keep in shape. In the summer I play golf and in the winter I bowl. In between times I have a garden, and this time of year I enjoy shoveling snow. I walk around the city streets from a mile to two miles a day. I must admit that Mrs. Ward has a point as far as some side walks are concerned.

People with beautiful homes do not bother to shovel their sidewalks. Perhaps they do not have the energy or time to shovel themselves, but they could hire a boy or an unemployed man. It might give someone a break who needs money.

I prefer to shovel my own driveway just for the exercise. Nevertheless occasionally a boy comes along and wants to help. If he makes me a resonable price I let him help just to give him a break.

If some of these people with nice big homes would keep the boy busy, I would not have to hire him.

Kingston

Pride, Not Schools

Dear Editor:

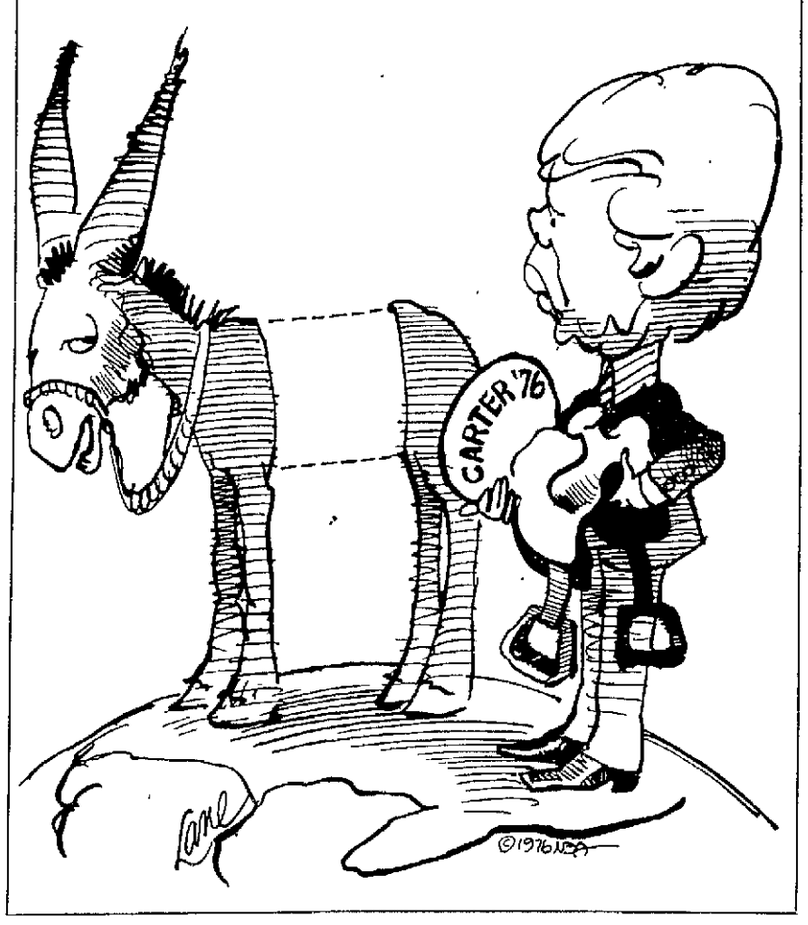

In reply to the plea for the burdened taxpayers to support the construction of a new high school, let us look at the other side of the coin. First the idea of a new school was vetoed by the voters, next with people having a hard time feeding their families, keeping a roof over their heads, they are not going to want to pay for anything let alone a new school. We have had schools right in Kingston closed—then sold (if kept, they could have been utilized). Buildings should not be equated with learning.

It was pointed out that the schools have so many expanded programs that it was a main cause for overcrowding. Well, I state now as I've stated in the past—if the schools went back to basic teaching and out of social programs, the children would benefit and so would the taxpayers. As it stands now we have kids graduating from high school who can't read, write, spell or do anything except tell everyone what's wrong with the United States and sneer at everyone who works for a living.

New schools are not what's needed—a return to pride in learning is far more important.

'That's The Uncommitted Part'

William F. Buckley Jr.

The Great Manhunt

DAVIS, CALIF. — One must suppose that, like so many other vague psychological maladies plaguing the land, the general skepticism on the question of who killed JFK is really in the nature of a cognate question: who really ordered Watergate? Who really was guilty of aggression at the Tonkin Gulf? Who really started the Cold War? What were the motives of the Founding Fathers? Who-in-the-hell (that is the idiomatic way of putting it) is God, and what-in-the-hell is He up to?

Going the rounds of the colleges, one comes upon a general skepticism, the particular formulations of which reflect, really, a generic bewilderment at least, cynicism at worst. Perhaps more than any other single concrete question, the question arises: Weren't we all bamboozled by the Warren Commission's Report on the killing of JFK? The most popular current assault on the Warren Commission is a paperback by Robert Sam Anson, a detailed examination of which was recently published in National Review by Mr. David Belin, who served as Counsel with the Warren Commission and wrote a book reaffirming the findings of the Commission a season ago.

Consider Anson's handling of the circumstances surrounding the murder of Officer Tippit, the other human being murdered in Dallas on November 22, 1963. Both Anson and the Warren Commission agree that the murder of Tippit was crucial. If Oswald did it, Oswald also killed Kennedy unless an inventive alternative surpassing the reach of current imagination comes through with an explanation that provides a surrealistic alternative.

Mr. Belin interviewed Johnny Calvin Brewer, the manager of a shoe store in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas. Brewer, under oath, testified that he was listening to the radio while working in his store and heard the news flash that a police officer had been shot about eight blocks away. He then heard a police siren. At that moment a stranger walked into the lobby outside the shoe store, paused a moment, turned around walked down the street, and entered the Texas Theatre, a few doors down. Brewer, suspicious, followed him, walked into the dark movie theatre, then back to the cashier, asking her to call the police. The cashier complied, and, the police arriving, the houselights inside the theatre were turned on. "I looked out from the curtains and saw the man," Brewer testified; i.e., the man who had dodged into the lobby outside his store after Tippet's killing.

"Then what happened?" Belin asked him.

He described the police rushing in. Several of them surrounded Brewer, and asked whether he could identify the suspect. Yes, he said, pointing to the man he could now recognize, the lights having been turned on.

"Then what did you see?"

Brewer: "Well, I saw this policeman approach Oswald (by this time of course the stranger's name was known) and Oswald stood up and I heard some hollering . . . (and) Oswald hit Patrolman McDonald . . ."

Patrolman McDonald knocked Oswald back to his seat; Oswald pulled out a gun; was overwhelmed, and taken to the Dallas Police Station and booked for the murder of Officer Tippit.

Here is Anson's account, in his best-selling book — the kind of thing the students get their neuroses from:

"McDonald couldn't be sure who he was supposed to be looking for. As McDonald scanned the theatre, a man sitting near the front spoke up quietly. The man the police were looking for, he said, was sitting on the ground floor, in the center, about three rows from the back . . . The police had their man. As they led him away the man in the front row who had fingered him rose from his seat, walked outside, and quietly disappeared."

In pursuit of conspiracy, the author Anson does his best to conceal from the reader the graphic line that led from Brewer's identification of Oswald at the shoe store, on through to his identification of him to the police, including the aggressive conduct of Oswald on being questioned. Given this kind of license in writing a book, one would not have much trouble in casting doubt on whether Neil Armstrong set foot on the moon, or whether it was really JFK who delivered the Inaugural Address that nowadays makes Hubert Humphrey and other candidates for the presidency blush with amnesia.

Why? There is a horrible free-enterprise explanation for it. It's what the people want — the students, for instance. On CBS's "60 Minutes," a former executive of CIA reveals that a lecture agent told him he could make $10,000 a year defending the CIA, and ten times that denouncing it. It's hard, in the American tradition, to get mad at con-men. But easier to get mad at con-men who present themselves, as Anson and his sposnors do, as devotees of the truth.

Ford: Caretaker Of the Daring?

WASHINGTON — The most politically revealing fact about Treasury Secretary William Simon's audacious tax reform proposal is that it evinced a private telephone call of congratulations from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy but none from President Ford.

There was no such call from the Oval Office because encouraging Simon's scheme — eliminating all personal income tax deductions in return for dramatically lowered rates — is today the last thing Mr. Ford wants. Instead of mentioning it in his State of the Union message, the President urged that still more tax preferences (for laudable social purposes, to be sure) be jammed into the chaotic Internal Revenue code. So far, the White House won't even flash a green light for Treasury studies on Simon's ideas.

By flashing a red light instead, Mr. Ford balks at attempting a risky but titillating political coup. As an exercise in laissez faire capitalism, Simon's plan is immune from theoretical conservative attack. But it also wins applause from Teddy Kennedy by simultaneous closing thousands of tax loopholes. Gerald R. Ford could be transformed into the election-year champion of the common man against the special interests.

To embrace Simon's plan, however, would confront the President with mighty interests dependent on tax deductions — housing, the church, charities. Rather than face that confrontation, Mr. Ford delivered an especially soporific State of the Union address which, while avoiding high-risk ventures such as Ronald Reagan's $90 billion fund transfer, did not escape humdrum Main Street Republicanism.

Thus, behind Mr. Ford's flinching from the Simon plan is not ideology but reflective caution instilled during 25 years in congressional politics.

Ex-financier Bill Simon is certainly no closet liberal. Privately called a "primitive" by administration economists, he is the cabinet's resident troglodyte and unreconstructed champion of the private enterprise system. But as a blooded veteran of Wall Street, Simon believes risk-taking may be needed to save that system.

Without White House approval, he suggested such a risk by unveiling his non-deduction system — long a dream of tax reformers — to the national tax foundation Dec. 3. To Simon, the dead hand of the federal government would be removed from business and personal decision making in this country.

The congratulatory call from Kennedy was one of many from liberals. Rep. Abner Mikva of Illinois, a liberal Democratic tax reformer and critic of Simon on the Ways and Means Committee, wrote Simon in approval ("The only thing I'm sorry about is that it's called the Simon tax reform plan," Mikva later told us).

Simon's best friends on Capitol Hill were considerably less elated. Support from the likes of Kennedy and Mikva, they warned Simon, meant liberal designs to use his reform for yet higher proportionate taxation on upper brackets and business and further redistribution of income.

Rep. Barber Conable of New York, a top Republican tax strategist and normally a close Simon ally, vigorously opposed the plan. So did Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, now the key tax writer in Congress as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Both predicted ferocious opposition from interest groups.

What's more, enthusiasm for the plan among cautious presidential advisers matched the January weather outside. But Simon was not deterred. On Saturday afternoon, Jan. 17, he again asked the President to mention the idea in his State of the Union message two nights later. Mr. Ford put him off by saying he would rather bring it up separately, if at all.

Taking this conventional course, President Ford avoided stirring up either hornets' nests or listeners' interest the night of Jan. 19. One senior Republican Congressman, a devoted loyalist of the President, told us the end result was just what Mr. Ford wanted most to avoid: the image of a caretaker President.

Thanks to Simon's inability to take no for an answer, the President will be pressed again and again on the tax plan in months to come. If he embraces it, he can count on outrage from interests, irritation from congressional leaders and quite possibly defeat. But the adjective describing his presidency might well change from "caretaker" to "daring."

'Let's Make A New Treaty'

WASHINGTON—The United States has just signed a new military treaty with Spain. In exchange we will, of course, supply the Spanish with armaments so we can keep our bases there.

It seems that we can't make a deal with any country without giving them arms in exchange for friendship. There is a suspicion that the State Department has been influenced by all the TV game shows and it seems to me that since the American people pay for most of the military aid, we should at least be permitted to watch the U.S. hand out the stuff on television in a game show format.

This is just a suggestion. Every week the State Department would produce a TV program called "Let's Make a Treaty."

Henry Kissinger would be the master of ceremonies and the audience would be made up of ambassadors from all the countries of the "free world."

He would call out a number and the ambassador from that nation would jump up on the stage.

Henry would say, "Where are you from, sir?"

"Zambia," the ambassador would reply says, "do you want to keep the $100 excitedly. (Applause)

"All right. I'm going to ask you a question. If you can answer it correctly I will give you $100 million. Are you ready?"

The ambassador, jumping up and down, says "Yes, yes."

"The question is: 'Who is the President of the United States?' "

The ambassador hesitates. "Gerry Ford?"

"That is correct!" Henry shouts, and he counts out $100 million. The ambassador hugs and kisses Mr. Kissinger as the audience goes wild.

"Now don't go away," says Henry. "You can keep the $100 million or give it back to me in exchange for what is behind one of the three curtains over there. Joan Braden, will you tell us some of the prizes that are behind the curtains?"

"Henry, we have the new version of the Hawk missile, a 1976 Super Sherman tank, a year's supply of cruise missiles, a complete nuclear energy plant which will be installed absolutely free, and a squadron of F-15 fighter planes."

"All right, Mr. Ambassador," Henry says, "do you want to keep the $100 million or do you want to go for the prizes behind the curtains?"

The ambassador clutching the money looks out at the audience. "Keep the money," some ambassadors scream. Others yell, "Go for the curtain."

The ambassador says to Henry, "Can I consult with my government?"

"I'm sorry, we don't have time. What's it going to be?"

The ambassador hands back the $100 million. "I'll go for what's behind the curtain."

The audience applauds loudly.

"All right," Henry says. "He's going for what's behind the curtain. We have curtain number one, curtain number two and curtain number three. Which one will you choose?"

The ambassador hesitates as the audience shouts out, "TWO!" "ONE!" "THREE!"

Finally, he says, "Curtain number three."

The curtain opens and there is a pile of rotten wheat.

The audience groans.

"Well, Mr. Ambassador, it looks like you made a mistake. But since you've been such a good sport we've got a consolation prize for you. Joan, what's the consolation prize?"

Ms. Braden pushes away the pile of rotten wheat and behind it is a brand-new nuclear submarine.

Henry, grinning says, "You gave up $100 million in cash, but you have won a new nuclear submarine which is worth $450 million! Here are the keys to it."

The audience goes crazy as the ambassador jumps up and down and rushes over to the nuclear submarine and climbs up on the conning tower.

Henry, beaming, says to the audience, "Well, that's it for tonight, folks. If you are an accredited member of any freedom-loving country in the world and you would like to be on 'Let's Make a Treaty,' write to me at the State Department for tickets. All the prizes given away on this program were donated through the courtesy of the American taxpayer in the interests of world peace. Thank you, God bless you, and we'll see you all next week."

Gallup Poll

Big Race Near a Tie

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, the current Democratic frontrunner, has moved into a virtual tie with President Gerald Ford in the latest nationwide test election.

Ford currently receives the vote of 48 per cent of registered voters to 46 per cent for Humphrey, with 6 per cent undecided. The percentages are so close that, statistically, neither man can be said to have the advantage.

Humphrey has narrowed the margin since the previous test election conducted in early December, when the President led 51 to 39 per cent.

WALLACE HD BELOW

When Gov. George Wallace is included in the latest test election as a possible third-party candidate, Ford and Humphrey remain in close contention — Ford receiving 36 per cent of the vote of registered voters to 37 per cent for Humphrey. Wallace himself receives 23 per cent.

Although Wallace draws support from both major party candidates, the cumulative evidence, based on three test elections over the past six months, suggests that he hurts Ford more than he does Humphrey.

Following is the question asked to determine preferences between Ford and Humphrey:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held today. If President Gerald Ford were the Republican candidate and Sen. Hubert Humphrey were the Democratic candidate, which would you like to see win?" (If the respondent is undecided, this question is also asked: "As of today, do you lean more to Ford, the Republican, or to Humphrey, the Democrat?"

To measure Wallace's appeal and impact on the two major party candidates, this question was asked:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held today. If President Gerald Ford were the Republican candidate and Sen. Hubert Humphrey were the Democratic candidate and Gov. George Wallace were the candidate of a third party, which would you like to see win?"

Following are the results of the latest trial heats and trends:

The latest test election results are based on interviews with 1,118 registered voters nationwide out of a total sample of 1,572 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period Jan. 2 through 5.

Unemployment in Britain

LONDON (UPI) — The jobless queues in jbritain are growing ominously.

They are already looming as a serious political hazard for Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his Labor government.

The mid-January jobless total was 1,430,369 — an increase of nearly 228,000 over December and highest since World War II.

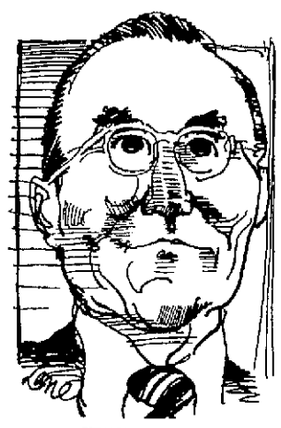

That means 6.1 per cent of the nation's work force now is unemployed, a grim reminder to older Britons of the "hunger days" of the 1930s depression when the country had more than two million unemployed.

The government admits gloomily the situation is likely to get even worse and that 1.5 million jobless are likely this spring.

Britain now has the highest unemployment rate of any Common Market country except Ireland and Belgium and is approaching the rate of more than 7 per cent in the United States.

How Much Should We Know?

William Colby

Rep. Otis Pike

How Much Secrecy Does the CIA Need?

Intelligence needs some secrecy, not total secrecy as it was in the past, but it does need some. President Ford once said he would be delighted to share our secrets with 214 million Americans provided they didn't go outside of that group. But that is not a practical way of doing business. I think we can arrive at a necessary compromise between those secrets that are necessary to provide intelligence as a means to protect America and those secrets that aren't necessary.

There is no question in my mind that some secrecy is essential to a healthy and a strong America. But I believe very, very strongly that this country has gone way overboard on the issue of secrecy. We perform acts that the American people would rise up against if they were aware of them. There has to be a moral content in the conduct of our foreign affairs. If we are going to conduct our society with the kind of secrecy with which the Russians conduct theirs, haven't they really, in a very large sense, already won?

Did the CIA, in the past, overstep its bounds?

Some years ago, intelligence was one of those unpleasant necessities that was to be carried on over in a corner. Its supervision was poor. It was given very fuzzy guidelines and told to go out and do the job. It did the job but there were mistakes made. There were even misdeeds. The work that is under way today is the process of bringing intelligence within our constitut onal framework. It will be done by better guidelines, by better supervision.

As a result of our inquiry, my personal evaluation of the CIA has improved. The CIA was not a rogue elephant going off by itself and doing things. It was carrying out orders which were given to it. I tend much more to question those that gave the orders than those who carried them out. I think less highly, perhaps, of the FBI than I did before I started the investigation.

Are covert operations necessary and should they be separated from intelligence gathering?

"I believe covert actions are a response to the world in which we live. During the colder days of the Cold War, there was cause for a great deal of effort in this field. In recent years, we have done much less. In the future, there will be occasions in which a little quiet help to some friends can ensure their control of a country and its military weapons. During the 1920s, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson closed up a code breaking unit because he said that gentlemen don't read each other's mail. Twenty years later, Stimson (by then Secretary of War) was reading as much German and Japanese mail as he could. We had an experiment one time 25 years ago in which the covert action operations were separated from intelligence gathering. They spent half their time trying to find each other. This was really not very productive.

I am not opposed to all covert actions. I think some are meaningful, useful and proper. There are covert actions that come very close to being pure intelligence. To set up a new bureaucracy for the purpose of conducting covert actions separate from intelligence gathering would be rather meaningless. What I hope is that good oversight legislation is passed. If you could have a new joint committee on intelligence with a revolving membership, you could get reasonable oversight. You would also make it possible for the CIA not to have to brief six separate committees. The difficulties are largely political. Hell hath no fury like the committee chairman whose jurisdiction is threatened and you can't establish the kind of committee I would like to see without removing the jurisdiction of those six committees.

Should the CIA's budget be published?

No. We would repeat the experience of the Atomic Energy Commission which started out in 1947 with a single line figure and last year's budget was 15 pages of detailed data on our weapons expenditures. I think the same thing would happen to our intelligence structure and we would be providing details which would be of great assistance to our adversaries.

I am wholly in favor of publishing at least the total figure for the CIA budget. I will say that the figures given to us, even in the most secret of documents, don't represent the total spent. We have to do more than just publish the figures they give us. We have to analyze them.

Has recent publicity hurt the CIA?

There has been some effect on our intelligence gathering as a result of publicity — not just from investigating committees but from other leaks that have occurred. Individuals have decided that they no longer can risk working with us. But I think the products of our intelligence are still of the highest quality.

I think that we would all like crime to disappear from the streets of America but I don't think we accomplish anything in that regard by ignoring it. If America is so weak that it cannot stand the truth about itself then I think it is far weaker than either Mr. Colby or I believe it to be

Rocky a Lame Duck Who Still Has Wings

Author's Note: Though in near isolation as a lame duck vice president, Nelson Rockefeller is still keeping his power base, just in case Ford withdraws or the GOP convention is deadlocked.

WASHINGTON D.C. KFS) — Vice President Nelson Rockefeller's withdrawal from the presidential picture has been the most successful act of his brief tenure — he not only removed himself as an issue, he has practically vanished from sight.

Rockefeller's low profile is a result of both his own efforts to avoid controversial issues and a decline of press interest in him now that he is a lame duck.

President Ford is no longer very interested in Rockefeller, either. Ford's relief when Rockefeller announced he would not seek to remain on the ticket was painfully apparent. He has not asked Rockefeller to help in his re-election campaign either with speeches or private political advice, although he has asked all of his Cabinet officers to make campaign talks for him.

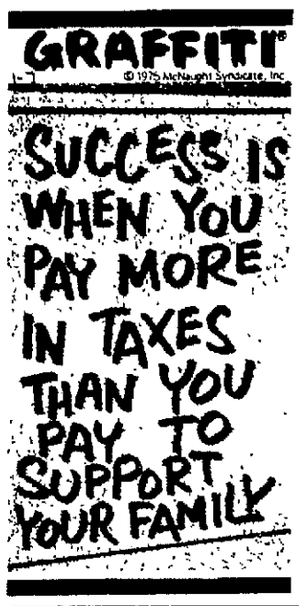

Effectively Isolated

Ford has effectively isolated Rockefeller to New York. The only Rockefeller campaign effort for Ford currently scheduled is the organizing of a $1,000-a-person fund-raiser in Manhattan to be held Jan. 28.

The affair, to take place in Rockefeller's elegant apartment, will be the first major fund-raising project for the President in that state. "It was impossible to do before this," a Rockefeller adviser observed wryly.

Ford was highly unpopular in the state last year for opposing a federal bailout of New York City to prevent a default and for a series of blunt remarks criticizing the city. Emotions ran so high that the state party leadership decided to form an uncommitted delegation to the convention, in order to prevent a rebellion that might hand the delegation to Ronald Reagan.

The antagonism subsided somewhat, however, when the President finally compromised and signed into law in December a $2.3 billion seasonal loan bill which prevented the city's default. And the quickening pace of the presidential campaign has forced moderate Republicans to face up to the fact they would be more comfortable with Ford the next four years than they would be with the more conservative Reagan.

The truth is that Rockefeller is still an asset to Ford in liberal New York, where Rockefeller controls the state party, but nowhere else.

Just In Case

Rockefeller will spend much of his time in the coming months consolidating his hold on the New York party, with speeches before a variety of affairs to raise money for local GOP organizations and GOP legislative candidates. He wants to retain a firm power base, just in case the convention is deadlocked or Reagan forces Ford out of the contest early enough for another GOP candidate to enter the field.

Sources close to Rockefeller indicate he has not lost his ambition for the presidency and in the right circumstances might make another try for it.

Rockefeller therefore plans to remain politically active within the party, even though detached from the Ford campaign. He is willing to speak at Republican fund-raising affairs for local candidates across the country, wherever he is asked. He has already been asked to speak before GOP organizations identified with the liberal wing of the party in Michigan, Kentucky, North Carolina and Georgia.

Currently, Rockefeller is being so low-key one can barely hear the tune. But if Ford should get into trouble, Rockefeller will be prepared to turn up the amplifier.

UCCC Offers New Home Courses

STONE RIDGE — Credit-free courses, in individual homes and in wide selection, are now being offered by Ulster County Community College under its Continuing Education program.

Under the program, the mother of school-aged children could host a credit-free course during school hours for herself, her friends and neighbors. Anyone with adequate space can assemble 10 or 12 people in their home who are interested in learning a particular subject, and the college will deliver the course at a cost to each person comparable to a credit-free course at the college or a Life-Long Learning Center. Presently, UCCC offers a wide variety of credit-free courses at its Stone Ridge campus and learning centers in Kingston, Saugerties and Boiceville.

Under the in-home program, UCCC can deliver, as one example, a Gourmet Cooking instructor to an individual kitchen, even if it can accommodate only six people.

Further information can be had by calling the Office for Continuing Education at Ulster County Community College.

It is also possible for the school to arrange a training program for inspectors in local manufacturing plants; teach bread baking techniques to homemakers; provide exercise (for mind or body) to business office groups during lunch hours.

Tickets and reservations for the Kingston hospital Dance are going very quickly, according to the chairman, Mrs. Thomas Buckley. The dance, which is usually a complete sellout, will he held Saturday, Feb. 7, 9 p.m. at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The theme this year will be "America the Beautiful" with decoration again under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seegar (above).

A highlight of the evening will be the awarding of a trip to either Philadelphia or Boston, courtesy of the Kingston Travel Agency. A tour of either of these histroic cities can be the outstanding event of this Bicentenniel year. For further information contact Mrs. George Washbourne, chairman of awards.

Charlie Lee will provide the music for dancing. For reservations or additional tickets contact either Mrs. Leroy Stoothoff of Woodstock or Mrs. Lawrence Brown.

Life

The Man Who Enacts a Legend

DALLAS (UPI) — Hal Holbrook's portrayal of Mark Twain places a weight on the actor far heavier than the responsibility to entertain. The show has made Holbrook the custodian of perhaps America's best-loved literary legend.

Holbrook's stage presentations of "Mark Twain Tonight" provide for many their last encounter with Twain's thoughts and personality since perhaps a childhood reading of "Huckleberry Finn."

"When I first started doing this show, I remember it was intimidating to think of the weight," Holbrook said. "When I began, I was in it in such a small way that nobody was making any waves about me.

"I was playing in such small places all over that I never felt that I was doing a hell of a lot to carry any legend anywhere.

"When the thing got to be very successful, I was aware of what was taking place. All I could do was to do him the way I think he would like.

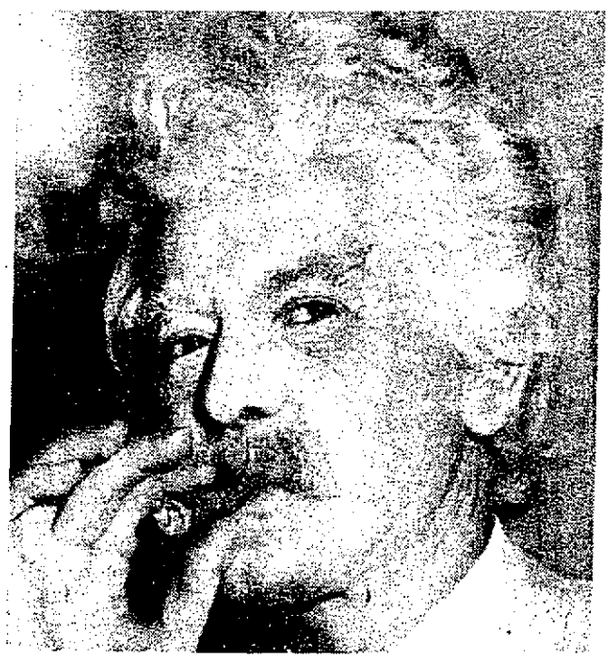

"I have to interpret Twain with my head and my heart. Just as you would read him and get your own ideas," Holbrook said. "I have to leave it up to the intelligence and imagination of people to determine whether it's acceptable or not."

The show has surely been acceptable. Holbrook has made a living doing Twain since 1948 when he was part of a two-person show in which he portrayed Twain and five other characters.

"I didn't know anything about Twain. I had to read just to find out the most superficial things, and in reading about him I became very interested," Holbrook said.

To do the show alone, Holbrook knew "I had to develop an entire evening of Twain. The only way I knew to do it was to read everything he wrote. It was just a long job of sifting.

"There has been a rather enormous editing job done on the material to bring it into present focus. I select — and I have to take the responsibility for that," he said.

HAL HOLBROOK

In the early years, said Holbrook, "I was trying to squeeze into this person, creating physical things, a walk, a voice, arm movements, everything. It was mechanical.

"Then there comes a time when you hit up against a wall. It's a click, a relaxing, when you release your own energies, your own personality, your thoughts, your feelings. That is when the character takes on life.

"Oddly enough, that was when I opened in a little theater in New York and became very successful with it. Now when I'm out there on the stage, I don't think any more about being Mark Twain than I do about being Hal Holbrook. The two have merged for me now."

Yet, Holbrook said that regardless of his research and effort he believes Twain would be appalled with "Mark Twain Tonight."

"I don't think he would be pleased with anybody doing him," Holbrook said. "I think he would say, 'What does that jerk think he is doing? Good Lord, I was no more like that than the man in and the moon' and Twain would resent the money I'm making.

"I think the thing that would probably please Twain is that he is still a new author to some people. That he is regarded as something to discover. That he said things that, in a sense, could have been said about today.

"He is fresh, you see. That would please him.

"And the fact that the estate was still making royalties would please him most of all."

Acupuncture, Ancient Chinese Science

"The superior doctor prevents illness; the mediocre doctor cures imminent illness; the inferior doctor treats actual illness."

Chinese Proverb

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON

An Ulster County physician and three dentists are among 81 individuals in New York State who have successfully completed the requirements for certification in the 4,000-year-old practice of acupuncture, according to announcement by the New York State Education Department.

Newly certified are: Psychiatrist Dr. Streamson Chua, Lake Katrine, whose Chinese father and grandfather practiced acupuncture; Dr. Morris Fletcher, DDS and Dr. Walter Meyer, DDS, both of Kingston; and Dr. Jerome Jacob Miller, DDS, of Woodstock.

Certified physicians and dentists were required to complete 100 hours of instruction in programs of acupuncture in New York City.

Does acupuncture really work? In China, Japan, Europe, South America and the Soviet Union, many patients and doctors are convinced that it does even though they are not sure HOW it works.

What western medicine cannot do for such things as sweating and tennis elbow— or relief of cancer pain, acupuncture reportedly can. It does not cure but it does serve as an anesthesia and as a means of "temporarily" relieving pain. Although it is rapidly gaining popularity here, it can't work miracles and will probably take a long time to gain the acceptance that it enjoys abroad.

Success has been noted in the treatment of arthritis, bursitis, gout and nueraliga. Persons who have been driven to suicide to escape the immense pain of trigeminal nueralgia have received relief through acupuncture. So have migraine sufferers and those with hay fever, sinitus, asthma and allergies.

It does not help cure cancer or heal fractures.

It does help in cases of insommnia, anxiety, hysteria and even schizophrenia.

Cancer patients can however be saved a great deal of pain, be kept ambulatory, avoid drug addiction and keep their dignity. Because there is a strong emotional element in long standing illnesses such as migraine headaches, a combination of acupuncture and psychiatry is often to the advantage of the patient.

Acupuncturists always take a full and thorough medical history of a patient first, to rule out diseases such as cancer. A strong diagnostic workup is recommended and acupuncture is rarely the first choice of treatment and reportedly shouldn't be. In some cases however, acupuncture is tried before surgery because "acupuncture is harmless." When surgery is definetly indicated, acupuncture is "definitely not first choice," according to physicians.

If Americans are apprehensive, they may be interested to know that in China, it is so popular that junior high and high school students practice on each other. Needles are carried around in a fountain pen-like container which is carried in the pocket.

Precautions include not penetrating an inflamed or infectious area. Although complications are rare, problems can arise such as hepatitis if needles are not clean; if there is breakage of needles (they are strong and seldom break) or if a patient moves suddenly and a needle curves.

There are about 1,000 points at which needles can be inserted with 120 to 150 considered the most usable. Recently one needle was used for open heart surgery in China, one for a lung resection and another for brain surgery. Although not as effective as general anesthesia in some cases, it has its advantages in that a patient may remain fully awake, suffer no side effects and become ambulatory immediately. In geriatric cases it is especially helpful in avoiding such things as pulmonary embolism and aspiration pneumonia.

The points for inserting the needles lay along lines called meridians which are named for the various organs in the body Putting a needle in the "stomach meridian" in the leg can help temporarily relieve stomach pain.

There are 200 points in the ear alone. And it is here that acupuncture has met with success in coping with problems such as obesity, smoking and drug addiction. It is helpful to drug addicts in that there are reportedly no withdrawal ymptoms but if a person breaks out into perspiration and experiences nausea and bone pains, then the patient is also treated through acupuncture for the nausea, perspiration and bone pains. Obesity is treated by inserting needles in two points in the ear, one aimed at the stomach, the other at hungar pains.

The needles for ear acupuncture differ from others. They are like miniature hollow topped thumbtacks as opposed to the half-inch to three-inch straight stainless steel needles used elsewhere. Very fine, they are of different guages and are inserted at angles varying from 30 to 90 degrees.

Whether a person feels pain on penetration depends where they are inserted. The hand is tender as opposed to the neck but generally there is little pain.

Dentists may be able to use acupuncture for peridontal problems arising from smoking as well as for sinus problems. At present its usage is still in the research stage. New York State dentists are awaiting word on their legal rights, meanwhile remaining restricted pending submission of research protocols.

As for HOW acupuncture works, researchers seem to indicate that it is a combination of meridian and humerol (blood system) and involves the nervous system.

Somebody Is Looking

ALBANY

When you're out of work, it sometimes seems like nobody's looking for a person with your qualifications. There IS someone, though. The counselor at your nearest State Employment Service Office! It's Job Bank lists hundreds of job openings. And when your qualifications are fed into the Job Bank computer, it's not long before a match can be made.

The Day I Got the Needle . . .

It really wasn't too painful, as pains go. It shot from my shoulder blade to the dimple in my left shoulder. Hot compresses and a few days would have seen the end of it. But ski conditions were excellent . . . it was a totally free weekend, and a friend told me acupuncture could do wonders!

I went to the practitioner's home. A smiling birdlike lady let me in, bowing, nodding, and twinkling. The Chinese accent was still so strong, conversation was difficult. But converse we did for three quarters of an hour while the doctor was busy with another patient.

I entered his office with trepidation. By now, the whole family had joined in the fun. A quiet son stood watching as I removed my shirt. The doctor gently probed, asked several questions, then issued an order to number two son in Chinese. I surmise the order was to sterilize the needles, for that's what the lad did, post-haste.

As the needles cooked, the little mag-pie lady sat chattering. "You scare?", she asked. I smiled or at least thought I had. She slapped her trim thighs and rocked in her chair.

"He scare!" she giggled. Then, shaking her head, she must have proceeded to tell e why I shouldn't worry. Her husband sat smiling and watching.

When Mrs. T. finished reassuring me, I asked the doctor some questions. He said he didn't really know how or why it worked. It deals with fields of energy, he explained. Needles are inserted at 'aura' points, and somehow, the energy 'heals.'

The needles finally cooked, my mystic medico approached my back. He held the first needle poised above my center back meridian. Mrs. T jumped up, crying, "No, No .. ." followed by a stream of Chinese. They conferred for a full minute, discussing just where the needles were to go. Dr. T finally silenced her and proceeded to place four needles, each about six inches in length, between my shoulder blades to a depth of about half an inch, I would guess.

The needles had to remain in place for twenty minutes. During this time the collective T's told me what I was feeling. A tingling, yes? A warm glow that traveled from needle to needle, right? They asked me to slowly move my arms up over my head, to the side, rotating.

When the treatment was over, I felt better. I was able to straighten up, which had been impossible earlier. The next day found the pain almost gone.

The skiing was great that weekend The fifty dollars the doctor charged seemed a fair price for all the time he spent with me. I'll always wonder whether it would have cleared up all by itself. And I'll always be glad Mrs T was there to supervise

"At the Peking Hospital of Chinese Medicine in 1966, physicians gathered 151 paraplegics who had been pronounced incurable by western doctors. All had lost the power of movement from the waist down. The doctors began prodding their patients with long steel needles. Soon, some were able to wiggle their toes and feet, then bend their knees, and finally move their entire legs. They exercised for hours each day, rebuilding wasted muscles and gaining back the confidence lost in years of paralysis.

Thirty-six months after the acupuncture treatments started, 124 of the 151 patients were able to walk without the aid of another person. China's doctors had accomplished the impossible, using a 5,000-year-old medical technique."

'Lucky Money'

Baby Eugene Pai Ling Nee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Nee of West Hurley, clutches a red envelope containing "lucky money." During the Chinese New Year celebration, gifts are given to youngsters in red bags or envelopes engraved with gold lettering signifying happiness or joy. Red is an auspicious color in China and is used at all celebrations as it is believed to be a "good luck" color. (Freeman photo)

Treasure Quest

I am very much interested in contacting Beverly Hageman regarding syrup pitchers. Would you be kind enough to put me in touch with her? — C.M.P., Earlysville, Va.

Your letter will be forwarded to Ms. Hageman and hopefully you will hear from her within the next few weeks. We do not print the addresses of collectors featured in ths column. We deeply appreciate their willingness to share their treasures and experiences with other collectors and try to protect them with a degree of anonymity. Readers wishing to contact a collector may send their letters to TODAY'S TREASURES in care of this newspaper. Letters will be forwarded to us and we will send it to the collector.

I have a small, very old china cup with two handles and a pouring spout. It also has a lid. What was it used for? — D.G., Cedar Park, Tex.

It sounds as if you are describing an English posset pot. These were made during the 17th and 18th centuries

Posset was a mixture of warm ale or wine and hot curdled milk, sugar and spice with bits of bread in it. The liquid was sucked out through the spout on the side

What is pinchbeck? Is it collectable? — E.Y., Winfield, Kan.

Pinchbeck is an alloy of metals consisting of four parts copper and three parts zinc. It was named after its inventor, Christopher Pinchbeck, an English clock and watchmaker (1670-1732). The alloy takes on the color of old brass. If highly polished it becomes a warm golden color that is sometimes mistaken for gold. Pinchbeck jewelry is quite scarce and very desirable.

I have an old steamer trunk that was my grandmother's. I was wondering how you remodel them. — E.F., Manchester, Md.

Yours was just one of many, many letters from readers interested in restoring old trunks. Within the next few weeks there will be a column series with illustrations on restoring and refurbishing old trunks. We will try to make the columns as detailed as possible to help you with your project.

One of our New Year's resolutions is to be of greater assistance to you, our readers. We pledge to acknowledge personally and as promptly as possible all correspondence received from you in the coming months. We do appreciate your letters.

Eat and Grow Younger

Heavy Sugar & Starch Diet Can Clog Up Digestive Tract

By Lelord Kordel
Number Four of a Series

Let me turn clairvoyant for a moment, and "project" thoughts with you through an average day's eating.

Your breakfast consisted of a fruit — perhaps a canned juice (sweetened with refined sugar), or half a grapefruit liberally sprinkled with sugar.

Your cereal bowl was filled with a dry, wholly-artificial pile of something whose resemblance to a grain long since ceased to exist. And, of course, you reached again for the sugar bowl to flavor this already too-starchy cereal.

Toast? Of course, and more likely made with white bread; or perhaps a sweet roll or two, well coated with sugar frosting, eaten with your generously sugared coffee.

"Please pass the jelly." More sweet. Some morning you do get around to eating an egg, but usually you're too full after downing your starchy cereal and toast to want anything more.

So off you go to work. You feel quite a bit less than up to par; but by now you're probably belching as all the breakfast starches, plus those left undigested from previous meals, begin fermenting in your digestive system.

By mid-morning you're feeling pretty pepless. So what do you do? If you're at work, you take time out for a candy bar, or a soft drink, or maybe more coffee and another sweet roll.

Then comes lunch. You're hungry — and yet you're not. How about a sandwich, a cup of coffee and a piece of pie?

CAN'T THINK STRAIGHT

"That holds you until about 3:30, when you begin to feel so worn out and dispirited that you realize you'd better get something to eat if you want to keep going until dinnertime. More pie, or maybe a piece of cake, a candy bar, or a soft drink.

By the time you drag yourself home and get through a dinner that is a repetition of all your day's dietary sins (white bread, sugared coffee, perhaps a dish with rice or spaghetti or macaroni, and a starchy heavy dessert) you are more convinced than ever you're getting old.

You can't think straight any more; your job seems to take more and more out of you every day; there's no energy left in you for leisure hour activities; and you are sleeping poorly.

I could go on being "clairvoyant" and trace your footsteps to the kitchen before bedtime for that piece of pie which was left, or for a sandwich — but you're entitled to some privacy in your dietary indiscretions, so I'll leave you for the day, with your intestinal tract full of fermenting, half digested starches.

If you are the average person, of sedentary habits or occupation, the chances are that you eat about 75 percent more devitalized carbohydrate foods than are compatible with your good health and your desire to feel and look younger.

"But we must have carbohydrates for energy" you say.

CONSIDER THE ESKIMO

You are only half correct. While it's true that the sole function of carbohydrates is to provide heat and energy, what about the Eskimos who eat nothing except meat and fish — protein foods?

The Eskimo, far from being a slothful fellow who huddles into his skins with his teeth chattering like castanets, is robust, energetic and warm-blooded. In fact, it's only where "white" civilization has brought in its so-called refinements that the Eskimo ever falls victim to our respiratory and intestinal diseases. Colds and constipation are among the many "benefits" of civilization we bestowed upon the poor Eskimo.

How then, if the Eskimos in remote areas never eat anything except protein foods, can their bodies receive the fuel and energy which carbohydrates provide?

Every human body has been given the power to convert food protein into either body protein or energy sugars. Actually, the type of carbohydrate produced in the body from food protein yields more heat and energy than any of the carbohydrate foods you eat.

When you get enough proteins you need never worry about getting enough carbohydrates. Your big worry should be not to eat too much carbohydrates.

PROTEIN COMPLETE FOOD

Not only do high-starch meals overload the stomach and place an unnecessary strain on the heart, they are also predisposing factors in many ailments and serious diseases that appear in later years.

There is good scientific cause for believing that too much starch in the diet helps build up those unwanted deposits of cholesterol in the arteries, causing them to harden and become brittle to the point where a rupture brings on a fatal heart attack or a brain hemorrhage.

Heavy starch-eaters are also more susceptible to sinus and respiratory infections than are those who limit their carbohydrate intake to the sugars and starches found in natural foods (fruits, vegetables, low-fat milk, whole grains) and build their meals around high proteins.

Constipation, a common symptom of digestive disorders, is another universal ailment that can be traced directly to high-starch food habits. The same holds true for gas in the intestines and belching, which are uncomfortable manifestations of undigested starches fermenting in the digestive tract.

Coping

Give Kids a Feeling of Importance

"This year I'm going to make my child feel important." That's a great New Year's resolution for a parent to make but how can it be carried out?

One way to start making a child feel O.K. is to follow the suggestions in "T.A. for Tots" by Alvin Freed. The hand-lettered, illustrated paperback which sells for $5.95 explains the basic principles of transactional analysis in very simple language and humorous drawings. The aim of the book as expressed by Ph.D. psychologist Freed is to help little boys and girls find out that they are not frogs but princes and princesses.

Underlying the easy sentences and child-oriented pictures are instructions for parents which are not always easy to execute.

1. Give your children — and encourage them to ask for — strokes which feel good — "warm fuzzies." Try to avoid or at least cut down on strokes which feel bad — "cold pricklies" such as spankings, scoldings, sarcastic remarks. (Some of the terms used were originally coined by psychologist Claude Steiner who should have received a warm fuzzy from Dr. Freed.)

2. Don't insist that your children always display happy feelings and never express anger, disappointment, fear or distress. We tend to want to see our children, in fact all children, smiling. Particularly when we adults are trying to cope with our problems, we want the reassurance and hope that radiates from a child's happy face. But kids have to express the whole range of emotions they experience, otherwise those feelings may be turned inward in self-destructive ways.

It would be a terrible disservice for a parent to encourage a child to tell about his or her feelings and then display shock and disappointment when the child doesn't feel what the parent wants him to feel. "You mean you felt you hated Mommy — that's a terrible thing to feel. I never heard of a child hating its mother!" An honest but supportive reaction to a child's anger might be, "It makes me feel sad to think you hated Mommy even for a short while, but I remember feeling angry when my Mom or Dad did something I didn't like."

3. Turn frogs into princes by helping your kids let out feelings of low self-esteem. A combination of varied physical activities — skating, swimming, jumping, running, climbing — and quiet times when intimate feelings can be shared help relieve anxieties about being an ugly outsider which any child can have. This may require special scheduling for parents with more than one child, but it's worth the effort.

4. Send straight messages. Freed lets us know how a child feels when his mother and father give conflicting instructions, when they send double messages such as 'don't tell lies' and then they, themselves, tell lies. Can we admit to our children that we sometimes say things we don't mean, that we can't always live up to the standards we want them to obey; that we, as parents, can disagree about punishments; bedtimes, treats?

If the advice Freed gives to tots causes trouble for you, the parent, then it might be wise to do what Freed tells the troubled, frightened or angry child to do. Find someone who cares about you and tell them how you feel or find someone who practices listening to and understanding people's feelings. Parents need to feel like princes before they can bring up little princes.

Dear Abby

Anyone Have a Want Ad Partner?

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune N Y News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14. Almost 15. My parents won't let me smoke. My brother got to smoke when he was 15, but when I ask my parents if I can smoke, they say, "No, it's not feminine."

Abby, I milk cows, bale hay and even clean cow gutters, and you sure can't say THAT'S feminine.

All my girl friends get to smoke in front of their parents, so why don't they let me run my own life?

MYSELF

DEAR MYSELF: Because they don't want you to run it in a way that may be damaging to your health. I'm with them. The best advice I can give to nonsmokers is—DON'T START!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to a dinner party at the home of a very high-class, prominent society leader who has a reputation for entertaining beautifully.

My husband's widowed sister came to town unexpectedly, so I phoned my hostess and asked if we could bring our houseguest.

She asked, "Is your houseguest a male or female?"
I said, "She's my husband's sister."

And would you believe this so-called high-class society lady replied, "That's too bad. We already have three extra women. If you could bring a man, I'd be delighted, but we don't need any more women."

Have you ever heard of anything to top this?

SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: No. And I thought I'd heard everything.

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't help but smile when I read your comment about people who run ads in the classified section to meet a partner. Agreed, they must be desperately lonely, and they do run the risk of meeting some creepy characters that way, but did you know that this practice is entirely accepted in Europe, specifically in Germany?

Believe me, I have run into creepy characters in the U.S.A. and Canada in distinguished public places where a lady would think she is safe from creeps. I also know that many Europeans have found decent companions by placing ads in newspapers or going through a marriage agency.

The adage "different countries, different customs" still holds true, so please don't condemn that custom altogether. For some, it works.

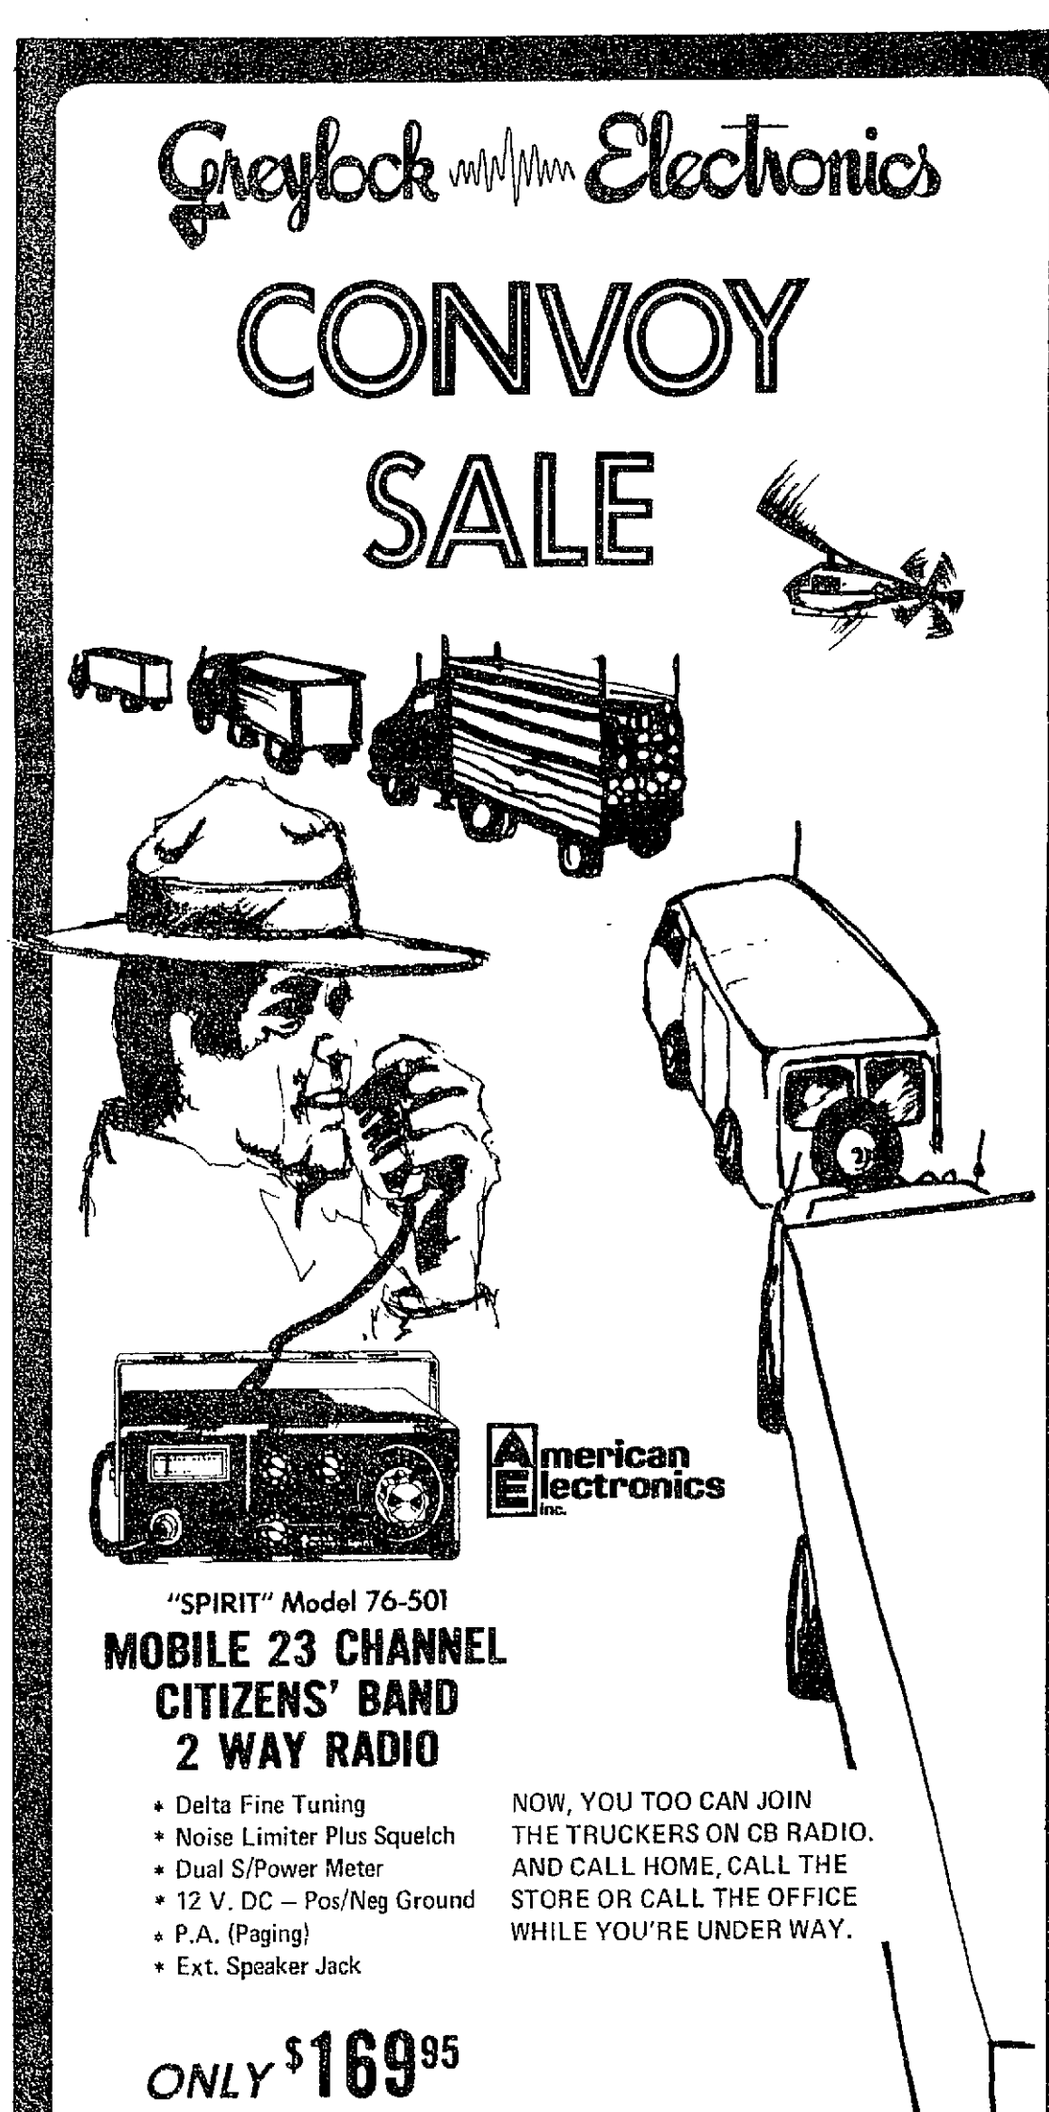

T.L.K.

DEAR T.L.K.: Many wrote to defend the practice of advertising in a newspaper for companionship, and even marriage. But those who wrote were invariably winners. I'd like to hear from some losers.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26¢) envelope.

Kingston's Own Leonard Garr Cuts New Disc

KINGSTON

Talented pianist, Leonard Garr of San Francisco, Calif., formerly of Kingston, has just cut an album for Claremont Records. The album, "Easy to Love," is available now at Abrams Music Store, Wall Street, Kingston.

The son of Mrs. Celia Lipgar of 177 Fair Street, Kingston, Garr was born to a musical family. His father was a violinist who studied with Mischa Elman; his brother was a piano student. Leonard began studying violin at the age of five. By the time he was 10 he could read, play and compose music, a skill he a acquired by eavesdropping while his brother took the lessons.

His flair for showmanship surfaced in grammar school when he conducted magic shows for the youngsters in the neighborhood. A graduate of Kingston High School at age 16, he was salutatorian of his class and played one of his own compositions at graduation That fall, he entered Columbia University, leaving after three months to join the cast of a Broadway operetta, "Rosalinda." In the same play, in other minor roles, were Gene Barry and Shelley Winters.

Garr joined the Air Force at age 18 and was trained as a motion picture cameraman. He played USO Clubs and appeared on a BBC sShow in London. After his stint in the service, he returned to graduate from Columbia, playing night club dates in the evenings. He has performed at numerous places across the country before moving permanently to San Francisco in 1957.

In his Weekly Voice column, The Lamplighter, Bob Tuttle had this to say about Leonard Garr: "During our many years on the restaurant-nighclub beat, we've seen and heard many piano players. But if we were asked to name the best we've ever heard, anytime or anyplace, then we would not have to hesitate a second before replying: Leonard Garr. This pianist par excellence has to rate with some of the all-time greats, including Oscar Peterson."

Included in the current album are 'Lover', 'There's a Small Hotel', 'Love Is a Many Splendored Thing', 'Why Do I Love You', and others.

Nastase Plans To Default

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Ilie Nastase says he plans to default today's scheduled match with Eddie Dibbs in the $115,000 U.S. Indoor Pro Tennis Championships.

Nastase made the announcement Wednesday night at an impromptu news conference after defeating Billy Martin, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3, in a thriller marked by disputed line calls by both players.

"I have the flu and I am defaulting this next match," Nastase said.

But officialdom disagreed.

"It is not a default until he doesn't show for his match tomorrow," said George Pharr, public relations director of the World Championship of Tennis. "He has not told the referee he is defaulting."

Nastase lectured Martin, who turned pro last summer after winning the NCAA title as a UCLA freshman, for arguing with a linesman.

"When you win Forest Hills and Wimbledon like me, then you can act like me," the temperamental star said.

Nastase argued vehemently over line calls in the match with Martin.

"I didn't think he was that sick," Martin said. "He was probably irritated with the crowd. I was sick two weeks ago but still played. He came out tonight and was prepared to play."

In earlier action, top-seeded Jimmy Connors defeated Dennis Ralston, the former U.S. Davis Cup captain, 6-4, 6-0.

Ralston extended Connors for 34 minutes in the opening set before losing it in the 10th game with a cross-court drive that was wide. Connors struck with great power in the second set and finished off Ralston easily.

Third-seeded Arthur Ashe defeated Charles Pasarell, former winner of the tournament, 7-6, 6-2. Ashe won the first set with a 7-3 tie-breaker. Australian Alan Stone defeated defending champion Marty Riessen, 6-1, 6-4 and Dick Stockton eliminated Cliff Drysdale, 6-4, 6-1.

Mark Cox of Great Britain advanced to the third round by defeating 11th-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis, 3-6, 6-3, 7-6 Gerulaitis, runnerup for the title last year to Reissen, lost his advantage in the third set after winning the first three games.

Dibbs also battled uphill to victory against Australian Dick Crealy, 2-6, 7-6, 6-3. Jan Kodes, the No. 15th contender from Czechoslovakia, eliminated Onny Parun, the New Zealand champion, 6-3, 6-3.

Brian Gottfried, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., won from Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia, 6-1, 7-5. Tom Okker, the eighthseed from the Netherlands, rebounded from a 4-1 deficit in the third set to defeat Jiri Hrebec of Czechslovakia 6-3, 6-7, 6-4.

Bob Lutz ousted ninth-seeded Tony Roche, 6-3, 6-3 and Stan Smith, a former winner of the title but seeded only No. 16 this time, overcame India's Vijay Amritraj, 6-4, 6-3.

Montreal Site Will Be Ready, But...

MONTREAL (UPI) — Organizers for the 1976 Summer Olympics flew to Europe today to report that while the main Olympic Stadium will not be fully complete, Montreal can open the Games as scheduled July 17.

Quebec Municipal Affairs Minister Victor Goldbloom, head of the Olympic Installations Board, said Wednesday he will give a positive report this weekend to the International Olympic Committee.

Goldbloom and the chairman of the Olympic Organizing Committee, (COJO) Roger Rousseau, will detail a progress report for the IOC executive this Saturday in Innsbruck, Austria. They will go before the full IOC committee for approval of their plans Monday.

Goldbloom told reporters prior to his departure Wednesday: "I am able to state that as long as we have the continuing cooperation of all concerned — and this is a vital point — we will be able to provide a stadium and swimming pools that will be ready for the Games.

"I have said that the Stadium will be ready, I have not indicated that it will be complete.

"For in these last 10 weeks it has been clear that it would not be completed. But it shall be sufficiently ready for the holding of the Games. We shall complete it afterwards."

Goldbloom said he was confident the IOC would give Montreal the go-ahead for the Games. "I am optimistic about the meeting with the IOC, because I am optimistic the Stadium and other facilities will be ready by the July 17 opening date."

He would not specify what parts of the facilities would not be completed, apart from seating. There were reports plans called for portable restrooms and dressing facilities for athletes at the Stadium.

"In what respect the Stadium will not be completed — this is exactly the kind of detail that I am obliged to keep for the IOC," the Quebec cabinet minister said.

"There will be facilities that will be adequate for athletes, for the team officials and for the public.

"These are the things that we will have to give to the IOC for its approval. Certain temporary elements will have to be used, but they will be sufficient to allow the proper holding of the games."

He conceded one of these "temporary elements" was the seating, although he said even the initial plans for the Stadium foresaw a need for some temporary seats.

Goldbloom said the minimum seating capacity required for the Stadium was between 50,000 and 70,000. He said permanent capacity was now expected to be between 50,000 and 55,000.

"It was forecast from the beginning that there would be 15,000 to 20,000 temporary seats," he said "There now may be somewhat more than that when the Stadium opens for the Olympics."

The minister also said he could give no up-to-date cost figure for the games beyond the $1 billion-plus price tag already known.

Despite the many problems, Goldbloom rejected a suggestion the Summer Olympics could be a "half-baked" event.

"The Olympics are a sports event," he said, "and as a sports event we expect they will be successful."

Goldbloom noted also he has been in weekly contact with IOC president Lord Killanin since the Olympic Installations Board was set up 10 weeks ago and he has been fully briefed on the progress.

While the minister repeatedly said the games can open as planned July 17 providing there is "cooperation of all concerned," he said he did not expect any further labor strife at the Olympics site.

Goldbloom said OIB members have had daily contact with labor representatives on the site and "we have nothing but full compliments for them."

Labor strife, soaring construction costs, inflation and technical problems have plagued the Olympics since 1970 when Montreal was awarded the right to host the 16-day sports spectacular.

e Quebec government stepped in and set up the OIB last fall when it became obvious Montreal city officials could not cope with the mounting financial and construction problems.

The OIB was charged with reviewing contracts awarded by the administration of Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau, to aid contractors running out of city funds and to cut all "frills" from facilities.

Strong Ranger Showing Only Worth a Tie

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Rangers played their best game in a long time Wednesday night but still had to be satisfied with a 3-3 tie with the Buffalo Sabres.

John Ferguson, the Rangers' new general manager-coach said, "I feel better. We played much better but I'm never satisfied if you don't win."

Both sides were high in the praise of Dunc Wilson, the Ranger goalie who stopped 36 shots and thwarted Rick Martin from close in three straight times. Wilson recovered from a freak goal by Craig Ramsey at 9:07 of the first period which bounced straight out of Wilson and hit Ramsey on the head before going behind the Ranger goalie for a goal.

Ramsey's head shot tied the score, offsetting an opening goal by Billy Collins, who scored from a scramble in front of Gerry Desjardins at 1:17. Collins was returning from 20 games on the injured list with a bad knee.

Rod Gilbert put New York ahead at 10:16 of the first period when he knocked a Phil Esposito rebound home on a power play. Gil Perreault tied it again at 14:03 with a rising 25-footer.

Esposito converted another power play when he took Gilbert's point shot and put it home at 16:45. In the second period, Rene Robert tied the count at 3-3 when he beat the harrassed Wilson on a second rebound after Ramsey and Don Luce had been stopped twice by the Ranger goalie.

Martin, who had three close in chances at Wilson, said, "he had a magnet. The puck was hitting him. One time I had him down and tried to flip it over him and it hit his leg."

"The Rangers really worked tonight," said Floyd Smith, the Sabres' coach. "Walter Tkaczuk was hitting people. I haven't seen him play that well. As for us, we had enough chances to win but couldn't put it past Wilson."

Ferguson thought the Rangers were better as far as physical condition, saying, "We didn't tire in the third period and we had to skate with a team like Buffalo. I believe our conditioning is paying off."

★★★

Pierre Jarry has something to prove—to himself, to the Minnesota North Stars, to the Detroit Red Wings, to the Toronto Maple Leafs and to the New York Rangers.

And he isn't wasting any time.

Jarry, a talented wingman who has played for seven different teams in his seven-year pro career, scored three goals Wednesday night to lead Minnesota to a 9-3 rout of the Kansas City Scouts and pull the North Stars to within six points of St Louis in the race for the third and final playoff spot of the Smythe Division.

"People are counting us out for the playoffs," said Jarry, "but believe me we're going to be there April 4."

Islanders 3, Maple Leafs 2

Black Hawks 7, Flames 3

Grant Mulvey scored two goals and five of his teammates added single tallies to boost Chicago's first place margin in the Conn Smythe Division to 14 points It was the 10th win with five ties and only one loss in the last 16 games for Chicago

Capitals 4, Golden Seals 2

Gerry Meehan, Hartland Monahan and Harvey Bennett scored goals within three minutes of each other in the final period to give Washington just its fifth victory in 31 games this season and the Caps' third road triumph The loss snapped a California club record four game victory streak

Hawks Soar to 105-48 Win

NEW PALTZ

It's feast or famine for New Paltz State's basketball team these days and Wednesday night there was such a feast that the Hawks were probably looking for some Alka-Seltzer to offset all the excitement.

Coach Joe Donaovan's Birds returned to their Elting Gym roost after the intersession layoff and greeted Mt. St. Mary's College with open arms . . . and loads of baskets. The Hawks won, 105-48.

The victory, one of the most one-sided (in New Paltz' favor) in Hawk cage history, was accomplished without both Ron Domanski and Bob Irish The two high-scoring NP cagers both were bedded down with the flu.

"I only had eight players and I was shuttling them in and out," said Hawk coach Joe Donovan, no doubt happy with the pleasant evening. "We just couldn't do anything wrong and they didn't have very much."

In winning their fourth game in 10 starts the Hawks raced to a 53-19 halftime advantage The second half count was 52-29.

Five Hawks reached double figures with new men Felix Del Valle and Pete Yizar leading the way with 19 points apiece. Ron Monroe scored 18, Tommy Booker 16, and Clay Sizemore 13.

Gerry Coleman scored 17 points for the losers.

New Paltz has a pair of home games on tap for this weekend The Hawks host Postdam State Friday and Castleton State Saturday.

Tar Heels Thrive on Pressure

By United Press International

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith feels his team thrives on pressure, and after a second overtime victory in as many games, who could argue with him?

"You have to hand it to our team—to keep its plays under those conditions and still come out with a win," Smith observed after the fourth-ranked Tar Heels pulled out an 88-85 overtime victory Wednesday night against 20th-ranked Wake Forest at Winston-Salem, N.C.

"I thought Wake Forest was very well prepared. They surprised us with their press early in the game," added Smith, who got his 301st career win. Sunday the Tar Heels went into overtime to beat Maryland.

The score was knotted at 77-77 in the final 3:56 of regulation and center Mitch Kupchak came up with three overtime points to lead the way for the Tar Heels. He finished with 26 and played the overtime and the final 17 minutes with four fouls. Wake Forest was led by Rod Griffin's 22 points.

In another key Atlantic Coast Conference game involving nationally-ranked teams, seventh-rated Maryland trounced 12th-ranked North Carolina State 102-84.

All-America guard John Lucas tied his career high of 34 points as Maryland improved to 2-3 in the ACC and 11-3 overall. North Carolina State, slipping to 3-2 in the league and 13-3 overall, got 20 points from Glenn Sudhop

After back-to-back losses to North Carolina and Clemson, Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell termed the Terp performance "good."

"Talk to (Lawrence) Boston and some of the other guys," said Lucas, who hit 17-of 26-shots. "I just happened to be in the right place at the right time."

Elsewhere, No. 11 Notre Dame downed DePaul 89-68 and 14th-rated Missouri beat Oklahoma 72-58

All America Adrian Dantley sank 12-of-17 shots and scored 31 points to lead the Irish over DePaul. Dantley also pulled down 15 rebounds as Notre Dame dominated the boards by a 48-38 margin.

"We came in ready to play," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps. "It was a 'must' win for us We couldn't look ahead to Maryland this Saturday and couldn't look back to the win over UCLA last Saturday"

Notre Dame soph center Dave Batton scored added 16 points and 10 rebounds while also helping to hold DePaul's 6-11 center Dave Corzine to just 10 points and three rebounds

"Batton played one of his best games, said Phelps "He gained confidence."

Reserve Decision Due Next Week

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — attorneys for major league baseball's owners say the Players Association's desire to exclude the reserve system from the 1970 and 1973 working agreements was instrumental in the owners allowing a grievance procedure in the contracts.

"The grievance procedure was a difficult problem for us," said Louis Hoynes, attorney for the National League. "One of the aspects that made it possible for us to come to accordance on the grievance proposal of the association was that we hadfkpproved an article which took the reserve system outside the basic agreement."

Hoynes was the final witness in a hearing on the owners' suit challenging the authority of arbitrator Peter Seitz to declare pitchers Andy Messersmith of Los Angeles and Dave McNally of Montreal free agents. Final arguments were made Wednesday and U.S. District Judge John W. Oliver said a decision would be handed down early next week.

Hoynes said during negotiating sessions leading to the 1970 working agreement, Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, agreed to deal with the reserve system under "house rules" if it was excluded from the main contract.

"He went on further to say no grievances would be brought over the reserve system," said Hoynes. "Thus the concerns we had expressed about enforcing the reserve rules under the exclusion were put to rest."

Messersmith and McNally have attacked what the owners term "the guts" of the reserve system. They argued, and Seitz upheld, that they played last year without signing a contract, thus playing out their option and becoming free agents. The owners argue they have perpetual control over contracts.

Harry Thomson, who presented the case for the owners, said in closing arguments the reserve system was excluded from the grievance procedures, which include the use of an arbitrator.

Jets Willing to Make Deal for Namath

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Namath may be trying to talk himself away from the the New York Jets.

Namath has another year to go on a two-year contract calling for some $450,000 annually but he has indicated recently that he would welcome a deal sending him to the Los Angeles Rams.

Phil Iselin, the Jets' president, said Wednesday the club would like to keep Namath next season but not if he's unhappy, Iselin indicated something might be worked out with the Rams.

"We'd like to have him stay, naturally, but if he keeps insisting he wants to go somewhere else, we might accommodate him," said Iselin. "He has said nothing to us about wanting to leave. He still has another year with us under his contract but all I keep hearing is how he wants to go somewhere else.

"Well, as I said, we'd like to have him but if he keeps talking about going to another team, we don't want anybody with us who'll be unhappy."

Iselin, president and chairman of Monmouth Race Track, made his remarks at the Thoroughbred Racing Association's Eclipse Awards luncheon honoring John A. Morris as the TRA Man of the Year, Braulio Baeza as the Jockey of the Year and 19-year-old Jimmy Edwards as the Apprentice Jockey of the Year.

The 32-year-old Namath had the worst season of his 11-year career in 1975. He was intercepted 28 times and sacked 27 times and his completion percentage of 48.2 was below average as he threw for 2,286 yards and 15 touchdowns. The Jets finished 3-11.

The Rams had quarterback problems at the end of the season. James Harris, their starter all year, led them to the NFC West title but was injured in the playoffs. He started the championship game but was replaced early by Ron Jaworski when the Dallas Cowboys roared out to a commanding lead and went on to win easily.

Namath, originally paid $400,000 by Sonny Werblin to join the Jets after starring at the University of Alabama, is the highest paid player in the National Football League.

Bowler of the Year

Judy Soutar, 31, a seasoned veteran of the pro women's bowling tour, has been named Woman Bowler of the Year for the second time in three years by the Bowling Writers Association of America. Mrs. Soutar, who has been bowling in big tournaments since she was 14, was also accorded the honor in 1973 by the tenpin writers. The Grandview, Mo., bowler has two children and is married to Dave Soutar, a veteran on the men's Professional Bowler's Association tour. (UPI)

The Man In the Cowboy Hat

MIAMI (UPI) — Pretty blonde Laura Baugh has had plenty of men follow her around on golf courses making up the LPGA tour, but she was unnerved by a mysterious man in a cowboy hat who appeared at her last 10 tournaments last year.

When the short, bearded man popped up again Tuesday while Miss Baugh was preparing for this weekend's Burdines Invitational tournament, she complained to LPGA officials and they asked the stranger to leave for good.

"I told him I really didn't know what was going on, but that we didn't want him around anymore," said LPGA tournament director Bill Hall. "He said fine and left. I realy don't think we'll have any more problems with him."

"The guy's a kook," LPGA publicity director Bob Basche said. "When I was with the tennis tour, we had Chris Evert freaks. Well, this guy is a Laura Baugh freak. The only difference is in tennis, you're more removed from the situation."

The golf association said they had a tentative identification of the man but thought he might be using an assumed name.

Miss Baugh declined comment on the matter, but others said they were sure it was hurting her game.

"Laura has never come out and said this guy has affected her play, but I'm sure it has," Basche said. "He bothered her enough that she just doesn't want him hanging around."

UCAL Wrestling Race Tightens As Ellenville, Liberty Lose

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Athletic League wrestling picture experienced a couple of new twists Wednesday. A pair of schools, Red Hook and Wallkill , flipped favored opponents to tighten up the race for first place.

Red Hook knocked off previously unbeaten Ellenville, 33-15, and Wallkill upset Liberty, 31-27. In other matches, undefeated Onteora rolled past Fallsburgh, 49-10, and New Paltz turned back Pine Bush, 33-18.

Bruce Rhodes, unbeaten thus far in nine bouts, and Maurice Hryshko, a 169 pounder with a 7-2 mark, scored key victories to help the Raiders improve to 4-1 in league competition. Rhodes nailed Ken Stalter in the third period of the 140 battle, and Hryshko pinned his opponent in 42 seconds.

The Ellies were strong in the light weights, but the Raiders lost no class by worse than a decision.

Larry Domenech in 114 and Tim North in 128 continued their outstanding seasons in leading the Panthers to their third win against a loss and a tie. Domenech stopped Steve Goodstein with a decision, and North pinned Jon Sutherland as both of the victors upped their personal marks to 11-1.

Bob Nolan kept Liberty alive with a fall in 157, but Mark Pruess and Jim Heddy captured the next two classes to put the match out of the Redskins' reach.

Fallsburgh gave away six weights to the Indians with forfeits so the competition didn't get much beyond the individual level. OCS moved alone into first place with a 3-0 record.

The match came out three apiece otherwise. Ralph Vanacore, Fran Castaldo and Duane Degraff scored for Onteora, and Tony Diers, Steve Moss and Alex Bell won for the Comets.

Doug Dillon, Tim Rock and Bob Kopsick gave New Paltz pins in three of the last four classes to comfortably put the Bushmen away. Dillon stopped Russ Miller in 2:33, Rock pinned Mark Joseph in 1:50 and Kopsick took John Volack in 36 36 seconds.

Ali Clowns, Trains

SAN JUAN, P. R. (UPI) — World heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali trained for his title bout playing a boogie woogie on the piano, pretending he was Wyatt Earp and dancing about the ring with a Puerto Rican junior lightweight champ.

The fact that he went a bruising 10 rounds of sparring practice against former world champion Jimmy Ellis and heavyweight fighter Rodney Bobick was incidental to Thursday's performance.

It was an elaborate show, given daily at a ring set up at the El San Juan hotel and about 300 fans pay five dollars a head every day, just to watch the champion practice and hear his war cry," I am the greatest". Ali fights Belgian challenger Jean-Pierre Coopman in San Juan, Feb. 20.

Ali arrived in San Juan last week tired, overweight, and depressed, but he is already back to his old self in putting on a show.

He saved his punch line for the last two rounds of sparring against Ellis.

"I am the greatest'" he yelled as he danced around the ring. " I am the greatest."

Ellis landed a right jab.

"Oh, Lord," Ali groaned, "Oh, Lord."

It wasn't boxing, but the fans laughed and cheered every minute.

Pine Bush Girls Top Onteora Quintet, 39-32

BOICEVILLE

Pine Bush High's girls basketball team clinched second place in the American Division of the Ulter County Athletic League Wednesday by defeating Onteora, 39-32.

"We pressed them in the first period and held them pretty well," said OCS coach Carol Okoren, "but they had a big second quarter."

Onteora led 9-4 at the first step, but Pine Bush rallied to take a 20-17 halftime lead. During the second period, PB was led by Eileen Carroll, who scored all seven of her points.

Doreen Hyde had a game-high 10 points for Pine Bush. The winners had the same number of field goals as did Onteora, but put in seven more foul shots.

Onteora got nine points, 12 rebounds, and five assists from Colleen Duffy. Debbie Cease had 11 rebounds and seven steals.

Pine Bush is 10-4 on the season with one game remaining. Onteora concluded the campaign at 9-6.

Crenshaw Heads Field

HONOLULU (UPI) — Most of golf's best players, led by Crosby winner Ben Crenshaw and Lee Trevino, teed off today at Waialae seeking a share of the $230,000 purse in the Hawaiian Open, fourth stop of the new year on the PGA Tour.

Unlike last year, there were no fire engines standing by today as a warm, tropical sun and 15-knot trade winds offered near-perfect playing weather for the 147 starters.

Last year, much to the embarrassment of the local chamber of commerce, monsoon rains flooded the greens and play was delayed until the Honolulu Fire Department was able to pump out the newly-formed lakes and ponds that suddenly dotted the Waialae course. As it was, the tournament was delayed a day because of the rain.

The 11th annual Hawaiian Open offers $46,000 to the winner, making it the richest event of the year thus far, and Crosby winner Crenshaw and Trevino, a sentimental favorite around the islands, are picked as the ones to beat this week.

Crenshaw, the 24-year-old Texan, put it all together last week at Pebble Beach for his first victory in two and one-half years. Trevino deliberately passed up the Crosby Clambake so he could come to Hawaii a week early and get a better feel of the Waialae course.

Australia also has a top contender this year in Bruce Crampton, who won the tournament in 1969 and finished fourth last year. Crampton has played some of his best golf here.

Sports Briefs

Freedom of the Press Cited

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A U.S. District Court judge cited freedom of the press Wednesday in his dismissal of a civil suit by a Pittsburgh Steeler fan who said he was depicted as a "crazy drunken slob" in a Sports Illustrated photograph.

The picture appeared in an August 1974 issue of Sports Illustrated and, according to the editors: "Represented the typical Steeler fan: a rowdy, strong rooter muchbehind his team and having a good time at the game."

John W. Neff said the picture, which clearly showed the front zipper of his trousers completely open, had been taken without his knowledge or permission. He claimed it was an invasion of his privacy.

Redmond Off to Mayo Clinic

DETROIT (UPI) — Mickey Redmond is off to Rochester, Minn., and the Mayo Clinic to see if there is a physical reason he has only scored 11 goals this season.

Redmond's attorney and agent, Alan Eagleson, also refuted statements the right wing for the Detroit Red Wings wants to be traded or retire.

"Mickey certainly is not thinking of retirement," Eagleson said from Toronto, where Redmond has been while Detroit has played its last four games. He will also miss the Red Wings' game in Los Angeles on Thursday. "But he knows he isn't playing well and wants to know why. He's been depressed."

Jordan Pleads Guilty

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — New England Patriots lineman Shelby Jordan Wednesday pleaded guilty to one count of selling cocaine to a federal agent.

U.S. District Court Chief Judge Raymond J. Pettine said he would impose a sentence within a few weeks.

Jordan's plea came just before the jury trial was to open. Pettine dropped two other counts, involving sale and conspiracy.

Jordan, 23, an offensive tackle with the National Football League team, was charged last August with two counts of selling cocaine to federal agents and conpiracy with another man to receive and distribute cocaine.

Says Seattle Was Threatened

EVERETT, Wash. (UPI) — The American League and the Baseball Commissioner's office each threatened a year ago never to put a team back in Seattle if the lawsuit against the league ever came to trial, according to King County Executive John Spellman.

The threats, said Spellman from the witness stand, came in a Dec. 4, 1974 meeting in New Orleans between the plaintiffs and defendants in the case.

The multi-million dollar suit has been brought by the state of Washington, King County and the city of Seattle over the moving of the Seattle Pilots club to Milwaukee in 1970.

Only two weeks ago, with the suit about to come to trial, American League owners voted to put an expansion franchise in Seattle in 1977.

The attorney representing the American League at the trial objected to Spellman recollecting the threat in front of the jury so it was not done.

Havlicek Points for Longevity Record

By UPI

He has played in 1,078 games, scored 23,146 points and is now the second most durable player in National Basketball Association history. But what John Havlicek did Wednesday night was strictly habit.

The 14-year veteran from Ohio State played 33 minutes, wound up with 17 points and led the Boston fast break in the second half that brought the Celtics back to a 110-99 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

Thus Havlicek now has 23,146 career points and needs just four more to move past Elgin Baylor into fourth on the all-time list. He also needs to play in just 45 more games to take the iron-man award from former Philadelphia star Hal Greer, who appeared in 1,122 games.

Havlicek doesn't expect to catch career-scoring leader Wilt Chamberlain, who poured in 31,419 points in 14 seasons, although he has an outside shot at passing Jerry West and Oscar Robertson.

"But I would like to play sone more year", said Havlicek. "If I'm healthy, and I should be, there's no reason I shouldn't come back next year. To become the leader in number of games played is my one goal. That's the only mark I'm striving to attain."

"It's nice to be placed in a select group of players that have done so much for basketball and the NBA. When you're up there with the Chamberlains, Wests, Baylors and Greers, you feel like you've made quite a contribution in the game."

Charlie Scott also had 17 points for Boston Jo Jo White had 15 and second-year guard Kevin Stacom had a career-high 15. Dave Cowens added 14 points and 18 rebounds while Silas had 11 points and 16 rebounds. Tom Van Arsdale led the Hawks with 24 points and Lou Hudson added 18.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Houston topped Cleveland 108-93, Buffalo bested New Orleans 126-112, Chicago shaded Detroit 87-84, Portland drubbed Seattle 124-104 and Los Angeles edged out Phoenix 121-118. There were no ABA games.

Rockets 108, Cavaliers 93

Houston's Ed Ratleff, held to three points in the first half, ignited a second half surge with 11-points as Cleveland's five-game winning streak was snapped. Kevin Kunnert led the Rockets' domination of the boards with 15 rebounds.

Bulls 87, Pistons 84

Jack Marin hit four of his last six shots and scored 11 of his 16 points in the final period as Chicago spoiled new Detroit Coach Herb Brown's home debut. It was the fourth straight loss for Detroit. Mick ey Johnson led Chicago with 17 points and Bob Love added 15.

Braves 126, Jazz 112

Randy Smith reeled off 16 consecutive points to open the third period and wound up with 34 in leading Buffalo to its second win over New Orleans in as many games. Bob McAdoo added 31 points for the Braves.

Lakers 121, Suns 118

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 28 points, 10 in the fourth period, and Los Angeles withstood a late Phoenix rally to down the Suns. Abdul-Jabbar hit on all seven of his shots in the second half. Paul Westphal who scored 20 of his 30 points in the fourth period, led the Suns' late rally.

Trail Blazers 124, Sonics 104

Geoff Petrie's 26 points plus a combined 40 points from forwards Sidney Wicks and rookie Bob Gross propelled Portland over sagging Seattle, the Blazers' fourth straight win. Wicks scored 20 points and hauled down 15 rebounds as Portland moved out of the Pacific Division cellar pa Phoenix. The Sonics have no lost six in a row and eight of their last nine.

MH-C Grapplers Warm Up

MIDDLETOWN — Four Mid-Hudson Conference wrestling teams will begin the search for the MH-C Championship next week with three head-to-head matches.

Defending champion Rockland County Community College opens against Ulster County Community College on Feb. 2 at Stone Ridge. A year ago Rockland defeated UCCC in their match and that was the basis for awarding them the seasonal championship after teams tied in the conference standings.

Orange County opens its campaign on Feb. 4 against Westchester in a match at Valhalla. The Colts failed to win the conference title in 1975 for the first since the Mid-Hudson Conference was formed.

Rockland and Westchester will close out the first week's schedule with a dual meet Friday in Valhalla.

Altheiser Pares Squad

KINGSTON — Three Kingston players have survived the first cut of Moose All Star basketball candidates, Coach Art Altheiser announced. The trio includes George Uhl, Jonn Albany and Brian Timbrouck.

Three Marlboro players were named — Peter Potentes, Tom Morehead and Richard McKnight. Saugerties is also represented by three players — John Barker, Jim Speirs and Peter Fabiano.

"The team lacks size but had outstanding shooters and speed," said Coach Altheiser in previewing prospects for the locals in the New York State Moose Championships in Auburn, April 2-3-4.

In seven years as Moose coach, Altheiser has produced one second place team and a pair of third-place finishes in the state tournament. Altheiser, now in his 17th year as a coach, has compiled a career record of 363 wins and 231 losses.

Competing in the state championships this season will be defending champion Owego Baldwinsville, Syracuse, Waverly, Auburn, Niagara Falls, Cortland, Hudson, Elmira, Ithaca and Oswego.

Altheiser is being assisted by coaches and scouts Richard McKnight, Bob Morehead and George Uhl. Len Throneburg is the sports chariman and Frank Stauble basketball director for Kingston Moose.

Millrose Games to Revive 5,000-Meter Race

NEW YORK (UPI) — A revival of the 5,000-meters, a revamping of the indoor's circuit's most criticized track, and a field including Dwight Stones, Marty Liquori, Tony Waldrop, Rick Wohlhuter and Dan Ripley mark the 69th renewal of the Wanamaker Millrose Games Friday night.

After an interval of 51 years, Millrose meet director Howard Schmertz has elected to bring back the 5,000 meters to New York indoor track and has lined up nine outstanding competitors. Included in the 5,000-meter field, last run here in the 1925 K. of C meet when world record holder Paavo Nurmi was forced to retire with an upset stomach, are former Penn State ace Greg Fredericks and balding Dick Buerkle plus Canada's Grant McLaren and Great Britain's Nick Rose.

Schmertz is hopeful the 5,000-meter field — and all the other races other than sprints and hurdles — will be benefited from a major overhaul of the oft-cricticised Madison Square Garden 11-lap track. Although the surface remains the same, the Garden has revamped the bankings, making the approaches more gradual and thus more accessible to the runners.

One conspicuous absence from the 5,000-meter field will be Liquori, the former Villanova mile star and longtime Garden favorite who is expected to make his last bid for an Olympic gold medal in the Montreal 5,000 meters. Ordinarily, Liquori would probably be running his newfound specialty, but at the coaxing of Millrose officials, he'll go up against Waldrop and, most probably, the current Villanova prodigy, Eamon Coughlan.

The field events figure to be dominated by Stones, the outspoken but nearly always outstanding high jumper and Ripley, the man they're touting the "believe it or not" pole vaulter.

Stones, who last indoor season established four indoor "bests" including a 7-foot-5¾ leap at New York's Olympic Invitational meet, will again have the high jump pit to his liking — the runway, that is, being set up for "floppers" rather than straddlers.

"Why not?" said one Millrose official, "There's no point in belaboring this issue anymore. The floppers are what's happening in high jumping today. They're the ones setting records and exciting crowds."

Ripley, Stones' Pacific Coast Club teammate, pole vaulted to a world indoor best 18-feet, 1¼ inches two weeks ago at College Park, Md. but has nonetheless got track buffs wondering if he's to be believed.

After leaping 18 feet early last indoor season, he was hampered by injury the remainder of the year and last week he was upset on fewer misses by the Soviet Union's Yuriy Isakov after both leaped just 17-6.

Millrose officials are also hopeful of landing high school sensation Houston McTear, co-holder of the world 100 yard dash (9.0) record to their sprint. McTear, unbeaten indoors this year, may jetained at home in Florida however due to his father's illness.

Petraglia Leads

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Johnny Petraglia of Staten Island, N.Y., averaged 230 for 12 games to hold the lead through the first two rounds of the $70,000 King Louie Open Bowling Tournament Wednesday.

Petraglia produced a total of 2,770 pins to give him a 76-pin edge over Earl Anthony, Tacoma, Wash., who was at 2,694. Rounding out the top five were Teata Semiz, River Edge, N.J., 2,692; Gary Mage, Bellevue, Wash., 2,665, and Steve Jones, Kansas City, Mo., 2,597.

Petraglia fell off his first round pace of a 242 average but still was able to increase his lead. Ahead of Anthony by only 12 points entering the last game, he fired a 279 while Anthony closed with 215.

Defending champion Mark Roth, also of Staten Island, moved up from a tie for 26th to 11th at 2,560.

State: CSEA Time Bomb

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A strike threat by the union representing 147,000 state workers and contract demands that would cost $460 million represent "a time bomb" on the bargaining table, according to the director of the state's Office of Employee Relations.

OER director Donald H. Wollett said contract demands by the Civil Service Employees Association would cost out at about 20 per cent of the total state payroll and could "destroy the Taylor Law" regulating collective bargaining by public workers.

Wollett told a meeting of the International Personnel Management Association Wednesday night that the state had offered "an extensive package of management proposals" that would save the state $28.5 million.

The state's offer includes reductions in certain fringe benefits, including vacations and personal leave time. Wollett noted, "I regret to say, CSEA has refused even to discuss these proposals."

Referring to what he termed "the harsh economic realities" of "impaired growth of state revenues," Wollett said, "even if these demands are only 'asking' proposals ... they reflect unrealistic attitudes and an unwillingness or inability to adjust to the present environment."

Union leaders met last fall in Niagara Falls and voted to call a strike if a contract had not been signed by March 31, the expiration date of the present agreement with the state.

"CSEA has placed a time bomb on the bargaining table," Wollett said. "If that bomb goes off on March 31, it will destroy the Taylor Law" regulating collective bargaining by public employes.

Wollett said "some CSEA representatives" had indicated they would be willing to go to mediation with 200 issues unresolved in negotiations now underway. The Taylor Law provides for mediation, factfinding and, finally, a legislative hearing to resolve contract disputes.

"The theory the CSEA seems to be operating on is that in an election year they will do better in a completely political forum than they will with us," Wollett said.

New York Jobless Total Inches Up Once Again

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Unemployment rose to 10.3 per cent in New York State last month, one-tenth of a point higher than the November rate, the State Labor Department reported Wednesday.

The monthly report said the loss of 26,700 jobs in December reflected a continued decline in the number of jobs, as total employment dipped to the lowest point in five years.

A decline of 100 in the total out of work — to 780,500 persons — was offset by shrinkage in the total employment to 6,820,600 as compared with 6,847,300 in November, the department said.

In December 1974, total employment was 7,038,300 and unemployment was 585,500 for a 7.7 per cent jobless rate.

December unemployment figures for the state's major industrial areas:

Albany-Schenectady-Troy — 25,300 or 7.3 per cent compared with 25,500 or 7.3 per cent in November and 21,400 or 6.1 per cent in December 1974.

Binghamton — 9,700 or 7.7 per cent compared with 10,100 or 8.0 per cent in November and 8,000 or 6.3 per cent in December 1974.

Buffalo — 68,300 or 12.8 per cent compared with 68,600 or 12.8 per cent in November and 55.400 or 10.3 per cent in December 1974.

Elmira — 3,800 or 9.1 per cent compared with 4,000 or 9.5 per cent in November and 3,700 or 8.5 per cent in December 1974.

Poughkeepsie — 5,900 or 6.0 per cent compared with 5,900 or 6.0 per cent in November and 4,200 or 4.3 per cent in December 1974.

Rochester — 36,300 or 7.9 per cent compared with 36,000 or 7.8 per cent in November and 22,800 or 5.0 per cent in December 1974.

Syracuse — 27,000 or 9.6 per cent compared with 26,700 or 9.4 per cent in November and 19,300 or 6.7 per cent in December 1974.

Utica — 14,100 or 11.1 per cent compared with 13,500 or 10.6 per cent in November and 10,700 or 8.4 per cent in December 1974.

New York City combined area — 496,100 or 10.5 per cent compared with 501,90 0 or 10.6 per cent in November and 363,100 or 7.7 per cent in December 1974.

Steingut Endorses Casino Gambling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut said today that legalized casino gambling would hit organized crime "in the pocketbook" and bring the state millions of dollars in new tax revenues.

Steingut's endorsement of expanded legalized gambling came in remarks prepared for hearings by two Assembly committees on a proposed constitutional amendment to permit the state to operate gambling casinos or take bets on jai alai or dog racing.

Steingut said the proposals under study would be based on "strict government control on the state and local level to preclude infiltration by underworld elements."

Casino gambling, he said, "would create tens of thousands of new jobs for New Yorkers, brighten the state's cloudy tourist climate, bring in millions in new taxes and, as a bonus, give organized crime a nasty blow where it will hurt the most — in the pocketbook."

"It's about time we faced the fact that people gamble and that they are doing their gambling in other cities and countries where it is legal or in gangster-operated establishments," Steingut said.

According to Stanley Fink, D-Brooklyn, chairman of the Assembly Codes Committee, the proposed amendments are being offered "primarily as study bills" to test public sentiment on what has always been a sensitive issue.

Let Albany know how you stand. NOW.

The State Court of Appeals in a ruling handed down in December, prohibits savings banks from continuing to offer NOW (payment order) accounts, which are similar in nature to checking accounts.

Also, the Court decision allows savings banks to continue servicing their present NOW accounts only through March 31, 1976.

The Court's verdict was announced after months of hearings which resulted from an action filed by competitive financial institutions in July, 1974. Less than two months prior to that date, the New York State Superintendent of Banks issued regulations allowing savings banks to provide NOW or Payment Order accounts.

The legal action against savings banks NOW accounts indicated that they, "constitute unfair competition," and are in "violation of banking laws."

While rendering its decision, the Court, at the same time did say, "That savings banks ought to be permitted to offer checking account services, for which there is considerable local and national support, should be addressed to the Legislature and not to the courts . . ."

Heritage Savings Bank is in total agreement with this invitation to the Legislature to act. Heritage should be able to offer checking accounts.

Savings Banks depositors in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Jersey, among others, enjoy NOW or checking accounts.

Why not New York State savings banks depositors?

Since their introduction in 1974, the response to NOW Accounts at Heritage Savings Bank has been excellent. This indicates that you, our customers, like, need, want and deserve this service. Therefore, we don't feel it should be taken away.

We don't feel you should be discriminated against.

We're going to fight the Court's decision all the way. We feel we owe that much to the people who have helped support Heritage Savings Bank over the years.

You can help. And, we hope you will.

Let Albany know how you stand. Take a few minutes to write to your local legislator. Tell your representatives you want action. And, you want it fast. That as a taxpayer and consumer you are entitled to have NOW or checking accounts at your savings bank.

You can also remind the men and women who represent you in Albany that the national trend is toward broadened powers for savings banks. This includes checking accounts. And a bill containing that provision recently passed the United States Senate.

This is an election year — so you can be sure all legislators will be especially sensitive to all suggestions from voting constituents.

Below is a list of the people who represent you at the State Capitol.

Spy Agency Reforms Under Consideration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Intelligence Committee considered proposed spy-agency reforms today while marshaling support to prevent censorship of its controversial final report by President Ford.

The committee, headed by Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., met to work on recommendations to improve the congressional oversight of the CIA and other intelligence agencies and to revamp their structures.

On the other side of the capitol, Sen. Frank Church, DIdaho, chairman of the Senate intelligence committee, was scheduled to appear before the full Senate to present that panel's reform recommendations. The Church committee is still working on its final report expected before the panel's mandate runs out today.

The House Rules Committee late Wednesday passed by a vote of 9 to 7 a resolution that the 338-page report, major parts of which have already leaked to the press, could only be issued now to authorized officials.

Public release would have to wait, the resolution stated, "until the report has been certified by the President as not containing information which would adversely affect" CIA or other intelligence activities abroad.

Pike reportedly planned a parliamentary maneuver to allow amendments in the House before the vote on the Rules Committee resolution.

Congressional sources predicted the vote would be close, with emotions running high on both sides: dislike of conceding to the President the power to control a House committee report, as opposed to fears that the document as it now stands could damage U.S. intelligence and endanger national security.

Pike acknowledged to the Rules Committee Wednesday that the report contains classified material.

"It's a matter of opinion over what should or not be made public," he said, adding that his committee last Friday voted 9 to 4 to go ahead with publication.

The White House and the CIA have already protested that the Pike committee broke an agreement not to make public without prior consultation secret and classified information it was supplied.

Pike countered that the stricture did not specifically cover the final report.

"We did address every single objection by the CIA," he said. "We did not agree to take out what they wanted. We agreed there was no way to allow the CIA or FBI to tell this committee what it would report back."

Morocco Accused In Desert Deaths

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — Algeria has accused Morocco of civilian massacres, bombing raids on refugee camps and germ warfare in fighting for control of the former Spanish Sahara. Morocco denied the charges as "incredible fabrications."

There were conflicting reports on whether Algerian-backed guerrillas and Moroccan troops clashed Wednesday at the desert oasis of Amgala, 100 miles from the Algerian border.

Algerian officials said the fighting flared up at sunrise in the area of Amgala, a stronghold of Algerian-backed Polisario Front guerrillas who seek independence for the desert territory.

But in the Moroccan capital of Rabat, Minister of Information Taibi Benhima said there were no reports Wednesday of a resumption of fighting in Amgala between Algerians and Moroccans, or of any Moroccan land or air military actions.

The Algerian governmentcontrolled news service APS said Wednesday Moroccan warplanes bombed three Saharan refugee camps near the coastal town of Dahkla, 600 miles from the Algerian border, killing women and children.

Benhima denied the charges as "incredible fabrications" and revised to 29 the number of Algerian soldiers he said were captured after a "vicious desert fire-fight" Tuesday in Amgala.

"The presense of regular Algerian soldiers fighting at the side of a band of rebels brings an ominous air to the Sahara," Benhima said.

Algerian President Houari Boumedienne met Wednesday with two Syrian officials said to be carrying a special message from Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Boumedienne said later, "The Moroccan troops invading the Sahara, like any colonial army, have used summary executions, massacres, germ warfare and napalm on the Saharan civilians."

A flurry of activity swept through Arab capitals anxious to avoid a new fraticidal conflict on the heels of the Lebanese civil war.

Diplomatic sources said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Iraqi President Ahmed Hassan El Bakr, Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba, and Syrian President Hafedh El Assad all personally telephoned both Algerian President Boumedienne and Moroccan King Hassan II to try to stop any further slide toward war.

Andretta Court Moves

DETROIT (UPI) — Stephen Andretta, appearing before the grand jury that is trying to unravel the Jimmy Hoffa mystery, spent more time outside the jury room conferring with his lawyer Wednesday than inside answering questions.

In his third appearance within a week, Andretta, the brother of a New Jersey Teamster, left the session 117 times to seek his lawyer's advice. Federal authorities would not say whether Andretta answered even one question.

The reluctant witness, who has interrupted the grand jury session to seek counsel 212 times since last Thursday, was called for more questions today.

As each question was put to him Wednesday in the jury room where reporters are not allowed, Andretta walked out to a hall to talk to his attorney, William E. Bufalino Sr.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be wise Steer clear of those who are looking for a good time today They'll depend on you to foot the bill

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An eruption on the home front today could challenge your leadership. Don't overreact. You'll gain respect after things calm down.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be prepared to roll up your sleeves today and tackle some old-fashioned labor Elbow grease could resolve an old problem

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The younger generation may cause you to dip into your pocketbook today Salvage something Lay down some new rules at the same time!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll have an unexpected crisis on the domestic scene today You can solve it if you're willing to compromise

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may find yourself to be all thumbs early in the day Shun things requiring manual dexterity till later

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your head's in the clouds today. You could want to buy an offbeat, useless item It'll cost a bit, too

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The best approach today is to give in at home, but you'll find it hard to extricate yourself from the rigid position you've assumed

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your normally glib tongue will not get you out of trouble today In fact, it will only serve to put you in deeper.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Strive not to feel you're being taken in a material sense. If isn't so If you curb your imagination, you'll learn a lesson.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you feel unreasonably apprehensive about the motives of a friend or associate, subdue it Renewed faith in others brings rewards

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't take undue chances today Listen closely to what that little voice is saying — "Be sensible and cautious"

your birthday

Jan. 30, 1976

After a possible erratic beginning this coming year, things will smooth out considerably. Don't despair You'll emerge with a new stronger personality

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

OLD, YOUNG: (Q.) My mom told Michael off on the phone the other night and I had a fight with her. She hit me. Do you think age matters? I am in love with Michael and he is in love with me. But I am 14 and he is 11 and my mom says he is too young and if he calls me again I will get hit again, or worse.

I went to a party with this guy who is 22 and my mom didn't say anything. But I don't love him, I love Michael. I don't think age matters. Do you? — Warned in Rhode Island

(A.) If you were 20 or older, your going with a male three years younger or eight years older wouldn't disturb me. But I do feel that at 14 you are too old for an 11-year-old boy and much too young for a 22-year-old man. Aren't there any boys in your classes at school? They are your age, the right age for you. Your mother should not hit you.

DANCE: (Q.) I met Oliver during the summer. He lives in another town. He visited near me during the holidays and I was supposed to go out with him while he was here but didn't.

Now I am sorry. I know I really like him, and would like to try it again by asking him to my school's annual dance. Do you think I should ask him? — Interested in Indiana

(A.) If Oliver does not live too far away and if his coming to the dance would not be too complicated or expensive for him, yes, ask him. He apparently asked you for a date and you said no. Your invitation will tell him it was not a permanent "no."

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

WIN AT BRIDGE

No overcall on points only

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Forty years ago most bridge players believed that if a hand was worth an opening bid they had to overcall with it They would stick in a two-diamond overcall with their four quick tricks West would double and when the smoke had cleared away our hero would have taken his two ace-kings and the defense the other nine tricks

South would say, "I had a good opening bid " Everyone would sympathize with him, particularly East and West

No one would point out that if he had kept his mouth shut East and West might well have landed at four spades-down one.

Today most players realize that it is unwise to overcall with a four-card suit at any time and that you really need a six carder for a two-level overcall

If a modern player did want to bid with that 4-3-3-3 South hand he would make a takeout double North would respond two clubs and probably would not be doubled If doubled he would not go down more than two and might get out for one.

Puzzle-of-the-day Is that fellow at the next table who's having crackers and water for lunch on a diet or on a commission?

The boss told our salesmen he's having a fire sale — either sell something or get fired.

Add to your dictionary of collective nouns: a closing of gas stations

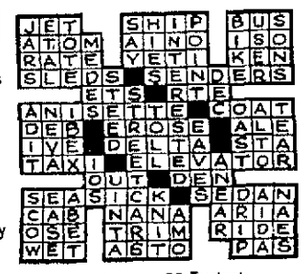

The easiest thing to mind is your neighbor's business.

And then there's the bibulous skipper who had a yacht on the rocks.

Peace talks often depend on who gets the biggest piece of the other fellow's real estate.

Conversations with Koenig

Broadway East, Hall, U.S. Funding

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON

Every other year about this time people start wondering when Kingston's all-time plurality winner is going to make his move for higher office.

This won't be the year. "I am not a candidate," said Mayor Francis R. Koenig. "I have no intention of running for any state office."

Koenig prefers to stay with the job he was elected to for a record-tying fourth straight term and indications are there is lots of work to be done.

The Broadway East situation again appears to be up in the air. Last year Koenig thought he had a developer in Thomas Sentar of Port Ewen. Sentar still hasn't been able to sign a food market for the proposed City Hall Plaza. Koenig revealed, during his weekly interview at the Freeman, that he's talking to another developer. Sentar has not been available for comment.

Koenig still isn't changing his plan for Broadway East despite five years of failure to redevelop the five-acre parcel just below City Hall. "There's a need for a supermarket down there," he says, although not ruling out altogether the splitting up of the parcel as he did uptown. "I'm open to any ideas," he said.

OLD CITY HALL — Koenig revealed that he's written to Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) for an extension of state funding for the restoration of the old City Hall at 408 Broadway. The state had committed up to $500,000 in matching funds but the money runs out on March 31. Koenig feels that in light of the city's application for up to $300,000 in federal funds through the Community Development Program, the state may prove receptive to an extension. Hinchey has pledged his support.

FEDERAL FUNDING — Koenig also revealed that he's been in contact with Congressman Matthew F. McHugh (D-27th Dist.) and Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th Dist.) concerning a recently approved (but yet to be signed by President Ford) program that would supply federal funds for public improvements, such as a new garage for the department of public works, a new firehouse, the old City Hall, etc. The city applied for over a million dollars worth of projects under a similiar federal program last year but was turned down.

REASSESSMENT — A continuing topic of conversation and public interest. Little has been done on city-wide reassessment beyond a meeting with county officials.

The mayor estimates that it will take 50 to 60 "data gatherers" to compile information on the city's almost 7,000 residential parcels in order to reassess the city and tax at 100 per cent of value rather than the existing 26.2 per cent. He did not detail how the data gatherers would be selected, how they would be trained or the degree of supervision. He did say there is no money in this year's budget for such a project, indicating that either the money will have to be borrowed or that it will not take place until next year.

Koenig also revealed that the city was forced to fire Mrs. Mary Ann Bahruth, a CETA (Concentrated Employment Training Act) employe in the assessor's office ufter a federal protest over "nepotism." Mrs. Bahruth is the daughter of Recreation Superintendent Andrew J. Murphy III. Federal regulations forbid the hiring of relatives of any city superintendent. Mrs. Bahruth was rehired as a regular city employe on a "temporary basis" on Monday.

ODDS AND ENDS — Koenig said he's talked to United Way officials about the possibility of renting the old City Hall for a dollar a year if it's renovated. United Way has been looking at the Children's Home on East Chester Street as a site for an agency office building.

The swimming pool at Dietz Stadium (Andretta Park) will be open this summer, Koenig said. Money has been budgeted for its operation.

Koenig said the Common Council will have to make a decision on an architect for the renovation of the municipal auditorium under the city's Community Development Program. Bids have been received from three Kingston architects — George Hutton, John McCullough and Albert Milliken — with Hutton reportedly the lowest.

The mayor appears optimistic that Martin Aaron and his associates can soon finalize financing for 100 units of senior citizen housing at St. Anne's at Broadway and Orchard Street and for another 80 units of senior housing at the Governor Clinton Hotel. "I understand that he's secured financing," the mayor said. That financing was not secured locally, with several upstate banks putting up the almost $2.5 million necessary for both projects.

Treasurer's Aide Quits For 'A Better Job'

KINGSTON

The number two man in the city treasurer's office, Charles Hafemann, a certified public accountant, has resigned his $15,782 a year post for what was termed "a better job" as comptroller with the town of Poughkeepsie.

Hafemann, a former loan officer with the city's now defunct Code Enforcement Program, was appointed principal account clerk in the treasurer's office by Mayor Francis R. Koenig in August of 1973. After passing a Civil Service test with a mark of 85 the following May, Hafemann was granted permanent appointment in July of 1974.

There was no formal announcement of Hafemann's resignation — "he got a better job, I guess," was the mayor's only comment.

"That man was one of the most dedicated employes I've ever had," said City Treasurer Francis H. Law. Hafemann was reportedly disgruntled with the mayor's salary freeze this year and accepted the position in Poughkeepsie which pays a higher wage. He left last Friday.

Koenig said he is checking with the city's civil service commission on filling the vacancy in the treasurer's office.

Reportedly, there is an established list from May of 1974 when the civil service test for principal account clerk was last administered. Hafemann finished second on that test with his 85. Jose Sanchez was first with a mark of 99. Others passing the test included Mrs. Margaret Johnson with a mark of 83.5 and John H. Houghtaling, former principal account clerk, with a mark of 76 per cent.

Mrs. Johnson is currently employed as secretary to the superintendent of public works. Sanchez works as a CSEA organizer.

KERHONKSON

The Kerhonkson-Accord First Aid Squad, Inc., held its 10th annual installation dinner at Rubin's Hotel in Kerhonkson recently.

The dinner was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Dave Rubin, proprietors of the hotel.

She reported that the squad responded to 428 first aid calls in 1975, worked 2,752 man hours, traveled 14,645 miles and used 1,663 gallons of gasoline. The gasoline was donated by Nick's Time Square in Kerhonkson and T.H.E. Honda in Accord.
